First baby born at 12:05

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

> "This is our New Year's present right here."
> Brad Jenson,
> On his new daughter

One of Charlevoix's newest pint sized residents in pink beat out two peers in blue for bragging rights as the first baby of 2004 to be born at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Ellen Jenson, 33, of Charlevoix, went to a doctor's appointment the morning of Dec. 31. The little bundle she carried in her not so little belly was due to arrive on Jan. 7. But Ellen knew she may not make it until then and definitely wouldn't go beyond that.

This was her third pregnancy and with each came gestational diabetes. Because of this temporary condition her doctor, James Jeakle, MD., monitored her pregnancies closely and induced labor on the baby's due date.

Around noon on New Year's Eve, Ellen took a routine nonstress test and was hooked up to a bit of pitocin to see how the baby did under the stress of labor contractions.

The baby reacted well and doc said Ellen and her husband Brad could go home.

The couple made their way home, stopping to pick up Chinese dinner for themselves and Ellen's mom and dad, John and Doris Pearl of Norwood Township. The grandparents were at the Jenson's home watching their other two children, Chloe, who is just ready to celebrate her second birthday and Hunter who is 3.

After dinner, everyone slipped into their PJs to turn in for the night. Ellen and Brad had no intention of staying up to celebrate the start of 2004. But at around 8:15 p.m. Ellen's contractions that had started early that afternoon at Jeakle's office were still coming.

She called Jeakle and was told to come to the hospital for a quick check.

They leisurely left their home in Norwood Township unaware that just four hours later they would welcome the newest Jenson, Lauren Emily.

Their daughter arrived at 12:05 a.m., Jan. 1 with a full head of soft, dark hair and a tiny, round, 8 pound, 2 ounce, body that stretched 20 inches long.

She entered the world a half an

Wal-Mart requests meeting

> Nancy Rajewski,
> Charlevoix Township Planning Commission Chair

Wal-Mart's plans for a supercenter in Charlevoix Township are going to be official.

The retail giant has requested to meet with the Charlevoix Township planning commission at 7:30 p.m., March 3 at the Charlevoix Township Hall to go over its official site plans.

Commission chair Nancy Rajewski said in order to have this meeting, Wal-Mart must submit its site plans to the commission by the end of January. So far, she said she has not seen any new site plans besides the conceptual designs shown in September 2003.

As for what she thinks about Wal-Marts proposal being passed by the planning commission, Rajewski said there is no reason at this time to think they will not be.

"The only thing that can keep them from coming is if their site plan does not meet our requirements," she said. "We can't treat them any differently than we would treat anyone else that would go out there."

Rajewski added she has heard from some members of the anti Wal-Mart group "This Is Our Town," but so far has not received any information that would impact the company's Charlevoix plans.

She did say the information she received so far from This Is Our Town has been "interesting." She said it had to do with Wal-Mart's wage practices and effects on communities.

"It was interesting reading, but it has nothing to do with zoning," she said.

Rajewski added, "My job is to see that they follow the ordinance. If they do that, the township is obligated (to approve the plan). We can't say, 'Because you are Wal-Mart, you can't come in.'"

However, Bob Hoffman, spokesperson for This Is Our Town said there are zoning issues that the planning commission must consider, specifically when it comes to the nearby Stover Creek and detention ponds on the proposed site.

"Protection of Stover Creek and detention ponds are part of the City may violate charter with deputy clerk hire

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

City staff plans to move ahead with hiring a deputy clerk, in spite of the fact that doing so may violate the city's charter.

At Monday night's city council meeting, third ward council member Shirley Gibson recommended making city clerk Liz Gooch's job full-time.

Liz Gooch

Gibson said in reading the city charter she believes the city clerk's position is supposed to be full-time.

"The job needs to be brought back to what was intended in the city charter," Gibson said.

The charter outlines the clerk's duties and states that it is at the clerk's discretion to appoint a deputy clerk with approval from council.

Former deputy clerk Bea Parton held a full-time position with the city until last week when she retired.

In the 1980s the clerk's full-time status dropped down to part time and with Parton's seat open, Gibson said the time to make the change in procedure and to follow the charter, is now.

Parton was in charge of filling in at city council meetings, assisting in elections, doing accounts payable and receivable, keeping cemetery records and filling out workman's compensation paperwork.

Gibson said according to the charter, most of the tasks Parton was doing and some that Linda Weller, the city manager's administrative assistant, are doing are supposed to be done by Gooch.

"What has happened over the years is the elected position has slowly eroded," Gibson said. "Why is the elected job part-time and the deputy clerk, if we even need one, full-time? It just doesn't make sense."

But the majority of council disagreed that Parton's responsibilities should be transferred to Gooch.

Second ward councilman Bill Bellows, third ward councilman Sherm Chamberlain and city manager Mike Wiesner said there is no accountability if the clerk is full-time because no one oversees the position day-to-day.

And Bellows further questioned whether a qualified person would be put in the seat because they are selected by voters.

In it he states, "These duties (Parton's former duties) are currently performed by an employee that reports to the treasurer/city manager. By adding these duties, it certainly complicates the situation as to what authority the city manager has over an elected clerk. The city manager and treasurer would be held responsible for seeing that those duties are performed, but would not have any control over who was the person performing the duties and it would be questionable what authority the manager and treasurer have over the individual."

The issue was ultimately tabled by council for further interpretation of the city clerk's duties in terms of local and state statute. It will be discussed at the Jan. 19 meeting.

And in the meantime, Wiesner said he plans to work on hiring a person to fill the deputy clerk's duties in spite of the charter.

"There is room for confusion here. It's not totally clear as I look at the charter and the (deputy clerk's) position the way it's been traditionally operated," he said.

Section 3.8 f the city charter states, "The city clerk may, with the approval of the city council, appoint a deputy clerk."

Gibson said there is no confusion, the charter's intent is clear. It is up to the clerk, Gooch to hire a deputy clerk and she won't give up.

"This I'm going to fight, you have to do what's right. He (Wiesner) cannot hire this person, he cannot violate the city charter," she said. "This is about control — Wiesner control."

Gibson said if she can't get Gooch full-time at city hall she at least wants to see her compensated for the hours she is working.

Gooch said most of her current responsibilities include keeping records like city council minutes, compiling voter registration information, running elections, coordinating Freedom of Information Act requests and acting as clerk for both council and the Board of Review.

Gooch said those duties are time consuming and can't be completed in the 20 hours a week she currently works.

"Things are not getting done," Gooch said.

And any time she works over 20 hours, she is not paid for.

Gooch, who was reelected in November said she is in favor of the position becoming full-time.

Gooch's current salary is $16,416. The city's compensation committee would decide her full-time pay. If the position is made full-time she would also be able to take advantage of the city's health care program which costs about $1,000 a month per family.

Council, manager violating city charter

EDITORIAL

Sometimes it makes a person wonder why we even have a city charter when we have a council that likes to pick and choose what it follows.

Recently, the Charlevoix City Council was asked to decide whether or not to make the part-time city clerk position a full-time position. The Charlevoix City Clerk, Liz Gooch, is an elected position that handles running city elections, dealing with Freedom of Information Requests and is in charge of city documents.

To help her out with her task the city clerk has traditionally had a deputy clerk in Charlevoix. But, recently, that deputy clerk, Bea Parton, retired, leaving the position vacant.

Gooch decided instead of hiring a new deputy clerk, it would make more sense for her position to change to full time, which is a decision that needs to be made by the city council. But, council seems unwilling to go along with this and, on Monday night, it tabled the request.

Some of the council members insist that by making Gooch's position full time, they and the city manager will not have control in the clerk department. They say that by having the clerk job completely under the city clerk, it could hurt the city if an unqualified person is elected by the citizens.

Furthermore, they like the idea of a deputy clerk because they say that person would report to the city manager, Mike Weisner.

But, according to the city charter they are wrong. In Section 3.8 of the city charter, it states that the Charlevoix city clerk may or may not — with the approval of council — appoint a deputy clerk. According to that writing, this would mean a deputy clerk reports to the city clerk, not the city manager as some city council members think. The city clerk reports to the citizens.

By saying the deputy clerk should report to the city manager, the city council is violating this very charter.

Furthermore, the argument that city voters could elect an unqualified person as city clerk as a reason to have a deputy clerk is weak. It is up to the voters to decide if a person is qualified or unqualified for an elected position.

Heck, currently city voters can elect an unqualified city council member. Couldn't that do just as much damage as an unqualified city clerk?

Writer gives some rules for the political rhetoric

Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

We have clearly entered the time of political rhetoric, and we can expect it to escalate until November.

I believe we need some guidelines for listening to any political pronouncements, whether stump speeches or television ads. It would be nice if we could exclude from running for office anyone who violates the guidelines, but then there might be no candidates at all.

1) Any political speech attacking an opponent rather than his or her ideas should be ignored. We can learn to do that. Juries are regularly admonished by a judge to ignore some information that has been illegally brought up at a trial. We probably cannot stop political figures from attacking their opponents, but we can learn to ignore what they say. That means ignoring an attack on an opponents morals or his family or on any inadvertent misspeak or misstep. People do misspeak and should not be demonized for a slip of the tongue.

2) Jacob Bronowski said some years ago that science in modern world had been so successful because its practitioners could consider another person wrong without considering them to be evil. As a scientist I participated in decades of extremely vigorous argument about one idea or another (sometimes so vigorous as to frighten nearby students) without ever feeling animosity toward the persons in opposition. One's political opponent may in fact be wrong, but that does not mean they are somehow evil.

3) Anyone who claims to be speaking for God or speaking absolute truth should consider institutionalizing themselves. A recent letter to the New York Times included the phrase, "Better for all (is) the humility that begins, 'It seems to me that the Bibles says....'" If we could all allow that we might be wrong in our understanding, we could talk to one another about almost anything. Pronouncing that homosexuals or performers of abortions should be killed because the Bible says so is not an invitation to discussion or to tolerance. To always consider that you may be wrong is the very soul of tolerance.

4) The size of the crowd or the amount of money presented to a candidate or party has nothing to do with the value of their ideas. If we have learned any social lesson in the last fifty years it is that protest and counterprotest with the winner being the group with the largest crowd or the loudest voice hasn't enhanced understanding or social progress all that much. We should not be sold candidates; nor should we buy them: We should choose them.

Finally, if adherence to the above guidelines leaves you with what appears to be no suitable candidates, bite your tongue and vote for the best of a bad lot. Voting is an obligation, not just a possibility.

Letters to the editor

Against coal plant

Editor:

It has come to my attention recently that the building of a 425 MW coal-fired power plant may be approved for Manistee within the next few weeks. It is well known that most of the air pollution along the west Michigan coastline and most of the mercury in the Great Lakes comes from coal-fired power plants operating in Indiana and Chicago. Another one polluting closer to home would affect the quality of life for everyone upwind and downwind.

According to a grass-roots group in Manistee, "Citizens for Responsible Development", the proposed coal facility is estimated to release over 200 more pounds of mercury per year into the air. Mercury can travel up to 600 miles from the power plant, but also creates a "hot spot" of mercury close to the plant. Michigan is second to Indiana in being the state most contaminated with mercury in the U.S.

Mercury is known neurotoxin. Fetuses, infants, children and wildlife are particularly susceptible to mercury poisoning, but there are adverse affects in adults as well. Most mercury exposure comes from eating contaminated fish. We already have Mercury Fish Advisories. Although there would be some smog and acid rain creating emissions (sulfur and nitrous oxides) and particulates that aggravate asthma and lung problems released from a coal fired power plant, mercury emissions are of particular concern because they are currently not regulated. The EPA under the Bush administration is proposing to roll back regulations and loosen the environmental protections currently in effect to allow for more coal-fired power plants to be built cheaply.

I encourage people and organizations in this area to write letters to your representatives, and get involved and support this group's efforts. Contact them through their web site at www.manisteefrd.org.

No Wal-Mart

Editor:

Wal-Mart in Charlevoix: "Just say no."

We do not need a Wal-Mart in Charlevoix. If "buying cheap" is the only thing that matters to you, drive to Petoskey.

Wal-Mart will do more harm than good. Do your homework. If you explore Wal-Mart's business practices, you could not possibly want this for our town. (I read "How Wal-Mart is Destroying America" by Bill Quinn. There are also numerous web sites.)

More jobs are lost than gained when Wal-Mart comes to town. Wal-Mart does not provide new job reallotment or job loss. Many of the Wal-Mart jobs are part-time and low paying, without benefits such as health insurance. A recent episode of "NOW" with Bill Moyers showed how the local burden of providing health-related costs increases when Wal-Mart comes to town.

The Carters grocery store in Petoskey closed because of Wal-Mart. Charlevoix's existing businesses will lose if Wal-Mart opens. What will happen to other retailers, optometrists, hardware and grocery stores, garden supplies, building materials and others? These are our neighbors. Wal-Mart is "big business." We do not need this "big box" in our community. Let's not give up our town. Wal-Mart is a mammoth organization. Wal-Mart equals greed.

What will Wal-Mart really give to our community? Is it worth the trade-offs?

Stop this predator. Sign a petition. Let the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission and Board of Trustees know you do not want Wal-Mart.

Keep the little bounding, cost-cutting smiley face out of Charlevoix. Keep Charlevoix Beautiful. Keep Wal-Mart out.

Hunting

Editor:

Ever wonder why hunters carry loaded weapons? I celebrate the joy of the hunt and the intent to kill.

No longer do I hide behind the "good," but not right reasons we hunt.

Good Reasons — Reduce the so-called herd, male bonding at the deer camp, the mystick of the deer camp, enjoyment of the out of doors, father/son bonding away from the family unit, back to nature, man the mighty provider of meat for the family, safe and proper use of firearms, keep deer from starving in the dead of winter (dead dear don't get hungry), need for farmers to make ends meet by selling low grade produce as deer feed, Cabellos would go out of business and I have stock in that outfit, deer would be pests on the Highway and cause problems for retired folks in the Buick sedans.

You readers can fill in the rest of the "good" reasons (excuses) your hunting friends have made for hoisting the old rifle and heading out to the camp.

Now for the right reason and the only right reasons.

Hint 2) What makes hunting fun? Hey! Why is the gun loaded. The possibility of a kill!

So, I make full confession and a rousing cheer.

Hunt! Hunt, hunt for killing is fun!

Make lifestyle changes for 2004

The U.S. Surgeon General reports that at least three out of five Americans do not engage in the recommended amount of physical activity necessary for good health.

In 2002, a lack of physical activity cost Michigan residents nearly $8.9 billion in health care payments stemming from diseases associated with obesity and heart disease. For both quality of life and health care costs, every bit of physical activity counts.

"Take small steps and set attainable goals to start and sustain a healthier lifestyle in the New Year," Dr. Tom Simmer, Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan corporate medical director, said. "As difficult as it is to start good exercise and eating habits, it's even harder to continue after the newness wears off. The good news is that small challenges help to get and keep you going."

For example, Dr. Simmer recommends starting with a 10 to 15 minute walk three times a week with a goal of increasing to 30 to 45 minutes, five days a week.

He then says to reward yourself as you make progress and to help keep yourself on task. An effective reward is something desirable and timely like treating yourself to a movie, buying a CD or relaxing with a good book.

"Small rewards associated with smaller goals are more successful than larger rewards that require an extended, complicated effort,"Simmer said.

Here are additional tips for a successful year of activity:

- Look for group activities to jump-start your interest, such as local fitness walks.
- When you're up to 30 minutes of moderate aerobic activity (walking, jogging and swimming) several times a week, you can add a few minutes of weight and resistance training to your workout for optimal health benefits.
- Be sure to warm up before activity and stretch your muscles after.

Everyone can benefit from a variety of physical activities, ranging from sports to everyday household chores.

Before starting your program, though, be sure to consult with your doctor about the types that will benefit you the most.

Seidels protect their land with the help of conservancy

Three years ago, after more than 20 years of service in the U.S. Army, Joe Seidel and his wife, Gail, returned to semi-retire on Joe's 250-acre family farm near Charlevoix.

Upon their arrival, they discovered that the farm was included in a proposed development extending from the brand new high school built off of Marion Center Road.

"I knew I had to come up with my own plan if I wanted to save our farmland," Joe said. "Land conservation became my plan."

One of Joe's most immediate tactics was to help his neighbors, the Martincheks, understand what might be possible for their land which was first in line for development if a controversial sewer expansion from the site of the new Charlevoix High School became a reality. One day, Joe printed out a page from the Little Traverse Conservancy web site, walked out to where Joe Martinchek was plowing a field and handed him the page.

Joe Martinchek contacted the conservancy staff to learn more. Soon, as the local township and many landowners expressed clear intentions to keep the area in rural agriculture rather than growing sprawl, a natural partnership took shape.

Last spring, the Martincheks finalized the sale of development rights from their 225-acre farm to the Little Traverse Conservancy.

"We not only have Joe Seidel to thank for instigating this land conservation, but the Seidels also put forth a challenge grant to inspire fund-raising for that project," said Ty Ratliff, land protection specialist for the conservancy. "Joe is a quiet crusader. He is modest, straightforward, and community oriented. When we first met to go over conservation options for his own land, he shook my hand and said, 'My land will one day be forever preserved. I assure you of that.'"

And not missing a beat, this fall Joe and Gail Seidel donated a conservation easement on their own 250-acre property which lies immediately east of the Martinchek property. In their conservation easement, the Seidels have retained no division or development rights for the future, a tremendous gesture considering the size and development potential of the land.

When asked where his land ethic came from, Joe Seidel notes that his parents, Francis and Isabelle Seidel moved to Charlevoix in 1954, when they purchased 180 acres to begin to make a living by farming. Through dairy and mixed crops, the Seidels worked the land for several years. Joe was also an eagle scout as a young man.

"Gail and I had hoped, and still hope to get involved in some form of 'value-added' agriculture," Joe said.

A conservation easement is a legal agreement between a landowner and the Conservancy which allows the landowner to permanently protect the natural and scenic resources of their land while retaining ownership and control.

Easement terms typically restrict future development on the land, but are tailored to fit each property and the owner's conservation needs. Properties protected with a conservation easement are privately owned and not open to the public.

Possible tax advantages may help offset the cost of donating a conservation easement. For more information on how a conservation easement works, please contact the Conservancy office at (231) 347-0991.

The Little Traverse Conservancy was established in 1972 as a non-profit land conservation organization working in five counties: Emmet, Cheboygan, Charlevoix, Chippewa, and Mackinac. Its mission is to protect the natural diversity and beauty of northern Michigan by preserving significant land and scenic areas, and fostering appreciation and understanding of the environment. With the support of more than 4,100 members, it has worked with landowners to protect more than 20,000 acres of land with more than 60 miles of shoreline along northern Michigan's streams, rivers, and lakes.

HOW TO KILL A BUSINESS
... in ten easy steps

1. Don't Advertise
Just pretend everybody knows what you have to offer.
2. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself you just don't have time to spend thinking about promoting your business.
3. Don't Advertise
Just assume everybody knows what you sell.
4. Don't Advertise
Convince yourself that you've been in business so long customers will automatically come to you.
5. Don't Advertise
Forget that there are new potential customers who would do business with you if they were reminded.
6. Don't Advertise
Forget that you have competition trying to attract your customers away from you.
7. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself it costs too much to advertise and that you don't get enough out of it.
8. Don't Advertise
Overlook the fact that advertising is an investment in selling ... not an expense.
9. Don't Advertise
Be sure not to provide an adequate advertising budget for your business.
10. Don't Advertise
Forget that you have to keep reminding your established customers that you appreciate their business.

Women's center to host parenting workshop

A new parenting workshop, based on the best selling book, Siblings Without Rivalry will start Wednesday, Jan. 21, from 6:30-8 p.m at the Women's Resource Center, 423 Porter Street, Petoskey.

They will find out how to deal with their children's negative feelings toward each other; how to treat their children unequally and still be fair; how to free their children from harmful roles such as "bully" or "victim" and how to respond helpfully when their children fight.

Parents will also learn how to resolve conflicts peacefully and promote a family atmosphere of cooperation rather than competition.

The six-session workshop is sponsored by the Women's Resource Center and will be led by Joann F. Townsend, ACSW.

The cost of the workshop is $80 per person or $85 per couple, materials included.

If you are currently receiving Medicaid, daycare assistance or the Food Assistance Program from FIA, you may be eligible to receive a scholarship for this class.

Please contact your worker for more information. Dates of the sessions are Wednesday, Jan. 21, 28, Feb. 4, 11,18 and 25. Certificates of completion will be awarded at the conclusion of the program.

You must be able to provide proof of previous completion of the How to Talk So Kids Will Listen course at the WRC or elsewhere. Advance registration and payment is required space is limited.

Hundreds of thousands of parents and professionals have already benefited from the Siblings Without Rivalry workshop created by authors Adele Faber and Elaine Mazlish.

According to Missouri Clinical Social Worker Barbara Fousec, the Siblings Without Rivalry program is a "a double blessing! Group members not only reported much less quarreling and quibbling among their children, but several parents went back to their own families to resolve old rivalries."

To register, please call the Women's Resource Center at (231) 347-0067.

Mary Ellen Bemus: Died Dec. 29, 2003

Mary Ellen Bemus, 73, died Dec. 29, 2003.

She was the mother of Michael, Lyn McDonald (fiancé Nelson Maylone), David (Dawn) and Diane. Grandmother of Matthew, Nicholas, Kelsey, Chandos, Garrett and Dylan. Sister of Patrick and Richard Welch.

The family will receive friends after 9 a.m. on Saturday, Jan. 10 at A.J. Desmond & Sons (Vasu, Rodgers & Connell Chapel), 32515 Woodward (between 13-14 Mile), Royal Oak.

In lieu of flowers family suggests memorial tributes to the charity of donor's choice.

Katherine C. Webster: Nov. 8, 1917 - Dec. 28, 2003

Katherine C. Webster, 86, of Petoskey and formerly of Charlevoix, died Sunday, Dec. 28, 2003, at her home in Petoskey.

She was born Nov.18, 1917, in Columbus, Wis., the daughter of William and Barbara (Burkhart) Lueders. She married George L. Webster and made her home in Toledo for over 30 years.

George preceded her in death in 1973 and Katherine moved to northern Michigan in 1980.

She always loved and cared for all kinds of animals, taught ceramics for many years and loved working in the garden.

Katherine especially loved her grandchildren.

She is survived by her son, William D. (Bonnie J.) Webster of Petoskey; daughters, Georgia J. (Michael Shaughnessy) Owen of Toronto, Ontario, Marye (Ray) Kress of Transfer, Pa.; grandchildren, Gina, Jennica, Cody, Terry, John, Justin and Seth.

Katherine was also preceded in death by her daughter, Judith.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Bergmann Center, P.O. Box 235, Charlevoix, MI 49720. Interment will take place at Toledo Memorial Park in Sylvania, Ohio.

Robbie Lee Changa: May 10, 1925 - Dec. 30, 2003

Robbie Lee Chanda, 78, of Owosso, formerly of Murray, Ky., passed away Dec. 30, 2003 in Owosso.

Mrs. Chanda worked production for Midland Steel, Detroit and Murray Body and then in the housekeeping department at Memorial Healthcare Center.

A funeral service was on Jan. 2, at the Salem Lutheran Church in Owosso, with Pastor James Bare Officiating. Burial was in Wildwood Cemetery in Chesaning.

Robbie was born May 10, 1925 in Murray, Ky., the daughter of Carlos and Lular (Grey) Crouse.

On May 10, 1947 she married William A. Chanda. She was a member of the Salem Lutheran Church and she loved to read her Bible and listen to Family Life Radio. She had great love for her family and each member was her pride and joy.

Survivors include her husband William, daughters, Donna Donaldson and Deborah Reynolds both of Owosso; a son, Jerry (Lori) Martin of Lapeer; eight grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren; brother Joseph (Pauline) Crouse of Hazel Park.

She was predeceased by her parents, brothers and sisters, Allie Peal, Raymond Crouse, Coleman Crouse, Elizabeth Crouse, Bill Crouse, Bonnie Schroeder, a stillborn brother and a grandson-in-law, David Green.

Memorial contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society

Online condolences may be sent to the family at www.nelson-house.com.

Brides-to-be get ideas at country club's fair

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

A trumpeter plays the traditional wedding march as a sea of guests turn to see a woman in a flowing white gown, holding a fresh bouquet of flowers, slowly make her way down the aisle.

Many have seen this flawless wedding scene first hand on more than one occasion. Because it is generally orchestrated without a snag, most wedding guests take for granted the grueling planning that goes into pulling the day off.

Over the weekend, frenzied, excited brides-to-be flocked to the Charlevoix Country Club in search of what could be a piece in their wedding day puzzle.

They were in town for the First Annual Bridal Fair that took place Jan. 3 at the club. The event was the brain child of club co-owner Nicki Thomas and her staff.

Diana Baten, Charlevoix Country Club's food and beverage director, said Thomas thought the event would be great exposure for the club, where the public is welcome to host weddings, and for area vendors who can offer support services.

Baten said Thomas was right — the afternoon was a hit. Hundreds of guests attended including brides and grooms-to-be and their attendants and family members. At the fair they visited booths set up by 29 vendors from around the area sampling cakes, listening to DJs and musicians and perusing choices in candles, tents, clothing and photography.

Jenni Swenor, 25, in the thick of planning her big day, said the event was helpful.

"It is so hard to be in Columbus (Ohio) and try to plan everything for up here," she said.

Jenni is set on having her wedding in Charlevoix, her hometown, but the who, what and where are still up in the air.

Her mother and father, Dick and Pam Swenor, live in town but Jenni wants to have a hand in making big decisions like where her wedding will be and who will take the photos, make her cake and meet her floral needs.

"I have all the ideas in my head; I just have to find what I need," Jenni said.

She was home for the holidays, scrambling to learn everything about wedding services in the area in just two weeks. She said last weekend's bridal fair brought some answers.

"I never thought it would be this challenging. It's kind of frustrating at times," Jenni said.

Event coordinator Kris Rundblad, owner of MerryMakers in Charlevoix who was a vendor at the fair, said she has had many brides just like Jenni walk through her door in her 10 years in the industry.

Rundblad said she has just one piece of advice for these brides, "Enjoy the trip."

So how is Jenni supposed to enjoy the next seven months leading up to her August wedding with long distance planning weighing her down?

Rundblad suggests that Jenni and every bride explore their options until they find the service that matches their dream.

"It (your wedding day) should be about what they want. It should bear their personality, their signature," she said.

Jenni's choice to keep her wedding in Charlevoix is a choice Rundblad said many local and out-of-town brides make.

"It's (Charlevoix) a little bit of heaven. It's great for people who live here to have their wedding here because it's part of who they are. For resorters it's a vacation spot. Guests can be entertained boating, shopping, dining — it's just so fun. That's why people do it," Rundblad said.

Friends of the Library to host Knutson

The Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library will hold its annual meeting at 7 p.m. on Monday, Jan. 12, in the basement of the library at 109 Clinton Street.

Roger Knutson

Roger Knutson will give a humorous account of how his first book, "Flattened Fauna," was published. Knutson is the 2002 recipient of the first place award for "Local Columnist" by the Michigan Press Association and will be introduced by Jeremy McBain, editor of the Charlevoix Courier. A short meeting to elect officers and to hear an update on the library building project will precede the guest speaker.

The public is invited to attend. For further information call the library at 547-2651.

BUSINESS

Michigan Officeways has new location, owners

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix's Michigan Officeways has new owners and a new location.

As of Oct. 1, the long-time local company has been run by Dave Kurchinski, Pat Price and George Grundner — who have many years of combined experience in the office supply business. Kurchinski and Price used to be an employees of the company when it was owned by the Mielke family.

"Basically we wanted to own our own company," Kurchinski said of the decision to buy Michigan Officeways. "It made sense to buy a local company."

After buying the business, Kurchinski said they decided to move it from the Charlevoix Industrial Park to its current location at 06777 South US-31, just north of the McKeown Ford Dealership.

"It gives us better exposure. The economies made sense and the facility just worked for us," he said.

In addition to the new owners and location, Michigan Officeways has also added to its services. Besides selling all sorts of office supplies, the company also is a complete machine dealer (such as copier machines). It is the only equipment dealer in Charlevoix county and the exclusive Panasonic dealer for northern Michigan.

Michigan Officeways has locations in Charlevoix — its head office — Roscommon, Traverse City and Gaylord. Customers can also order supplies off of the internet at www.michiganofficeways.com.

There are plans to expand the Charlevoix location to include a showroom.

Kurchinski said since he and his partners have taken over the business, sales have been good.

"It is double what we expected in some cases," he said.

Besides its web-site, Michigan Officeways can be contacted by calling (231) 547-6891, faxing (231) 547-0200 or e-mailing info@michiganofficeways.com.

Just Ask!

It's a pretty bold statement, considering we don't even know the question yet. Northwestern Bank is locally owned and each office is locally staffed and managed. Decisions are made right here by people with the answers, who are empowered to do what needs to be done. The person you ask is the person who'll make sure it happens.

You'll never get answers like, "That's not my department." Or, "You'll have to call this 800 number." When you ask anyone at Northwestern Bank, big things happen right away.

If your bank "can't do that," maybe it's time you found one that can.

Planning commissioners to hire attorney

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The city planning commission is crafting its battle plan.

Planning Commission Chairman Dennis Kusina has called for a special meeting to take place at 2 p.m. today, Jan. 7, in the Coast Guard training room located at 109 Bridge Park Drive.

At the meeting the commission will discuss hiring an attorney to represent Kusina and four of his fellow commissioners, John Campbell, Francis "Brownie" Flanders, Steve Bennett and Richard Hodgson, as they begin the fight to keep their commission seats.

"We obviously need some legal council here," Hodgson said.

Last week Mayor Gabe Campbell sent each of the five commissioners a letter formally spelling out the charges against them that prompted him to unseat them.

These charges include neglect of duty and inefficiency.

Mayor Campbell's decision stemmed from the commission's Dec. 8 meeting when those five members made the controversial decision to set a public hearing to listen to a special use permit request for Sunnybank Retirement Community, an assisted living facility.

The proposed facility would be located on a two-acre parcel on Charlevoix's north side, off Petoskey Avenue, in the R-2 single family residential district.

This decision went against city council's Nov. 17 majority vote not to set a public hearing to discuss a zoning amendment to allow this type of facility as a special use in the R-1 and R-2 districts.

On Dec. 15, Mayor Campbell cited the city code when he announced his decision at a city council meeting.

The code allows the appointing authority, the mayor, to remove a commissioner with cause.

After they received the letter Jan. 2 they were given the option to appeal that decision in a open or closed hearing.

All five will appeal at hearings scheduled to take place at 6 p.m., Jan. 16 in the Coast Guard training room.

The commission's selected attorney will be there to represent them.

City manager Mike Wiesner said he does not know whether or not the costs of this attorney will be covered by the city.

Bennett said he doesn't know whether the attorney to be appointed today is also being hired on to file a lawsuit against city council for the mayor's actions.

Hodgson said this will likely be a matter of discussion at this afternoon's meeting.

The results of the meeting were not available by press time.

Power squadron celebrates 90 years

In 2004, the Tip of the Mitt Power Squadron will be celebrating 90 years of service by the United States Power Squadrons.

Tip of the Mitt Power Squadron will be installing Commander Carolyn Wiebe at its Change of Watch at the Argonne Supper Club in Charlevoix on Jan. 21.

Representatives from the United States Coast Guard and the Coast Guard Auxiliary are expected to attend.

Chartered in January of 2003, Tip of the Mitt Power Squadron is a relative newcomer to the area. However, they held safe boating classes in Charlevoix, Petoskey and Gaylord in 2003. Those interested in safe boating, charting or global positioning classes and complimentary vessel safety checks may contact the Tip of the Mitt Power Squadron at (231) 237-9414, (989) 939-8446, (231) 526-9391 or www.usps.org/localusps/tipofthemitt.

Best known for the hundreds of public boating courses which local squadrons offer several times each year to approximately 40,000 men, women, and youngsters, it is American's largest and oldest nonprofit recreational boating organization, will celebrate its ninetieth Anniversary in 2004.

Since it was founded at the Boston Yacht Club in 1912 and chartered as a national organization at the New York Yacht Club in 1914, it has grown to include more than 60,000 members in some 450 squadrons in the United States, Puerto Rico, the US Virgin Islands and Virgin Islands and Japan.

The group also assisted in the formation of the Canadian Sail and Power Squadrons which has 35,000 members. Boat ownership is not a requirement of membership and power squadron member vessels include sail, power, personal watercraft, kayaks, canoes and inflatables.

Because boat owners are responsible for the safety of their own vessel as well as the safety of their passengers, it began a joint effort three years ago with the Coast Guard Auxilary to conduct courtesy boat examinations at public piers and marinas to verify the presence and operable condition of certain safety equipment required by state and federal regulations.

Many trailerable boats can be inspected in 10 minutes and all boaters receive a copy of the evaluation form at the end of the inspection. Boats that meet safety requirements receive a vessel safety check decal to be displayed onboard.

Of the more than 55,000 boats that were inspected since the joint program began, 21 percent did not meet the requirements to be classified as a safe boat.

While there are no penalties for not successfully completing a vessel safety check, the program may prevent many boating accidents by making the boat owner aware of potential safety hazards.

There are benefits of being a power squadron member that go beyond boating education, camaraderie and civic service opportunities.

Members enjoy a variety of member-only benefits such as special towing and marine store discounts, branded-credit card and discounted travel opportunities. Not only is the organization's member-only boat insurance program competitively priced, its premium rate structure reflects the organization's history of being safe boaters.

Members who have shopped around say they've found that the power squadron boat insurance program is less expensive than other insurance programs.

While the goal of the group has always been to promote public boating safety, produce exceptional member courses and provide opportunities for camaraderie among its members, power squadron is poised for growth in the coming years by keeping its pulse on the ever changing wants and needs of the boating public.

Work to start soon on Appletree building

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Following some planning delays, construction will start soon at the Appletree development site off Bridge Street.

The site proposed for a three-story retail and residential building is located at 224 Bridge Street.

Developers Scott Zagers and Jerry Rutter of Elk Rapids were looking to break ground in November, but ran into some planning issues that have taken longer than expected.

Zagers said they are currently waiting on final construction bids for the foundation of the building.

He explained that the project's underground parking requires some excavation that will take place about four feet from the buildings on either side of the site. He said the soils won't hold themselves up during this excavation process so retaining walls need to be built before the digging starts.

"We have to make sure our neighbors will be safe," he said.

Engineers for the project with Performance Engineering of Charlevoix said there are three safe ways to make sure the foundation will hold and the other two buildings won't be damaged.

Zagers and Rutter have asked for bids to approach the foundation in each way the engineers outlined. Zagers said they plan to choose the safest and most cost effective method.

This also requires three different project blueprints be drafted based on different foundations methods and that takes time.

"I'm desperate to break ground, but the financing won't go through until I have that number (cost for the foundation)," Zagers said.

He is expecting to have the foundation numbers back by Friday, Jan. 9. Once one of the three methods is chosen the full project will be ready for financing review by the bank which will likely happen at the beginning of next week.

Then, Zagers and Rutter will wait for a letter of commitment from the bank to start digging.

"Once we get the (commitment) letter from them, then we'll pull the trigger," Zagers said.

Zagers estimated breaking ground on the project in the next two to three weeks.

They are hoping to have the building complete and ready for occupancy by September or sooner. The retail area of the development which will be located on the main level off Bridge Street, is expected to be ready by May or June.

But Zagers said all of this depends on weather and the cold temperatures predicted for the next couple of weeks won't make it easy.

He said the old Earl Young building that still sits on the site is helping keep the ground from

Winter returns to Charlevoix

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

While it got a little warm around Charlevoix last week, winter weather has returned to the area.

According to Jeff Zoltowski, meteorologist at the National Weather Service, a warm weather pattern stuck over the area for the last few weeks keep the cold and snow that normally comes to the area during December and January at hay.

But, Zotowski said this week we are going, and have, seen a change.

For the rest of this week, the weather will be cold and snowy, with temperatures struggling to get out of the teens, he said.

This is perfect news for many Charlevoix people who make a living off of winter.

John Fiedoreck, owner of the Flight Deck bar, business has heen slow due to a lack of snow and snowmohilers for the last week weeks.

"We just don't have the snowmobile traffic," he said.

The wintery weather also was great news for Ike Boss, Charlevoix City recreation director, when it comes to Mount McSauha's ski hill.

Boss said Monday, as the snow started falling along with the temperatures, things are going great at the hill now. He said the hill had a hig day on Sunday and are expecting to get the back hill open hy this weekend.

But, he said due to the warm weather, and even rain, last week, Mount McSauha had to close on one day.

As for the rest of the winter, Zoltowski said we can expect temperatures that are a little warmer than usual, but precipitation that is normal.

"This doesn't include the occasional arctic outbreak," he said.

Normal temperatures during the winter months for Charlevoix are in the mid-20s to the lower to mid-teens.

Normal precipitation (snowfall) for the Charlevoix area is 82 to 100 inches of snow through the course of the winter.

freezing. But he said the cement for the foundation will still need to he mixed with a special ingredient so it will cure properly in subzero weather.

While the Young building will be there long enough to just keep the site warm, many residents fought for months to save the building.

Zagers said the opposition to the demolition of the building, which some argued has historic value, did not slow the project dramatically; project planning was more a factor.

"Projects like this don't just happen that fast. We have to make sure our 'Ts' are crossed and 'Is' are dotted," he said.

He added that he and Rutter were happy to work to find a way to save the building. However, in the end, it was found that the Young huilding could not be moved without crumbling.

So two second home owners in Charlevoix, Steven and Annemarie Roby of Farmington Hills, plan to do the next best thing — save its appearance. Once demolition of the building begins, the Robys plan to salvage much of its materials to recreate part of the building on their Auld Street property here in Charlevoix.

Police department hires part-time officer

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

A new part-time police officer is patrolling the streets of Charlevoix.

Matt Mikulski, 24, was hired to fill a position with the city of Charlevoix Police Department.

Mikulski graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1998. After graduation he studied to be a conservation officer at Lake Superior State University in Sault Saint Marie. He soon found out that only about five conservation officers are hired in the state each year.

This lack of job opportunities coupled with intriguing internships he had with the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department and the state police post in Sault Saint Marie changed his focus to law enforcement.

"I knew I would have more interaction with people," he said.

He went on to graduate from Lake State in 2002 with a bachelor's degree in criminal justice. And then completed certification courses at the university's police academy in June of 2003.

He was given until this spring to activate his certification by working in law enforcement or he would be required to take a refresher course at the academy.

Mikulski said finding his first job in law enforcement in his hometown, Charlevoix, was the perfect fit.

He started in early November doing field training with veteran officer Scott Hankins.

The new young patrolman was welcomed with anything but open arms. He said when he and Hankins were out enforcing the seat belt law more than a couple of people Mikulski ticketed doled out a ration of profanities.

"They just cut loose on me," he said.

Mikulski said this was unexpected for seat belt types of traffic offenses, but it's all part of the job.

As of last week Mikulski started patrolling on his own. Residents may get to meet him on Fridays when he works days and nights or Saturdays when he is on the night shift.

City police chief Dennis Halverson said, "So far so good. He has local knowledge of the streets and some of the people he will be working with."

But because the joh is part-time and Mikulski is marketable for a full-time position Halverson said he doesn't know how long Charlevoix will be able to keep him.

Mikulski said he would like to be in Charlevoix, but a full-time position won't likely open up for another two years and he needs benefits. He has his resume in with the City of Petoskey Police Department and may look into studying to join the state troopers.

How to keep those new year's resolutions

By B. JON GOHS
Special to the Courier

> "We need to fight against all those cookies that are being shoved at us around the holidays."
> Candy Smith,
> Manager of Harbor Health and Fitness

It's 12:01 a.m., Jan. 1, 2004, do you know where your resolutions are?

Each year whether by exercise, fiscal responsibility, smoking cessation, stress reduction or further education, millions of Americans resolve to better themselves.

Despite these findings, some gym owners see a significant increase in business in the post-holiday season.

Candy Smith, a personal trainer, aerobics instructor and manager of Harbor Health and Fitness of Charlevoix, said, "We see a decrease in business right before and around the holidays as people get busy with the holidays."

She added business picks up in the first part of January.

"We need to fight against all those cookies that are being shoved at us around the holidays," she said.

To help you meet your workout goals, Smith suggested people work out with a friend and stay consistent with their exercise.

Another worry people have is their financial situation. A worry that in some cases seems to turn into a resolution to do better.

Investment representative Derek Chowen with Edward Jones Investments in Charlevoix, said, "We see an increase in people investing around the first of the year."

According to Chowen, people tend to look at their existing portfolios and add stocks at this time more than the rest of the year.

Fiscal responsibility is an area of improvement, it would seem, that gets better with aging.

"Start saving early in life, that is the biggest thing," Chowen said.

Everywhere you look today you see signs forbidding smoking. Anti-smoking commercials flood the television and radio and with the advent of cigarette-pack sized flyers, your mailbox too may no longer be safe.

With the seeming endless flow of anti-smoking advertising, nicotine gum and prescription drug therapies, Michelle Potter, director of smoking cessation classes at Charlevoix Area Hospital said people still choose the new year as a time to quit smoking.

"In three years, I have seen the class size drop slightly, but there are still many people signing up," Potter said. "They aren't all trying to quit for the obvious reasons — money or health. I see more people coming in wanting to quit for social reasons more than anything else. They see that they are the minority and many of them want to gain control over their life."

Potter added, "Always be on top of your cravings. Those who are addicted should know that one cigarette can take them back to being a smoker."

Potters first class of the new year begins at 7:30 p.m., Jan. 8 at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Stress and anxiety from holiday shopping and visiting relatives is enough to drive most people to a nervous breakdown. Add cold weather and a lack of sunshine into the mix and its apropos that the pre-and post-holiday season is a time when many of us begin to think about stress reduction.

Josie Wardin, massage therapist and the co-owner of J. Marie Salon in Charlevoix, said, "I've seen an increase in the number of gift certificates people are buying around the holidays."

Once people come in and see how relaxing a massager can be they tend to come back, Wardin said.

Wardin recommends "hot stone" massage as a unique way to soothe away the cold. According to Wardin, having your body massaged with heated stones is an invigorating way to spend a half-hour.

"People also get a lot of achy bones and muscles in winter," Wardin said.

Charles MacInnes, the coordinator of public relations at North Central Michigan College (NCMC) said education may be a priority in the new year.

"Our numbers are strong into January. We do anticipate that some kids might come back to NCMC, some from other schools, for a variety of different reasons. It's a good way to start the new year and keep their brains active through the winter months," MacInnis said.

From outdoor literature to weightlifting, "We have a whole raft of fun classes for people who want to expand their minds a bit," MacInnis said. "There is something for everyone."

According to MacInnis, people seem to stick to resolutions they find enjoyable.

For more information on NCMC, see its web site at www.ncmc.cc.mi.us.

"Everyone and all ages should keep the mind active. It's just like any other muscle; it benefits from exercise," he said.

Federal conservation funding grants available

The U.S. Department of the Interior's Fish and Wildlife Service announced recently it is seeking proposals for private lands conservation funding through its Private Stewardship Grants Program.

About $7.1 million is available to support on-the-ground conservation efforts on private lands through this grant.

As envisioned by President George Bush, this program provides federal grants on a competitive basis to individuals and groups engaged in voluntary conservation efforts on private lands that benefit imperiled species including federally-listed endangered or threatened species as well as proposed, candidate and other "at-risk" species.

Landowners and their partners may submit proposals directly to the service for funding to support those efforts.

In May 2003, the service awarded 113 grants totaling more than $9.4 million to individuals and groups to undertake conservation projects for endangered, threatened and other at-risk species on private lands in 43 states.

The following are examples of how these grants support private conservation efforts and foster the development of voluntary partnerships:

- Using its $100,000 Private Stewardship Grant, Idaho's Friends of the Teton River partnered with The Donald C. Brace Foundation, The Arthur B. Schultz Foundation, The Upper Snake River Fly Fishers Foundation, The Five Star Challenge Grant, the One Fly Foundation, and the Peninsula Community Foundation to help restore Teton River fish habitat. To date, three projects that are part of the group's Yellowstone Cutthroat Trout Habitat Restoration Project have begun on private lands to stabilize and revegetate the river's streambanks. Volunteers, such as teacher Barb Agnew and her Tetonia fourth grade class, have planted willow trees. Wetland sod planted with native sedges and grasses will be placed over erosion control matting and all previously disturbed areas are to be seeded with native grasses next summer.
- Umikoa Ranch on the Big Island of Hawaii received a $127,700 Private Stewardship Grant and quickly implemented a program to protect endangered species by improving habitat while reducing threats posed by invasive species. The private landowners constructed a pond to benefit endangered wildlife; installed an ungulate exclusion fence to protect 50 acres of land to benefit endangered plants and enhance native habitat; and plan to eliminate invasive species within special management areas. The endangered Hawaiian Duck has been sighted on ranch lands and the project is located within the historic range of numerous other listed species such as the Hawaii Creeper and the Hawaiian Hawk. In addition, ALU LIKE Inc., a nonprofit organization, will plant native species to help landowners improve the habitat's diversity and health.

For more information regarding this grant opportunity and on how and where to submit proposals, please visit the Service's Private Stewardship Grants web site at endangered.fws.gov/grants/private_stewardship.html.

Wrestling team does well in invitational

Charlevoix Rayder wrestling team competed at the Frankfort Invitational Saturday, Jan. 3.

The team placed third out of 10 teams with less than 20 points separating the top three teams.

"Freshman Pat Russell, Nick Gotshall, Jacob Wimmer, and Zach Scharenbroch and Junior Jaimen Waha, who stepped up from his usual 160 weight class to fill our vacant 189 weight class, all helped the team by adding valuable points," Coach Craig Golovich said.

The match of the day for the team was between Sophomore Jeff Golovich and Kyle Denny of Kingsley. Denny was the opponent to beat at the 171 level having been a qualifier for state in Florida last year and was undefeated this year for Kingsley.

Other places for the day were Nathaniel Sotuyo, Jed Daman and Scott Sladek for first place.

Tony Kiernan and Matt Novotny placed third.

Shannon Gillespie, Travis Burke and Jacob Wimmer were in fourth place.

Charlevoix will host Petoskey and Gaylord at 6 p.m., Thursday, Jan. 8.

Hockey team looking good in area tournys

Boyne Area Hockey's Paul Bunyan Lane Midgets continue to play good hockey and be very competitive.

The team played in the St Ignace Invitational Midget tournament on Dec. 26 and 27.

The first game against the Soo BB team ended in a 2-3 loss for Boyne.

Later in the day, the team regrouped and smashed the Soo's B team 8-0.

Looze tallied a hat trick with three goals, Eli Barsy scored two, Dylan Clark, Stephen Cahoon and Scarbrough each added one goal. Gabe Korthase, William Brown and Clark gave assists.

Josh Aown and Looze had two each, while Ryan Fields and Scarbrough earned playmakers with three assists.

Bobby Courtright was in goal both games.

The third game was with St. Ignace and went scoreless until late in the third period when Boyne's Russell Williams hit the net with a pass from Keller and Barsy. Netminder Courtright earned the shutout turning away all 29 shots on goal.

In the final game with Newberry, the score seesawed until Newberry scored with under two minutes left to win 5-6.

Williams, Barsy and Scarbrough scored and Looze put in two. Justin Conklin and Scarbrough gave two assists. Clark, Barsy and Looze, one each. Courtright was again between the pipes.

On Jan. 4 the team hosted Mackinaw City. Williams scored twice, Cody Webster and Looze added one each in the 4-4 win.

Cahoon, Aown, Barsy and Fields gave the assists. Courtright was in net.

Stay safe and warm this winter

Michigan residents may be more than accustomed to cold weather, but before enjoying outdoor winter activities, it's always a good idea to review how to dress for optimal warmth.

In cold weather, about 60 percent of a person's body fuel is used to heat the body, according to the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports.

When exposed to frigid temperatures for an extended period of time, a person will tire easily and any skin exposed to the elements for too long is at risk for frostbite.

Children are especially vulnerable to frostbite because they lose heat from their skin more rapidly than do adults. They also may be less inclined to leave their winter fun behind to go inside and warm up.

Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan corporate medical director Dr. Tom Simmer said that wind chill, low temperatures and high winds are main contributors to rapid heat loss.

"There's no reason why you can't enjoy the long winter months, as long as you guard yourself against the harsh elements," Simmer said. "Dressing in layers and keeping the body dry will help you successfully combat the cold weather."

Dr. Simmer also recommends the following tips to keep you safe, warm and dry while enjoying Michigan's winter wonderland:

- Dress in layers so the body can adjust to changing conditions.
- Wear a hat that covers your ears. Most of your body heat is lost through the head.
- Get out of wet clothing immediately and warm the body with warm fluids (e.g. soup or hot cider) and a blanket. Avoid drinking alcohol or caffeine drinks, which can cause dehydration.
- Wear waterproof, insulated boots to help avoid hypothermia or frostbite by keeping your feet warm and dry. Boots also help you to maintain your footing in ice and snow.
- Wear mittens, they provide more warmth to your hands than gloves.

Be sure to take regular breaks from the outdoor elements. Go inside, have a cup of cocoa and make sure you dry off if you're sweating from physical activity.

Chamber to have its annual dinner, meeting

Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce to host its 46th Annual Membership Dinner and Meeting.

There are two hearings scheduled to finalize the foreclosure process. This publication is intended to provide additional notice to parties of interest in these parcels as to the nature, time, and location of these hearings.

Any person with an interest in the property forfeited to the county treasurer may appear at the show cause hearing and redeem that property or show cause why absolute title to that property should not vest in the Foreclosing Governmental Unit.

A Judicial Foreclosure Hearing is scheduled for 2:15 PM, February 13, 2004 at the 33rd Circuit Court, 301 State St, Charlevoix MI 49720.

At this hearing the Foreclosing Governmental Unit shall ask that the court enter a judgment foreclosing the property as requested in the petition for foreclosure. A person claiming an interest in a parcel of property set forth in the petition for foreclosure, who desires to contest that petition, must file written objections with the clerk of the circuit court and serve those objections on the State of Michigan, the Foreclosing Governmental Unit. The docket number of the petition is 03-1940-19-CZ.

If you are a person with an interest in property being foreclosed:

- You have the right to redeem this parcel from the foreclosure process by payment of all forfeited unpaid taxes, interest, penalties, and fees prior to the expiration of the redemption period. You should contact the Charlevoix County Treasurer for the amount required to redeem.
- You may lose your interest in the property as a result of the foreclosure proceeding.
- The title to the property shall vest absolutely in the Foreclosing Governmental Unit unless all forfeited unpaid delinquent taxes, interest, penalties, and fees are paid within 21 days after judgment is entered in the foreclosure proceedings.

PLEASE NOTE :

The following list represents parties that appear to have title, lien, or other apparent rights to the parcels being foreclosed by the Foreclosing Governmental Unit.

This notice is required to be given by law, even if the party no longer claims or desires an interest if it appears they hold any undischarged, apparent, or potential title or lien right to the property.

Listing of a party does NOT necessarily indicate that they are the owner of a parcel, or that they are liable for the property taxes.

This list is NOT an offering of property for sale. These parcels are NOT being sold, auctioned, or otherwise made available by virtue of this notice.

There is no procedure for purchasing these parcels from the Foreclosing Governmental Unit at this point in the foreclosure proceedings. Those parcels that are foreclosed and not redeemed may become available at public auction in July, September, and November of 2004. These parcels remain the property of their current owner until redemption rights have expired. No party should make any attempt to inspect or enter upon these parcels assuming them to be for sale. This may constitute trespassing and subject the offender to criminal prosecution. The street address of the parcels listed is based on local records and is not guaranteed to be the actual location of the property.

The amount due listed indicates the balance which was due as of forfeiture on March 1, 2003. The current amount required to redeem must be obtained from the Charlevoix County Treasurer, as additional penalties, fees, and interest have accrued since forfeiture.

If you have a news item you think would be perfect for the Charlevoix Courier, feel free to call 547-6558, e-mail charlevoixcourier@charlevoix-courier.com or visit the Courier office located at 112 Mason Street in downtown Charlevoix.

News items include events sponsored by non-profit organizations. Please inform us of your event at least two weeks in advance.

Our coverage area is the city of Charlevoix and its immediately surrounding areas, including Beaver Island.

Because of space limitations in the newspaper, we generally try to avoid publishing "check-handing" pictures or "ribbon-cutting" pictures. However, we will work with your organization to get a picture that reflects the event and is visually interesting to our readers.

Due to time constraints on the staff, we cannot attend every event we are notified of. If you have a picture of your event, we will gladly consider it for publication. But, please, contact us before your event.

It should be noted, each story and picture is dealt with on its individual merits. Any policies outlined above may be suspended by the editor or general manager of the Charlevoix Courier if necessary.

Free parking

This crane has been parked in the city of Charlevoix's municipal marina for the last couple of weeks. It is not the city's and is not being used for a city project. City manager Mike Wiesner said he does not know who it belongs to and after the marina closes in September uses like this are permitted.

Financial aid workshop offered

The financial aid office of North Central Michigan College will host a seminar on financial aid for college students on Wednesday, Jan. 14.

The program is open to students attending or planning to attend any college or university.

North Central staff will explain financial aid programs, eligibility requirements, the application process, how aid is calculated and scams to avoid.

The program is offered by North Central as a service to the community. It will take place at 6:30 p.m. in the college's student center located just off Howard Street in Petoskey.

There is no charge for the program.

See the college's web site www.ncmc.cc.mi.us for more information.

Hospital to host clinic to help stop smoking

Are you ready to kick the cigarette habit?

Charlevoix Area Hospital's Freedom from Smoking program can give you the tools, techniques, and motivation to quit for good.

Offered in cooperation with the American Lung Association, Freedom from Smoking is a lively, interactive, step-by-step program with a proven track record. A new, eight-week series of classes will begin Thursday, January 8, 2004 at the hospital.

There's a $25 fee to cover course materials.

Each week participants will learn how to break the nicotine habit; get practical tips for handling stress, maintaining weight, and making changes in daily routines; and receive plenty of encouragement and support as they adjust to their post-smoking life.

Space in the classes is limited.

Anti-Wal-Mart group circulating petition

site review process. We will be presenting information. We hope to show them there are things a planning commission can do," he said.

Hoffman said several members of the group This Is Our Town will be attending the planning commission meeting.

He added a petition is currently circulating through the community asking people to sign if they are opposed to a Wal-Mart being located near Charlevoix. While he did not know the exact number of signatures on the petition as of now, Hoffman said it probably has a minimum of several hundred names.

This Is Our Town has not been in contact with Wal-Mart officials.

Rajewski said if the Wal-Mart plan is approved, it does not have to go to the township board for final approval.

Wal-Mart officials could not be reached for comment for this story.

At a Charlevoix Township planning commission meeting in September, Wal-Mart officials presented a conceptual plan for a supercenter to be located on US-31 South, near Marion Center and Stover roads.

It would have 40,000 square feet of grocery space on the left side of the store and over 100,000 square feet of retail space on the right side. The store would be a total of 157,400 square feet.

There is also room for seasonal sales, such as Christmas trees and garden supplies, as well as an automotive department for tire, oil and lube changing.

The supercenter will have two main entrances, not including a truck entrance on US-31. One entrance will be on US-31 and the other will be on Marion Center Road. Plans also show the addition of a lighted signal at the US-31 entrance and the addition of deceleration and acceleration lanes and turn lanes on US-31.

These road plans are subject to approval by the Michigan Department of Transportation. A traffic study is currently being worked on.

At that meeting, Wal-Mart officials said they hoped to have the store open in 2005.

hour before one baby boy and seven and a half hours before another made his entrance.

Brad said as the time neared for Lauren to arrive he glanced at the TV in the delivery room and watched as the ball in New York's Time's Square made its way down. He said he thought Lauren would be delivered at midnight right on the nose.

But little Lauren already had a mind of her own and waited it out.

"She wanted to be a New Year's baby," Brad said.

With a birthday five minutes after the new year, Ellen and Brad said there will always be a party for her.

But whatever gifts she may get will never match the gift Ellen and Brad received in the first minutes of Jan. 1, 2004.

"This is our New Year's present right here," Brad said as he cuddled the quiet sweet bundle.

Stutzman, Adams given awards

By JEREMY MCBAIN

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce honored two Charlevoix residents Thursday with the Ambassador of the Year Award and the Chairman's Award.

This year, the Chairman's Award was given to Charlevoix resident Mary Adams and the Ambassador's Award was given to Northwest Academy band director Gary Stutzman.

Outgoing chamber chairman John Campbell announced the award to Adams, pointing out her service with several area organizations including Keep Charlevoix Beautiful and the

At the forty-sixth annual Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce awards meeting, Jeannine Wallace, the self-described "old biddy of Bridge Street," took home the Citizen of the Year crown for 2003.

"I was absolutely stunned; I didn't even know what to say," she said. "I am still floored that they even thought of me. I just trudged along through the years working to do what I thought should be done for the city."

Maura Snabes, the newly appointed chairman of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce for 2004, said the board picked Wallace because of all she has accomplished.

Commissioners to face mayor

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Five members of the Charlevoix City Planning Commission will spend Friday night battling Mayor Gabe Campbell to keep their seats.

"What I do when this situation is done is irrelevant because right now, my name is at stake," Steve Bennett, a commissioner on the mayor's dismissal list, said.

Hearings are scheduled to take place at 6 p.m., Jan. 16 in the Coast Guard training room located at 109 Bridge Park Drive in Charlevoix. The outcome will be a final decision to keep or let go of most of the commissioners.

At the hearings, the details of Mayor Campbell's plan to remove planning commission chairman Dennis Kusina and commissioners, John Campbell, Francis "Brownie" Flanders, Steve Bennett and Richard Hodgson, will be hashed out.

Items for discussion will include charges Mayor Campbell outlined in a letter he wrote to each of the commissioners early this month.

One charge is neglect of duty/inefficiency. In this charge, the mayor claims the commissioners failed to adequately review and study a special use permit application filed by Diane Gillette and Ruth Bellisimo, owners of Sunnybank Retirement Community, before they set a public hearing.

The second charge is inefficiency. Mayor Campbell claims the commission voted to schedule the public hearing for Sunnybank without first resolving legal issues related to whether they could set the hearing under the city's zoning ordinance.

Mayor Campbell has 14 facts that back up these charges based on actions the commission took and requirements set forth in the zoning ordinance and in the commission's bylaws.

The five commissioners will defend themselves with the help of John Logie, a Grand Rapids attorney with the firm Warner, Norcross and Judd.

Logie was hired at a special planning commission meeting Jan. 7.

In a response letter he wrote to Mayor Campbell and city council he states, "Mayor Campbell's effort appears to be based on political motives, not state law. According to a controlling state

Kur to face Jarema for prosecutor seat

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Former Charlevoix Chief Assistant Prosecutor John Jarema, 35, announced his candidacy for the county prosecutor seat last week.

"I think the citizens of Charlevoix County deserve a prosecutor who will be proactive in court trying cases," Jarema said of his candidacy. "I think the way the office is run, being fiscally responsible, is important with the taxpayers. Now, I don't think it is being run fiscally responsible."

Jarema, a republican, will be facing current Charlevoix County Prosecutor Mary Beth Kur, also a republican, in the Aug. 3 primary.

Kur said Jarema's candidacy comes as no surprise to her.

"This is America and anybody with a law degree in the state of Michigan has the right to seek a seat such as this," she said. "There will be ample time to talk about a lot of things in the next seven months. Right now, I am busy doing the job the people elected me to do."

Mary Beth Kur

John Jarema

Jarema made headlines in 2002 when he was fired by Kur. He then sued Kur claiming defamation of character, a violation of the Whistleblowers Act and invasion of privacy. The defamation and invasion of privacy claims were dismissed, leaving just the claim of a whistle blowers act violation.

Jarema alleged Kur violated the Whistleblowers Act by firing him because he was voicing concerns about "mismanagement of county funds" by the prosecutor's office. Kur denied there was any mismanagement and said Jarema was fired "for good business reason and cause, such as his disruptive conduct, disloyalty, breach of confidences provided by Kur to him, unprofessional conduct, poor work ethic, low level of productivity, insufficient leadership as chief assistant prosecutor and other matters of poor performance and conduct including insubordination."

In March 2003, at the request of the county's insurance provider, Kur and her attorney ended the case with a $50,000 settlement to Jarema.

Jarema said he is not running against Kur as payback for the firing. He said he was asked to run by several members of the community, including past and present county commissioners and law enforcement officers.

"If I was going to build up a case to run against her, I would not have gone to the commissioner and brought it to light," he said.

Kur said, "I am very proud of my record and that of my office over the years."

Jarema graduated from Central Michigan University in December 1990 with a degree in psychology.

He then went to the Detroit College of Law, where he received his law degree.

After a few internships in the Charlevoix County Prosecutors Office under current Judge Richard May, he was hired as an assistant prosecutor for the county in 1995.

In 1999, Jarema was appointed chief assistant prosecuting attorney for Charlevoix County, which he worked under until February 2002.

Currently, he is an associate with the law firm of Joseph, Corcoran, Telgenhof and Snyder P.C. of Charlevoix.

His wife's name is Krista and he has two daughters, Alison, 5, and Caroline, 3.

He is originally from St. Clair Shores.

However, since he was a child, John said he and his family had been visiting the Boyne Falls area.

Jarema said he will have a web site outlining his positions at www.votejarema.com.

Respect others when enjoying your ride

EDITORIAL

From the looks of things, winter has returned to Charlevoix once again.

During this time of year, a warm air temperature is anything above 20 degrees, a light dusting of snow is anything below 5 inches and fashion takes a back-seat to staying warm.

This is also the time of year when people get a little excited for some adventure. Northern Michigan is filled with people seeking that perfect mountain to ski or snowboard, that large fish to catch on their tip-up, beautifully deep snow to snowshoe through and a wide open field to try out their new snowmobile.

While all of these sports are fun, it is the last one, snowmobiling, that seems to generate the most passion from people in northern Michigan.

Some people, when they hear the word snowmobiling, picture a group of friends enjoying the wintery outdoors while riding from one town to the next over cottony fields and trails of white. Other people picture a drunken lunatic racing across their front lawn at 2 a.m.

Snowmobiling is a sport that brings a lot to northern Michigan. It is a great source of revenue during the slow months and it is a great way for families and friends to get together outside. And they get to meet new friends by joining groups such as local snowmobiling organizations.

But, some people are spoiling it for those who respect nature and the people who live in the north. These are the people who are riding late at night, the people getting intoxicated and then hurting others in an accident, people who drive their machines too fast, people who threaten wildlife with their machines by chasing animals and people who trespass on private property.

These people are a menace to the snowmobiling world and northern Michigan. Because of these people, many northern Michigan residents are becoming fed up with snowmobilers in general, thus putting the sport in harm's way.

We urge snowmobilers to remember they represent many more than just themselves when enjoying their hobby. They represent a whole sport and can hurt its reputation.

Gilbert's former boat took first prize

Edith Gilbert

'Behind the news'

This 1958 Chris Craft sportsman was bought by Edith Gilbert in 1985. She sold the boat and it was later bought by Kris Bartling, who took first at a boat show with it.

It was no big surprise to me when I read an article on the front page of the Detroit Free Press stating that, "The St. Clair River just north of Detroit, is one of the worst areas along the Canadian border for smuggling drugs and illegal immigrants into the United States."

I had often been told that during Prohibition, "rum runners" regularly used the river to smuggle booze into the United States from Canada! Consequently, fast speedboats were badly needed to outrun U.S. federal agents. That's probably why according to an article in the Charlevoix Courier dated Nov. 19, 1930, my late husband's speedboat, a Hackercraft, which was considered to be the fastest speedboat on the Great Lakes, was stolen in the middle of the night from Hamilton & Son boathouse on Round Lake by a professional Detroit gang.

It was never recovered. According to the Courier article it was not known exactly how the 2-ton boat was smuggled out of the boathouse and trucked downstate. It might have been floated to the north shore where "they ran a big trailer into the water, floated the boat up on it, hauled it out of the water and loaded it onto a truck."

Boats were always part of my married life and mahogany speedboats were my special love. In 1985 I had the opportunity to purchase a 17 foot, 1958 Chris Craft sportsman utility boat that I kept in a lovely spot on the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix.

Sadly, it eventually became too difficult to maintain the boat and I sold it to Tom Barnes, who in turn sold it to John Houston and Kris Bartling.

Kris is now co-owner of the Boat Works. They do boat storage, hauling, and restoring boats. Kris couldn't wait to spend last winter stripping the boat down to the bare wood, re-varnishing it, replacing the interior flooring and upholstery, installing a new glass windshield and having the gauges refinished.

As for the six cylinder Chris Craft engine, all it needed was to clean the carburator, change the spark plugs and "it ran like a champ."

Last summer, Kris's mother, Nelda Houston, urged him to enter the boat in the Hessel Boat Show, but there was a conflict.

For years, Kris and his wife and children went to Beaver Island, where he played in the annual baseball tournament. It was with great reluctance that he let his mother make all the arrangements to enter the boat in the antique boat show, which they all attended.

Kris said that it was totally unexpected, when much to his joy and great surprise, the hoat took first place!

Now I doubt if this little jewel of a boat will serve any useful purpose in smuggling drugs or illegal aliens across the St. Clair River. Let's hope the "Nelda" remains in Charlevoix and we'll see her next summer with one of the new proud owners at the wheel.

Letters to the editor

Keep Charlevoix beautiful

Editor:

Our family has enjoyed Charlevoix summers for the past 11 wonderful years. Because Charlevoix is such an important part of our lives, we subscribe to the Courier to help us keep "in touch" during the winter months.

Our family can hardly wait for spring to come each year. We are proud Charlevoix property owners that maintain a principal residence downstate. Therefore, we felt compelled to share our non-local opinion with your readers.

Have Charlevoix's elected officials lost sight of what they really have in this small town. They should remember that it's the people, the harmony of small town living, the quaintness of strolling town during the evening and the atmosphere that brings people and families close. It's the gatherings in the park, the events and celebrations and all the activity that promotes people to feel like there is no place on Earth that they would rather spend their time.

We have observed and enjoyed the many wonderful positive changes that Charlevoix has undertaken during these past many years. We also understand and support the democratic process that is often required prior to the undertaking of some changes.

However, due to recent political events, on can only hope that the leadership of Charlevoix does not exchange the "beautiful" with their own individual "progressive" viewpoints.

Say no to Wal-Mart

Editor:

When asked to get involved to the "say no to Wal-Mart" campaign, I was somewhat ambivalent initially thinking, "this is not my fight" as I have no business of my own in Charlevoix and nothing to gain or lose.

However, as with all issues in which I am asked to participate, I like facts and knowledge rather than hearsay, innuendo or preconceived notions.

Thus far, I have read practically everything available on the internet and three books specifically on the subject of a Wal-Mart coming to town. The more I read, the more I am absolutely convinced if Wal-Mart comes to Charlevoix, it will be a defining moment in our history and the worst thing to ever happen to our community.

History shows communities with a population between 5,000 and 10,000, an average of 20 locally owned businesses close. For every job Wal-Mart provides, 1.5 jobs are lost and the new job is lower paying with fewer benefits. They need fewer employees per sales dollar because their sales per employee are much larger.

When local businesses are forced to close, property values decrease, not only commercial but residential as well, as people are forced to move in order to find new jobs. One hundred percent of Wal-Mart's local revenue is immediately wire transferred back to the corporate headquarters. Local businesses all make their daily deposits into local banks. Wal-Mart already controls 30 percent of the grocery business. On average, for every new Super Center, two local grocery stores close. If it is such a great place to work, I wonder why they have an unheard of 70 percent annual employee turnover.

In 2002, Wal-Mart sales were 245 billion, yet they donated only four tenths of one percent to charities. This includes corporate donation which leaves very little for each local Wal-Mart store. The first thing our locally owned businesses will have to do is cut back on donations, the second is to lay off employees. They will cease to advertise and there will be no more expansions, remodeling facilities or replacing equipment.

It is shear greed and an attempt to put competitors out of business that drives Wal-Mart to put stores so close together. My philosophy is: We have a Wal-Mart. It is only 20 minutes away. If you want to shop there, do so and when you head back home you will be leaving the disadvantages behind you.

Wal-Mart is coming

Editor:

Wal-Mart is coming to town! Here we go again.

Let's go back to Petoskey merchants' negative comments when Wal-Mart was planning to build a store near their town. It was built anyway.

Both Wal-Mart and Home Depot have been successful. The Charlevoix merchants have already been seen on local television. Like Petoskey, most local merchants only cater to the "fudgies." Charlevoix residents don't shop at these stores because they can't afford the prices. Except for Oleson's and Glen's, Wal-Mart would be welcomed by locals.

Many people do not like driving during our winter months. Neighboring towns should not interfere with other township's planning decisions.

Richard L. Weidinger

Wal-Mart out of character

Editor:

The proposed Wal-Mart is way out of scale for a town as small as Charlevoix. The site sits at the corner of US-31 and Marion Center Road and, if approved, will be larger than the entire Kmart plaza, plus another third.

Take a minute to picture how out of character that is with Charlevoix the beautiful. How will this big box look as visitors enter Charlevoix from the south? Imagine yourself just leaving Detroit, Chicago, St. Louis or Cincinnati. What is the last thing you see leaving your town? Probably big box sprawl. Now imagine yourself arriving at your vacation destination of Charlevoix the beautiful to get relief from big box sprawl.

Let us keep Charlevoix unique so when visitors arrive they breathe a sigh of relief and exclaim, "I love Charlevoix. It does not look like every other town."

Come to a Charlevoix Township Planning Commission meeting at 7:30 p.m., March 3 and support opposition to the proposed Wal-Mart and sign petitions around town. Silence is our enemy. It is not a done deal until the people say it is.

Thank you

Editor:

We, the family of Alice Tyner, are very grateful for her safe return.

In no way did we try to mislead anyone about her disappearance.

We were only praying for her safe return to us. If in anyway we kept the Antrim County Sheriff's Department from doing their job of solving other crimes, we apologize to all who were involved at the time. We thought that is what you do, call your local police department to help serve and protect. We did not know that we were not going through the proper channels. We, her family and friends, were just as involved with searching for Alice as the Antrim County Sheriff's Department and other law enforcement agencies.

Alice is in no way a bad mother nor is she a bad person. All who know Alice knows this. As for Antrim County Sheriff Terry Johnson's statement in the Dec. 17 issue of the Antrim County News, about Alice's "abandonment" of her children "I" think he should have checked the definition of the word before he makes statements like he did. That's what's most "aggravating" to me. And to Sgt. Jim Janisse; we, her family, apologize to you for having to waste 213 hours that could have been used elsewhere. So let those cast that first stone, we do want to take this time to, "THANK" everyone that helped in so many ways. It was very much appreciated.

Engagement

Lanphar — Netzloff

Bruce Lanphar and Olivia Netzloff were married Oct. 18, 2003.

The ceremony took place at the Lanphar home with the Pastor Bryan Pettit performing the rites. Bill and Theresa Hafen were the witnesses, along with friends and family.

Bruce is a fly-fishing guide, photographer and artist. Olivia is a program specialist at Chrysalis. They plan to honeymoon in Chile the month of February.

Bruce previously owned Charlevoix Camera and was a resident of Charlevoix for many years before moving to Eureka.

The American Red Cross, Northern Lower Michigan Chapter is planning an event to honor and recognize Everyday Heroes — people who have saved a life in the year 2003 — on April 16 at Victories Hotel in Petoskey.

The goal is to recognize local acts of heroism in Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan and Emmet counties, and pay tribute to those who have performed lifesaving deeds. Anyone living in Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Cheboygan counties can nominate an individual who has performed an heroic act in the year 2003.

The Red Cross is looking for nominees in the following categories:

1) Youth, good samaritan (girl).

2) Youth, good samaritan (boy).

3) Medical, hospital personnel, ambulance, clinic, EMT's.

4) Animal rescue.

5) Educator, teacher, administrator, school personnel.

6) Marine rescue.

7) Public safety.

8) Adult, good samaritan (woman).

9) Adult, good samaritan (man).

10) Workplace heroes.

A Heroes Advisory Committee of community leaders in the four counties will review submissions and select winners. The awards will be presented at a breakfast, Friday, April 16 at Victories Hotel in Petoskey.

The deadline for nominations is Feb. 14.

Arts center hosting artistic trip to Chicago

The Crooked Tree Arts Center will have a two day trip, "Chicago in Bloom," on May 25-26.

The group will depart at 7 a.m. from Petoskey Tuesday, May 25 and have a continental breakfast en route to the Windy City.

The event begins with a stop at the Art Institute of Chicago for lunch on your own followed by a highlights tour of the permanent collection. Following check-in at the hotel, there is an optional Chicago River Architecture Tour and a visit to the Terra Museum of American Art.

Overnight accommodations are at the Inn of Chicago. Dinner is on your own or you can join committee members at one of two restaurants.

Most Chicago museums and attractions stay open until 8 p.m. on Tuesdays.

The return trip includes lunch at the Black Swan restaurant in Kalamazoo then a visit to the Kalamazoo Institute of Arts, for the acclaimed Millet to Matisse: Nineteenth and Twentieth Century French Painting show . This exhibition features 64 masterworks by such artists as Renoir, Cezanne, Rousseau, Monet and Cassatt.

An added feature will be a docent-led tour of the institute's permanent collection, including works on long-term loan from the Detroit Institute of Arts as well as the opportunity to tour a special private collection. A picnic dinner en route to Petoskey concludes the day with an estimated time of return of 9 p.m.

Space is limited, reservations are encouraged as soon as possible. To register by telephone/credit card or for more information, call Crooked Tree Arts Center at 347-4337.

The cost per person is $220-member/double occupancy; $240 -non-Member/double occupancy; Add $69 for single room and add $15 for optional river architecture tour.

Visit www.crookedtree.org for additional details.

Teachers can get training through arts center

Crooked Tree Arts Center is presenting an Afternoon for Educators from 4 until 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Jan. 20.

This special workshop for teachers is planned to enrich the exhibit Memory Struggle Affirmation, Expressions of the African American Artist, which opens Jan. 17.

The Afternoon for Educators workshop is designed to provide a wealth of resources for teachers, which focuses on the achievements of African American artists and the rich culture of Black heritage in this country.

Artists such as Faith Ringgold, Jacob Lawrence, Maya Angelou as well as other visual artists, musicians and writers will be highlighted. This exhibit is a traveling exhibition from the Kalamazoo Institute of Arts.

Participating teachers will receive a workshop notebook with art projects, and activities ready for classroom use. The afternoon is a "hands-on" event with an opportunity to make samples and to browse through the Treasure Box of resources. The workshop fee is $20 per person and a box supper is included with the registration fee.

Linda Young, museum consultant, and area artist/arts educator Carol Ross will share insights about the exhibit and present ideas for classroom projects and applications for Black History Month.

Registration is limited to 25 participants, call 347-4337 for more information.

The Crooked Tree Arts Center is located at 461 E. Mitchell Street in Petoskey. Support for the Arts Center programming is provided in part by the Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs.

Parenting workshop to be given in Petoskey

A new parenting workshop, based on the best selling book, Siblings Without Rivalry will start Wednesday, Jan. 21, from 6:30-8 p.m at the Women's Resource Center, 423 Porter Street, Petoskey.

They will find out how to deal with their children's negative feelings toward each other; how to treat their children unequally and still be fair; how to free their children from harmful roles such as "bully" or "victim" and how to respond helpfully when their children fight.

Parents will also learn how to resolve conflicts peacefully and promote a family atmosphere of cooperation rather than competition.

The six-session workshop is sponsored by the Women's Resource Center and will be led by Joann F. Townsend, ACSW.

The cost of the workshop is $80 per person or $85 per couple, materials included.

If you are currently receiving Medicaid, daycare assistance or the Food Assistance Program from FIA, you may be eligible to receive a scholarship for this class.

Please contact your worker for more information. Dates of the sessions are Wednesday, Jan. 21, 28, Feb. 4, 11,18 and 25. Certificates of completion will be awarded at the conclusion of the program.

You must be able to provide proof of previous completion of the How to Talk So Kids Will Listen course at the WRC or elsewhere. Advance registration and payment is required space is limited.

Hundreds of thousands of parents and professionals have already benefited from the Siblings Without Rivalry workshop created by authors Adele Faber and Elaine Mazlish.

According to Missouri Clinical Social Worker Barbara Fousec, the Siblings Without Rivalry program is a "a double blessing! Group members not only reported much less quarreling and quibbling among their children, but several parents went back to their own families to resolve old rivalries."

To register, please call the Women's Resource Center at (231) 347-0067.

Obituaries

Anthony J. Barone, 84, died Jan. 3, 2004 from a stroke in Pueblo, Colo.

He was born May 24, 1919 in Detroit.

He was preceded in death by his beloved wife Grace and beloved son James.

He is survived by his son John and his wife Audrey, of Pueblo, Colo.; his granddaughter Caroline Brown and her husband James of Columbus, Ohio; had his granddaughter Lisa Mair and her husband Richard and their two children, David Walker Mair and Madeline Grace Mair, all of Naples, Fla. He is also survived by his sister Bes Wins and his brother, Lou Dallas.

Anthony started from humble beginnings learning his trade with Huron Engineering while going through Henry Ford Trade School.

He also tried his hand at farming in the late 1940s and early 1950s. In the early 1950s, he became co-owner of Kaltanber Engineering Company, with James Koller and Eugene Tann.

After a very successful career, he retired in 1959 and moved to Charlevoix with his wife, Grace. They built a beautiful home on Lake Charlevoix, where they lived for several years. They moved to East Jordan after many years on the lake.

He was involved with many local charities, as well as the Big Brother program, which was very special to him. He continued his tradition of charity work by hooking up with the local Hospice and volunteering time to families and individuals in need of care and respite. Tony and Grace spent many happy years in that beautiful part of the world, enjoying all it had to offer — sailing, boating, gardening, fishing, bird watching and especially golf.

He only recently moved to Pueblo, Colo. to be closer to his son John and his wife Audrey. Colorado offered him a beautiful vista of mountains, endless blue sky and great winter weather. He enjoyed his walks everyday as he took in the beauty around him.

Tony will always be remembered by those who knew him as a kind-hearted and generous man with a big, big heart. He loved and was loved by many people. He truly was a special man and extraordinary human being that had a huge capacity for love.

In lieu of flowers, the family asks that donations be made to the Hospice of Northwest Michigan, Community Health Agency, 225 West Garfield Avenue, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

A memorial service is scheduled for 11 a.m., Saturday, Jan. 17 at the William R. Hamilton Bell Chapel, located at 820 East Maple Road in Birmingham.

Martin E. Johnson, 66, died Jan. 6 at his home in Royal Oak where he lived for over 20 years.

Martin was born Nov. 12, 1937 in Charlevoix. He retired from the Birmingham Post Office in 1999.

He was an avid gardener and bridge player and loved playing cards. He was a member of two dinner clubs.

He was preceded in death by his brother Oliver and sisters Nuel Johnson and Phyllis Anderson.

He is survived by his brother Paul Johnson of East Jordan and many nieces and nephews and great nieces and nephews.

A visitation will take place from 5 to 8 p.m., Jan. 15 at the William Sullivan and Son Funeral Home in Royal Oak. A service will follow at 8 p.m. at the funeral home, the Rev. Dennis Scanland will officiate.

Memorial contributions can be made to the Leukemia Society of Michigan.

City police discover major credit card scam

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix City Police have uncovered a local credit card scam with major international ties.

According to Charlevoix City Police Chief Dennis Halverson, the scam was unearthed when officers received a tip of some unusual computer equipment deliveries being made to an apartment in Charlevoix. Upon searching the apartment, police found several boxes of computer equipment that was bought with stolen credit card numbers, including one from Israel, and was being shipped from Charlevoix to the African country of Nigeria.

"The scope and dollar amounts involved with this activity is amazing," Halverson said.

Halverson said his investigation has discovered this activity has been taking place throughout the country, all with items being shipped to Nigeria, and using stolen credit card numbers.

Halverson said he has contacted the federal government about this, but they have told him they are not interested in it. He said Nigerian officials are not easy to deal with, so the federal government seems unwilling to go after this.

Halverson said one way to stop this scam and others like it originating from Nigeria is for the federal government to get involved and force Nigerian officials to stop these crimes.

He added companies can also avoid becoming victims of these scams by waiting for credit cards to clear before sending out purchases received over the internet, mail or by phone.

As for the average consumer, he said there is not much you can do.

This is because to get the numbers Halverson said he learned the thieves hack into computer sites where people have used credit card numbers to purchase items or they use a computer software program that goes through random numbers until it finally hits a working credit card.

In the Charlevoix case, people in Nigeria contacted a Charlevoix woman over the internet. After that initial contact, a computer relationship was formed and the woman was recruited to receive goods ordered by the Nigerian people.

These goods, in this case computer equipment, were ordered from several companies using stolen credit card numbers. When the equipment would arrive in Charlevoix, the woman would repackage it and send it to Nigeria.

Through interviews with specialists in loss prevention, Halverson believes the equipment was then either sold on the black market or used to make counterfeit documents.

"We won't know how big this is. This is only a snapshot," he said. "We have information of companies that have went out of business due to shipping large quantities of merchandise to Nigeria and were victims of fraud."

The Charlevoix case was discovered when one of the companies equipment was being ordered from alerted the Charlevoix police about five suspicious orders placed at it. Two of the five orders had been shipped out to Charlevoix when the company discovered the credit card used for the purchase was stolen.

The other three parts to the shipment were going to be sent to South Dakota, where Halverson said they were to also be repackaged and sent to Nigeria.

After Charlevoix police were contacted, officers tracked the shipments to an apartment in Charlevoix, but they were addressed to someone not living at the apartment. Police searched the apartment and found several boxes containing computer equipment.

"It appears she had been getting and reshipping things since October," Halverson said.

After this find, Halverson said he started getting calls from across the country, such as Texas, New Mexico, Indiana and Illinois, from other police departments who were also finding a similar scam in their cities.

"This was a very extensive credit card fraud," he said.

As for the Charlevoix woman that was involved in this scam, Halverson said it is "open to discussion" whether she knew what she was doing was illegal. Because of that, no charges have been filed yet.

Library planning campaign for new building

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Plans to convert the old Charlevoix Middle School into a state-of-the-art Charlevoix Public Library continue to move forward.

A recently completed feasibility study found a successful fund-raising campaign would make the library project a go.

Sandi Frost-Parrish of Monaghan Associates of Grand Rapids, was in charge of a feasibility study that looked at whether the money to fund the over $7 million library project was available in Charlevoix.

She is writing the final feasibility study now and will present these findings at a meeting scheduled to take place at 4 p.m., Jan. 22 in the basement of the library located at 109 Clinton Street in Charlevoix.

Based on her findings, Frost-Parrish has recommended that the library move into the next phase of the project, the capital campaign.

At a library board meeting Jan. 8, library director Valerie Meyerson told the board of trustees this recommendation is a promising step in the project because the firm generally only recommends about 50 percent of the projects it looks at go to campaign.

Frost-Parrish recommended that campaign goal be set between $1 and $2 million, which can be raised through grants and contributions.

Meyerson said, "If you aim high, a lot of times you get that and if we set the number too low, we'll hit that number and stop."

In March the capital campaign with requests for donations will start and will run through early summer.

Community fund-raisers like dinners, auctions and other events will follow in the summer and fall of 2004.

Meyerson said the final campaign amount the library will shoot for is an important number for two reasons. One, is that if campaign volunteers fall short, the project will have to be scaled back to make up the difference.

The other reason the campaign amount is important is because it will set the size of the bond the library will ask voters to approve.

The ballot language and the bond size has to be in the hands of Dr. John Sturock, superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools by March 1. Sturock will then pass it along to the district's attorney for review. The bond will be on the district's June 14 election ballot.

This month, Paul Stauder of Stauder-Barch in Ann Arbor, the library's financial advisor for the bond, will use the Monaghan group's study information to calculate the size of the bond the library will need to ask voters to approve to fund the project.

Once the bond amount has been established, Tom Colis, the library's bond attorney with Miller Canfield in the Detroit area, will write the ballot language.

In the meantime, board members are working on grant applications and will start power point presentations for 57 service groups and other area organizations to build awareness of the project and boost voter turnout.

The new library proposal looks to renovate and add on to the existing school. The proposed brick facility is about 24,000 square feet, with all its main functions on the first floor.

This primary floor will include small additions, totaling just under 4,000 square feet of space — one will house the program room and the other, a children's activity room. The facility will offer adult, children's and teen collections as well as a popular reading room, plenty of quiet reading areas, a self check out, a staffed circulation desk and outdoor landscaped plazas.

If the library comes up with the money to give the project the green light, the board is hoping to break ground in the spring of 2005 with about 14 months of construction to follow and a grand opening in the summer of 2006.

After the library moves in, it will sell its current site and will use proceeds from that sale to pay off the bond.

Arts center to present MacKay art exhibit

The Crooked Tree Arts Center, Jordan River Arts Council and Shadetree Studio will collaborate in presenting the exhibit, "Marion MacKay in Retrospective" this month.

The show will coincide with openings scheduled from 2 to 4 p.m., and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Jan. 17, at the Crooked Tree Arts Center and Shadetree Studio and at 2 p.m., Sunday, Jan. 18 at Jordan River Arts Council in East Jordan.

Longtime family friend and artist, Lesley Pritchard, is curating Marion's creative legacy which survives in an extensive body of work, produced over a period of 40 years. In her search, almost two hundred original paintings in both oil and acrylic, drawings in charcoal, ink, pencil and pastel, and sculpture were selected for final review.

These works represent Marion's productive nature in all media and ability, from realistic to abstract, from figurative to non-objective expressionism. Prior to this concurrent show at Crooked Tree and Jordan River Arts Council, few of these chosen works have been exhibited publicly.

"We were kindred spirits," Pritchard said. "After first being introduced by Bruce Jansen, owner of The Wood Shop in Boyne City, we continued to connect. About the same time, we got together with a group of local artists and Artist's North was formed."

The group met regularly at each others studios and often gathered to learn about each others art and share good times. Some of the best times were spent at the original Bohemian farm known as Cracker Barrel Hill which Marion shared with her husband, Basil.

Located in the Jordan Valley, Cracker Barrel Hill consisted of a series of additions to the original hewn log cabin and evolved over time into a labyrinth of studios and living spaces. These add-on studios provided the setting for Marion to continue her years of art work.

According to Pritchard, "She loved painting from life and was always in search of models. Perhaps a fellow artist, or her devoted husband, Bas, would comply. If a model wasn't available, then she painted flowers or animals or landscapes. Often Marion simply painted events from memory."

Paintings to be included in the exhibit, such as the Amaryllis, The Wedding Dancers, or Susie's Sunflowers, are examples of these.

Her work can be found in many private collections and has been showcased in various periodicals. In 1993, another selection of her work traveled through Michigan and was exhibited both at the Crooked Tree Art Center and the Jordan River Arts Council.

Following Marion's death in 1996, Pritchard remained friends with the family and especially close to Basil. In addition to Bas, Marion is survived by her son, Mitchell and daughter, Marilee, who all live in a large Victorian house in East Jordan.

In addition, Penny Cristo, longtime friend of the MacKays and owner of Shadetree Stained Glass Studio, Petoskey, will also showcase Marion's work during the exhibit times of Jan. 16 through Feb. 14.

For more information concerning the exhibit call Crooked Tree Arts Center at 347-4337; Shadetree Studio at 347-1011 or Jordan

Ellsworth woman returns home

A Ellsworth woman reported missing in early December returned to her home safely before Christmas and on her own accord.

According to Antrim Country Sheriff Terry Johnson, Alice Michelle Tyner, 27, called her family just before Christmas to say she was coming home. She said she had been in Grand Rapids.

Johnson said he has contacted the Antrim County Prosecuting Attorney about a possible child abandonment charge against Tyner.

Tyner was last seen dropping her three young children off at a daycare on Garfield Avenue in Charlevoix around 11 a.m. on Dec. 4. Since then, her family, friends and area police have been looking for her.

Tyner told the daycare worker that she was planning on doing some shopping in Cadillac.

But, Tyner did not return home that night. Her family and local police had been looking for her since then.

Johnson said Tyner did not say what she was doing in Grand Rapids.

Some claim nepotism in Norwood appointments

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Recent board appointment recommendations in Norwood Township sparked a firestorm of accusations from residents but no one has since come forward to fill the positions.

At the township board's Dec. 15 meeting, supervisor Wayne Boss set out to recommend people for positions on the zoning board of appeals (ZBA) and the planning commission.

Two ZBA members, chairman Bill Jackson and Tom Carey, resigned in the past few months and terms expired for planning commission chair Mark Maynard and commissioners Dave Parsons and Julie Burgess.

Parsons and Burgess declined to be re-appointed. Parsons said he can't make the majority of meetings and Burgess said she is just too busy.

But Maynard, who has been a planning commissioner for five years and chairman for three of those years, said he wanted to continue to serve. In spite of his interest, Boss recommended the township board not re-appoint him and fill his seat with Denny Way — Boss' relative through marriage.

He said Maynard's "feud" with his neighbors Frank and Barb Hamilton about their kennel operation was "whaling over into township matters" and would likely get the township sued.

Boss said he read an e-mail sent to township zoning administrator Lynn Smolenyak from Maynard about permits that had been requested by the Hamiltons. In the e-mail, Maynard stated that he did not support the issuance of the permits.

This e-mail lead Boss to believe Maynard "couldn't approach certain things unbiasedly."

Because of Boss' perception that Maynard couldn't be objective, he said it isn't appropriate that he continues to serve.

Boss also recommended a relative for an open ZBA seat.

Carey officially resigned from the ZBA at the board's December meeting. At that same meeting, Boss recommended Doug Way, also a family member by marriage, to finish his term which ends in December of 2006.

Some who attended the meeting spoke out against Boss' appointment recommendations claiming it was inappropriate to award seats to family members and calling for the township to establish a nepotism policy.

Norwood Township resident Jerry Straub wrote in a letter to the board, "While the Way's are nice people and may even be qualified to serve, they are obviously related to the supervisor. Many townships have a written nepotism policy. Clearly, Norwood Township needs to adopt such a policy before it considers appointments."

Township clerk Doris Pearl defended Boss.

She said, "You tend to ask people you know and know their intelligence level, their commitment level and their interest in the township."

However, she also recog-

Controversy over Boss appointments

nized that the recommendation of multiple family members was not his best approach.

"It probably wasn't his best move. But just because he made the recommendation doesn't mean an automatic yes," she said.

A vote of the full township board is needed to appoint those representatives.

Other recommendations Boss made to fill open seats were not family members. He recommended Pat Klooster, a ZBA alternate fill the rest of Jackson's term which expires in December of 2005. Jackson is the former ZBA chairman who resigned in November citing other commitments.

And Boss also recommended Cindy Brooks and Dwayne Farmer to fill the remaining open planning commission seats.

After that December board meeting when the recommendations were made, Pearl advertised the openings in The Petoskey News-Review and sent an e-mail informing over 100 township residents on her e-mail list of the openings.

She said she has since only received letters of interest from three of the four people Boss nominated.

She said the response is not "atypical."

"It's like any organization. Half a dozen people are interested and get involved and everyone else is too busy or whatever," Pearl said.

She added that the recent problem with residents questioning appointments is also unusual.

"This is the only time I can ever recall there has been a question. But of course, Mark (Maynard) didn't get re-appointed," she said.

Norwood Township residents interested in filling one of the planning commission or ZBA seats can contact Pearl at 547-9096 for a list of information that is needed. Or e-mail Pearl at dapearl@freeway.net.

The ZBA meets on an as-needed basis and the planning commission meets monthly. Members of both are compensated $50 per meeting.

The open seats will be addressed at the board's meeting to take place at 7:30 p.m. at the Norwood Township Hall located at 19759 Lake Street in Charlevoix.

How to get your event news into the Courier

If you have a news item you think would be perfect for the Charlevoix Courier, feel free to call 547-6558, e-mail charlevoixcourier@charlevoix-courier.com or visit the Courier office located at 112 Mason Street in downtown Charlevoix.

News items include events sponsored by non-profit organizations. Please inform us of your event at least two weeks in advance.

Our coverage area is the city of Charlevoix and its immediately surrounding areas, including Beaver Island.

Because of space limitations in the newspaper, we generally try to avoid publishing "check-handing" pictures or "ribbon-cutting" pictures. However, we will work with your organization to get a picture that reflects the event and is visually interesting to our readers.

Due to time constraints on the staff, we cannot attend every event we are notified of. If you have a picture of your event, we will gladly consider it for publication. But, please, contact us before your event.

It should be noted, each story and picture is dealt with on its individual merits. Any policies outlined above may be suspended by the editor or general manager of the Charlevoix Courier if necessary.

Zoning dispute could cost township

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

In Norwood Township a feud between neighbors became a fight with the township that after six months of meetings could still end up in court.

Permits for the construction of a shed and the modification of an existing fence issued for Auntie Barb's Country Kennel on US-31 South were overturned by the township's zoning board of appeals (ZBA) in November.

This action followed an appeal from Mark and Marilyn Maynard who are neighbors and former customers of kennel owners Barb and Frank Hamilton. Mark Maynard, is also a Norwood Township Board Trustee, a ZBA member and the former chairman of the township planning commission.

Mark Maynard said he did not vote on any issue associated with the Hamiltons because of a conflict of interest.

Maynard said in June he and his wife appealed the permits which were issued to the Hamiltons by township zoning administrator Lynn Smolenyak in April and May of 2003. They claim those permits were given when the property didn't conform with the zoning ordinance.

The ZBA had to answer two questions in deciding whether or not to overturn the permits.

The first was, "Did the Hamiltons have a vested right under the 1991 township zoning ordinance for the kennel operation?" And the second question was, "Has the kennel expanded by changing the nature, scope and intensity of its operation requiring a new or amended special use permit?"

The answers to both questions could only be found by looking into the Hamiltons' kennel operation from the spring of 1995, when the township planning commission approved their request for a special use permit to operate the kennel, to the present.

The Hamilton's property, located at 02161 US-31 in Charlevoix's Norwood Township, is made up of two parcels totaling 36 acres, 14 of which is the kennel and 22 of which is their home site.

Their special use permit to operate was issued April 12, 1995 under the township's 1991 zoning ordinance. This 1991 ordinance was revised and the new ordinance went into effect on June 16, 1995.

The ZBA decided that the Hamiltons had not done work of "substantial character" to get the kennel operation up and running in the month between their permit being issued and the new ordinance going into effect. Because of that, it ruled the Hamiltons do not have a vested right for use of their kennel facility.

When the ordinance went into effect the Hamiltons had moved 11 loads of dirt and did all the ground work on the property, including having the footings poured and inspected, in preparation for building and opening their kennel.

This site, Auntie Barb's Country Kennel off of US-31 is the topic of is a long appeal with the Norwood Township Zoning Board of Appeals and now an appeal of the board's decision.

But the ZBA said this work was not enough. This means the Hamiltons need to get a new special use permit under the current ordinance, bringing the kennel and grounds up to today's ordinance standards, before the storage shed and fencing changes Smolenyak authorized can be done.

Attorney for the Hamiltons.

Basketball team still undefeated

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Charlevoix Rayders basketball team remains undefeated.

Their latest win came on Friday, when the team faced Elk Rapids at home and won 70-43.

"Our defensive pressure really bothered them," coach Keith Haske said. "They were struggling with scoring."

At the half it was 37-15, with Charlevoix in the lead.

"They just had trouble with our pressure. They didn't shoot the ball real well," he said.

Top scorers for the night were Scott Friske with 17 points, 17 rebounds and three steals; Jared Hunt had 16 points and six steals and Ryan DeYoung had eight points.

On Tuesday, Jan. 6, the Rayders faced St. Ignace and beat them 80-31.

"It was our best game of the year. We played both sides of the court," Haske said.

"If you play great defense and rebound, usually you will be successful."

Top scorers for this game were Hunt with 16 points, three steals and four assists; Friske with 14 points, seven rebounds and five assists and John DiMartino with nine points and five rebounds.

Charlevoix is 5-0 for the season. The Rayders had their toughest test so far against Petoskey at home last night, Tuesday.

Haske said since Petoskey is also undefeated and has played some tougher teams, it was a very big game for Charlevoix.

"It should be a lot of fun," he said on Monday.

The results of that game were unavailable before presstime.

Rayders' ski season begins

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Charlevoix/ East Jordan high school ski team started another season on the slopes Jan. 6 at the Harbor/Petoskey invitational with a seventh place finish for the boys and an eighth place finish for the girls.

"The first meet jitters are out of the way," coach Sue Miller said.

"It was a great race considering it was the first day of winter."

Miller said the skiers had to deal with white outs, cold temperatures and a lot of fresh snow, although skiing is great in fresh snow.

Individual results in the boys' slalom were: Patrick Teske in sixteenth place, with a total time of 56.86 seconds; Taylor Fisher in twenty-eighth place, with a total time of 1 minute, 2.17 seconds; Cameron Attee in thirty-fifth place, with a total time of 1 minute, 6.27 seconds; Andrew Mallory in forty-seventh place, with a total time of 1 minute, 20.48 seconds; Geoff Baier in fiftieth place, with a total time of 1 minute, 25.18 seconds and Mike Dupuis in seventy-fifth with a did not finish.

Individual results in the boys' giant slalom were: Fisher in eighteenth place, with a total time of 1 minute, 4.97 seconds; Dupuis in twenty-eighth place, with a total time of 1 minute, 6.51 seconds; Mallory in thirty-first place, with a total time of 1 minute, 7.02 seconds; Teske in thirty-fourth, with a total time of 1 minute, 7.22 seconds; Attee in forty-fifth place, with a total time of 1 minute, 9.80 seconds; Baier in seventy-eighth, with a did not finish.

Individual results in the girls' slalom were: Margaux Rowley in sixth place for a medal, with a time of 1 minute, 4.26 seconds; Michelle Fritsch in twenty-fifth, with a total time of 1 minute, 16.01 seconds; Kelsey Poineau in forty-second, with a total time of 1 minute, 26.35 seconds; Katie Diller in forty-third place, with a total time of 1 minute, 27.08 seconds; Kristin Dupuis in forty-ninth, with a total time of 1 minute, 31.93 seconds and Brenna Bergmann in fifty-third, with a total time of 1 minute, 43.33 seconds.

Individual results for the girls' giant slalom were: Rowley in eleventh, with a total time of 1 minute, 1.85 seconds; Poineau in thirty-eighth, with a total time of 1 minute, 6.38 seconds; Diller in forty-fourth, with a total time of 1 minute, 7.32 seconds; Fritsch in forty-ninth, with a total time of 1 minute, 8.43 seconds; Dupuis in sixty-third, with a total time of 1 minute, 23.35 seconds and Jenny Rich in sixty-fourth, with a total time of 1 minute, 33.06 seconds.

"I am real happy with the way everyone skied," Miller said.

Volleyball team successful on the court

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Charlevoix High School varsity volleyball team beat Elk Rapids Jan. 8, 15-6, 15-9, in its latest conference win.

Coach Liz Grunch said, "Elk Rapids played pretty tough and we got tougher as the night went on. We never let down."

Individual bests for the game were Andrea Ruhlman with six kills, Kari Way with seven digs, Betsy Dennis with six digs and Becca Kanine went six for six with serving and had seven assists.

"It was a good team effort all the way around," Grunch said.

This win came on the heels of a win against Boyne City Jan. 5, 15-10 and 15-2.

On Jan. 10, the Rayders also took part in the Petoskey Invitational.

In this meet, Charlevoix split with Petoskey, 13-5, 15-9, split with St. Ignace, 12-15, 15-9, and lost to Cheboygan, 12-15, 14-16. But, the team did beat Grayling, 15-4, 15-10.

Grunch said the Rayders' serving hurt them at this invitational.

"We started playing better at the end, but it was too little, too late," she said. "It was a learning experience."

Individual bests for the tournament were Way with 22 kills and 23 digs, Ruhlman with 18 kills and 21 digs and Kanine with 49 assists.

Rayders wrestling does well in Alpena

Charlevoix's wrestling team had a very successful day Saturday at the Alpena Tournament.

"Our guys wrestled their hearts out both as a team and individually. I'm proud of everyone of them," coach Craig Golovich said.

First place went to Nick Gotshall with three pins, Matt Novotny with three pins, Jed Daman with two pins, Scott Sladek with one pin, Shannon Gillespie with three pins, Jaimen Waha with two pins, Jeff Golovich with three pins, Robert Gretsen with three pins and Cyril Jones with two pins.

Second place went to Zach Scharenbrach, Tony Kiernan, Nathaniel Sotuyo and Pat Russell. Fourth place went to Spencer Hankins.

Charlevoix travels to two tri-meets this week — Monday, Jan. 12 at Kalkaska with Traverse City St. Francis and Thursday, Jan. 15 at Mancelona with Frankfort.

Results for the Jan. 12 meet were unavailable before presstime.

Charlevoix hosts their own tournament at 10 a.m., Saturday, Jan. 17.

Midget hockey team beats Soo, Traverse City

The Boyne Area Hockey Paul Bunyan Lanes Midget hockey team is connecting the dots, improving their passing game and it paid off this past weekend as they won three of three games.

The team is made up of 15-18-year-olds from Boyne City, Charlevoix and Petoskey.

On Jan 10 the team avenged their tournament loss the prior weekend to the Soo's BB team by taking both games at home.

Boyne took an early lead in the first game and never looked back and won 7-3.

J.P. Fiedorek, Justin Conklin, Russell Williams, Troy Scarbrough and Darren Looze scored. Ryan Fields netted two. Assists were given by Stephen Cahoon, Josh Aown, Conklin with two and Cody Webster earned a playmaker with three.

In the second game, Boyne took the early lead again and kept it to a 3-1 victory.

On Jan. 11 the team traveled to Centre Ice to play Traverse City number two team.

Courtright had a shutout behind rock solid defense and Boyne outshot Traverse City 47-13 in the 7-0 win.

Assists were credited to Looze (with two), Scarbrough, Conklin, William, and William Brown. Goals were scored by Aown, Cody Webster, Conklin, Gabe Korthase, Williams, Brown and Stephen Cahoon.

Dog kennel causes rift between neighbors

Dan Barron, of Barron and Golski in Charlevoix, wrote that the ZBA's decision "seemed to fly in the face of fairness and common sense."

He claims in evaluating their vested right the ZBA must also consider the many years the kennel has operated up until this year when they were notified of the permit problem.

Barron said in applying for a new special use permit the township planning commission has "great latitude" to approve or deny that request. So the Hamiltons are risking their livelihood.

"The planning commission could approve or deny their request which could theoretically indicate they are no longer allowed to operate a kennel facility," Barron said.

Even if the Hamiltons are allowed to keep their current special use permit, it will have to be amended because the ZBA also ruled the scope of kennel operations has changed from what was approved in 1995.

At the December ZBA meeting, the minutes from the November meeting, when those major decisions to revoke the permits were made, were approved. Then, on Dec. 18, Smolenyak submitted a request for a rehearing on behalf of the Hamiltons for the permit issue.

Smolenyak said she did that because that is the way the ordinance mandates a rehearing move forward.

"It was not my personal decision to write a request for a rehearing," she said.

Barron followed up, filing an argument in favor of the rehearing on Dec. 31. Maynard's attorney Karen Ferguson, of Olson and Bzdok of Traverse City, has until Jan. 16 to respond to Barron's argument.

Then with these three documents in hand, township attorney Bryan Graham has to write his recommendation to the ZBA as to whether he feels the findings of fact they based their decision on were in error.

The ZBA is expected to make its rehearing decision at a meeting later this month.

In the midst of this permit mess the Hamiltons can continue to operate their kennel. But if the ZBA ultimately decides not to rehear the request and its decision to require the Hamiltons to get a new special use permit to operate stands, the township will likely end up in circuit court.

"Our only recourse at that point is to appeal to circuit court," Barron said.

With a lawsuit on their coat tails from the Hamiltons the township will also have to watch its back as the Maynards contemplate suing for reimbursement of their legal expenses. Mark Maynard declined to put a dollar amount on what he is trying to recoup but said it's a hefty bill.

He added that he is satisfied with the ZBA's decision to overturn the permits and require the Hamiltons to get a new special use permit under the current ordinance. But said the money he has spent to get them to do "the right thing" may now be their problem.

"I have spent so much money to get to this point — to get the township to do its job," he said.

Township supervisor Wayne Boss said, "Hopefully we can iron this out outside of court, but it probably will go to court.

> "Our only recourse at that point is to appeal to circuit court."

Women's center to host parenting workshop

A new parenting workshop, based on the best selling book, Siblings Without Rivalry will start Wednesday, Jan. 21, from 6:30 -8:00 p.m at the Women's Resource Center, 423 Porter Street, Petoskey.

They will find out how to deal with their children's negative feelings toward each other; how to treat their children unequally and still be fair; how to free their children from harmful roles such as "bully" or "victim" and how to respond helpfully when their children fight.

Parents will also learn how to resolve conflicts peacefully and promote a family atmosphere of cooperation rather than competition.

The six-session workshop is sponsored by the Women's Resource Center and will be led by Joann F. Townsend, ACSW.

The cost of the workshop is $80 per person or $85 per couple, materials included.

If you are currently receiving Medicaid, daycare assistance or the Food Assistance Program from FIA, you may be eligible to receive a scholarship for this class.

Please contact your worker for more information. Dates of the sessions are Wednesday, Jan. 21, 28, Feb. 4, 11,18 and 25. Certificates of completion will be awarded at the conclusion of the program.

You must be able to provide proof of previous completion of the How To Talk So Kids Will Listen course at the WRC or elsewhere. Advance registration and payment is required space is limited.

Hundreds of thousands of parents and professionals have already benefited from the Siblings Without Rivalry workshop created by authors Adele Faber and Elaine Mazlish.

THERE ARE GOOD REASONS WHY

PUBLIC NOTICE

APPEARS IN YOUR NEWSPAPER.

Currently, and historically, it is the responsibility of state and local government to publish public and legal notices here in Michigan's newspapers. This paper you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. And its pages hold your right to know what the government is doing in your community. In fact, it's law.

In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. That is why you have, and read, your newspaper, where public notices are published with accountable circulation and presented to you on these pages in clear black and white.

Chamber wants old post office for $1

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce has its sights set on getting a sweet deal on the city's old post office.

Chamber president Jacqueline Merta attended a joint Charlevoix downtown development authority (DDA) and city council meeting Jan. 12 to present a plan by which the chamber would acquire the former post office off Mason Street.

Merta told the two bodies that in the not so distant future, the chamber will be homeless. During the East Park and marina renovation planning process community members made it clear that there was no place in the park for buildings not directly related to supporting the park and marina, like the chamber office.

With those renovations likely starting in the fall of 2005 the chamber's time to plan for relocation is now.

It has been at its current location, in the building that also houses the harbormaster's office and public bathrooms off Bridge Street, since 1944. The chamber's area at the shared site is about 300 square feet and houses anywhere from four to five workers and a high volume of brochures at a time.

"It's very cramped quarters. There are thousands upon thousands of people that come in that office during the season and only two to three people can get in (at a time) to look at brochures," Merta said.

She said they need more space to provide promotion services that benefit both the city and the business community. But she added that they don't have a lot of options due to a tight budget.

Merta and a group of chamber board members that attended said the post office deal would be a perfect fit. The chamber has found it needs about 2,800 square feet of space and the post office is about 3,000 square feet. And under the chamber plan it wouldn't be much of a financial strain.

Her initial request was for the city to transfer ownership of the building to the chamber for $1 with a "reverter" clause that if the building is not being used for chamber functions, ownership would go back to the city.

"This is an opportunity for the chamber and the city of Charlevoix to continue our long, prosperous relationship to make the community a better place to live and visit," Merta said.

She suggested that the chamber move in once the city is done using it. City manager Mike Wiesner proposed a move of all city staff out of the building into the renovated city hall in July of this year.

Last spring, the chamber announced it was looking at the Advanced Geomatics building which fronts on Bridge Street as a possible new home.

But Merta said after further review they found it wasn't economically feasible and could present an ethical conflict with its members. In order to make the building work financially, the chamber would have to rent the bottom floor office space, which Merta said may make landlord members unhappy.

She said the post office proposal is a "much more viable option."

After further discussion, sale of the building was found to be less viable because the chamber is subject to property taxation and would have to insure the building.

According to Merta the chamber may not even be able to pay to maintain it and cover utilities.

In the current arrangement the chamber pays the city $100 a month to rent the Bridge Street location and the city covers utilities and maintenance costs. Wiesner said this isn't even enough to maintain the building.

Under a possible post office agreement Wiesner said, "The city is going to pay less operationally then we do now."

But chamber board chairman Maura Snabes said this added cost of maintenance and utilities may make the deal impossible for them to swallow financially.

Wiesner said too bad.

"They should be able to maintain it. Enough is enough, we give it to them for a buck and let them maintain it, at least the chamber could keep the building up and pay utilities. It's more than fair from what I've seen in city/chamber relationships," he said.

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce would like to lease this city owned building off Mason Street known as the old post office for its new home. The chamber would like to pay the city $1 for the building. The matter is under discussion by the council.

No monthly lease payments were discussed.

This possible lease arrangement with the chamber handling maintenance and utility costs was supported by the majority of the DDA and council members who said they think the city maintaining ownership is important. And it would be a comfortable situation for the chamber.

But third ward council member Shirley Gibson said everyone is forgetting a hig group, the taxpayers who she said are getting the short end of the stick.

She feels whoever uses the building should be charged the market rate.

"I don't know of any other business in town that could lease or buy a building for a dollar," Gibson said.

She requested an appraisal figure from Wiesner who told her he did not know its value. He did say that the city purchased the building 15 years ago for $70,000. Earlier in 2003 the city also invested $60,000 into renovations there to make it a working office for city staff during city hall renovations.

"I think its pretty pathetic that the city manager can't give me an appraisal figure on that building, but wants to give away public property which I would guess is worth half a million, for one dollar to a special interest group. Would he be so generous with any other political group, I don't think so," Gibson said.

The Chamber will return with a more definite lease proposal at a joint DDA and council meeting scheduled to take place at 5:30 p.m., Feb. 23 in the Coast Guard training room located at 109 Bridge Park Drive in Charlevoix.

At that time Gibson said she wants to see "their financial report" and a better plan than what was proposed on Monday.

DDA may have funding for marina costs

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority (DDA) may have to amend its plan to accommodate the marina project.

The Michigan Waterways Commission has committed to fund 75 percent, or $6.8 million, of the city of Charlevoix's marina renovation project. This leaves 25 percent, or $3.8 million, for the community to come up with.

The city has no fund with this sizable chunk of change in it and will have to look at a long-term plan to service the debt.

At a joint meeting of the DDA and city council Jan. 12, City manager Mike Wiesner said it would be feasible for the DDA in conjunction with proceeds from the marina to do just that. He anticipates the marina bringing in about $100,000 a year and the debt will cost between $242,000 and $310,000 a year for 15 to 20 years.

"It looks to me like you (the DDA) are going to have sufficient money to service the debt locally with DDA funds," Wiesner said.

But the current, approved DDA plan only runs through 2013.

In order to revise this plan, the community has to agree to the changes by passing an ordinance that extends the term and possibly increases the capture amount. Then, city council makes the final call as to whether the new plan is adopted.

Wiesner said there is no big rush to amend the plan because the DDA currently has enough funds to get the project started. At the end of March it is projected to have just over half a million dollars of non-designated funds in its budget.

On Dec. 12 the Waterways Commission voted unanimously to grant the city's funding request agreeing to pay for 75 percent of the marina related project.

Charlevoix resident and Waterways Commission chairman John Winn said the commission is operating on a tight budget and the project will have to be done in two phases. First, the 67-slip dock system and sea wall will be done.

The plan is to run the new bulkhead in front of the existing one in order to minimize the disruption of contaminated soils in that area. The cost to replace the bulkhead and install the dock system is $4.8 million.

Piers in the plan extend 220 feet at the furthest point. The northernmost pier extends 186 feet with a viewing pier running perpendicular to it. The pier below that extends 195 feet from shore, the pier south of it 220 feet and the southernmost pier 175 feet. Wide, open fairways in between, open view corridors to Round Lake from shore.

Then in phase two, the support facilities, like the harbormaster's office and boater's facility, will be tackled.

Construction of the new marina support facility and harbormaster's office where boaters can shower, do laundry, use bathrooms and check the weather and the harbormaster can watch marina activity and coordinate boat movement will cost $1.5 million. It is designed as an underground building with glass walls located at the foot of Clinton Street.

A walkout seating area and fish pond will be at this marina support facility at dock level. And a short series of stairs will walk up from Clinton Street to a viewing deck on the roof of the building.

However, when phase one will start depends on money. Winn said a lot is riding on whether Gov. Jennifer Granholm takes Waterways restricted funds and plugs them into the state's weak general fund.

He said the project will most likely begin in the fall of 2005.

Winn has said when it's done this will probably be the best quality marina on the Great Lakes.

This will be a welcomed change for a community he has described several times as having the second highest boater demand and the worst facilities on the Great Lakes.

The local share that the DDA may pay for will fund non-marina related work in the park including the new $1.2 million performance venue and any infrastructure costs unrelated to the marina.

Currently, project engineers Peter Pollack, principal designer with Pollack Design Associates of Ann Arbor and Jim Muschell and John Schlak of United Design Associates of Cheboygan, are working together to apply for permits to the United States Army Corps of Engineers, the Land and Water Management Division of the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality and the Michigan Department of Public Health.

Wiesner said he expects these permits to come through mid-year.

Honor was a surprise for Wallace

"She has always given freely of her time to improve the quality of the Charlevoix community. And, her efforts and successes have not gone unnoticed or unappreciated by the community." Snahes said at the meeting.

One of Wallace's most famous achievements can be enjoyed by anyone who walks Bridge Street. The trees that line the street were not always there and when Wallace campaigned for the trees, to bring life and shade into downtown, there was plenty of opposition.

But she never gave up and became a original member of the Shade Tree Commission and a driving force behind the planting of the trees.

"That is what I'm most proud of," she said.

Wallace not only persevered and brought trees to town, she also played an active role on numerous other boards including the Charlevoix Area Hospital Board and Charlevoix's City Council.

Her service on those boards helped shape Charlevoix. Her continued service with the downtown development authority and the Charlevoix Historical Preservation Committee will put the Wallace stamp on coming projects like the marina renovation and the possible establishment of a historic district.

She not only invigorated Charlevoix through her work on numerous projects, but also contributed to the business climate as a respected merchant operating Shop of the Gulls.

In Septemher, after almost four decades of work, Wallace handed over her title as the Bridge Street business owner operating in downtown the longest, when she retired.

She said the secret to her success in Charlevoix's tough retail climate was to give her customers quality service and products. This same approach was evident in her endeavors with the community that focused on bringing the highest quality services, programs and projects to town.

Looking back on these accomplishments Wallace said she is lucky to have lived life as she has so far.

Mayor to oversee commissioners' hearing

MAYOR

statute, these members can only be removed for 'inefficiency, neglect of duty or malfeasance in office.' This is a very high standard, reserved for the most blatant abuses of power. However, Mayor Campbell is not removing these members for abuses of power, but simply because he disagrees with the planning commission's decision to hold a public hearing."

He urged the mayor to reconsider and states that firing these commissioners makes no sense.

"Not only does the Mayor's decision bring with it the potential for future litigation and additional expense, but it does not comport with the city's guiding principle of 'good order for their government,' as written in the city charter," Logie states.

The mayor's Dec. 15 decision to start this removal process stemmed from the commission's Dec. 8 meeting. At that meeting, those five members made the controversial decision to set a public hearing to listen to Bellisimo and Gillette's request for the permit that, if approved, would open the door for their proposed assisted living facility.

The facility would be located on a two-acre parcel on Charlevoix's north side, off Petoskey Avenue, in the R-2 single family residential district.

This decision went against city council's Nov. 17 majority vote not to set a public hearing to discuss a zoning amendment to allow this type of facility as a special use in the R-1 and R-2 districts.

Gabe Campbell

John Campbell

Dennis Kusina

Richard Hodgson

While Logie helps them defend this decision he is also looking into whether or not Mayor Campbell can oversee the hearings as he is planning to do.

City attorney Jim Young, who will represent the mayor, was not available for comment as to whether the planned procedure is proper.

But Flanders said it's not fair for the accuser to also act as the judge. He called for an "impartial administrator."

"He (Mayor Campbell) will decide whether or not we've violated the regulations. He's already decided that," Flanders said. "It's like the old west."

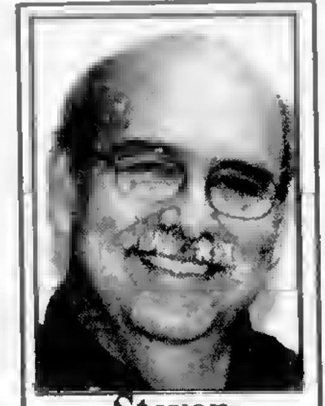
Flanders also voiced concern about why the mayor's legal representation, Young, is paid for by the city, but the planning commissioners are left writing checks and "twisting in the wind."

Before hiring Logie the commissioners asked Young to represent them. He rejected their request claiming a conflict of interest because he has to provide legal advice to the mayor.

In a letter the commissioners wrote petitioning council for attorney fee reimbursement, they state, "As you know, we are all private citizens who have volunteered for our positions on the planning commission. Accordingly, we should not be forced to bear the burden of legal fees that are directly related to a decision that we made in our capacities as volunteer city officials, especially since the mayor will not have to bear this burden."

Francis Flanders

In lieu of this unique set of circumstances the commissioners have requested council to reimburse their legal expenses up to $5,000.



Steven Bennett

This request will be considered at city council's next meeting scheduled to take place at 7 p.m., Jan. 19 in the Coast Guard training room.

Ambassador of the Year, Chairman Award given

AWARDS

Charlevoix Historical Society. Most recently, Adams was responsible for the city and society teaming up to preserve the lighthouse at Michigan Beach.

"I was absolutely shocked," Adams said of the award. "It was wonderful. It is obviously not why I volunteer though."

Adams said she did not know she was going to be getting the award when she went to the dinner meeting Thursday.

"My husband is still in trouble," she joked.

Stutzman was equally surprised over winning the Ambassador of the Year award that night.

"I was truly overwhelmed," he said. It meant a lot. It always means a lot with the community reaches out and thanks you. I hope I can continue to live up to that."

In her speech announcing Stutzman's award, Charlevoix chamber president Jacqueline Merta said, "This man has a special way with kids and people. He has a love for music that in turn makes his students love music."

Stutzman was born and raised in Charlevoix and graduated from Charlevoix High School. He has a bachelor's degree from Northern Michigan University, is a member of the Charlevoix Rotary Cluh and is very active in the Barnard Grange.

Stutzman was also instrumental in the completion of the Odmark Pavilion project and for many years he has volunteered his time to the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau Summer Concert series. He has also been the hand director of the Charlevoix City Band for the past 10 years.

Most recently, Stutzman has spent eight years as the director of hands. Under his direction, the Northwest Concert Band has received Division One ratings, which is the highest rating that any hand can receive.

Under his leadership the hand has released two CDs and he and his students have put on over 300 public performances, including a performance at the chamber dinner and meeting.

CHARLEVOIX BRIEFS

On the record

Shotgun, rifle leagues

The Snowflake Shotgun and Rifle Leagues are now starting from Jan. 11-March 20 at the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club, two miles north of the bridge on US-31. This is five-stand and skeet leaguers will shoot 400 birds (16 rounds). Rifle shooters may compete in as many as four categories-small caliber, hunting caliber, magnum caliber and youth-22s.

Open shooting at the club is available to the public from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Wednesdays, Saturdays and Sundays. Leagues are open to members and non-members for $10 for the first and $5 thereafter. The awards banquet will be March 27. Call the clubhouse for more details at 547-2785.

Ski racing

A ski racing program is offered at Mt. McSauba from 2 to 3:15 p.m., Saturdays starting Jan. 17, for four consecutive weeks. This is designed for first to eighth graders and the cost is $5 per session. All racers should be able to make it up the rope tow.

Call Erik Lundteigen at 547-2593 for more information.

Band concert

The Northwest Academy Band and Strings will be performing a concert in conjunction with the Crooked Tree Youth Orchestra at 4 p.m., Sunday, Jan. 18, at the Petoskey High School Auditorium. This collaborative concert includes the Crooked Tree Concert Orchestra and guests from the school, Crooked Tree Chamber Orchestra, Northwest Academy Advanced Band and the Crooked Tree Symphony Orchestra.

The advanced band will perform the music they are preparing for their appearance in Ann Arbor at the 59th Annual Michigan Music Education In-Service Conference, on Friday, Jan 23.

Blood drive

The American Red Cross will have a blood drive in Charlevoix from 12 to 5:45 p.m., on Jan. 22 at the Charlevoix Community Reformed Church at the corner of US-31 North and Meech Street.

Please call (800) 448-3543 for an appointment or just drop in.

Beginning in January all donors will be required to provide an ARC donor car, driver's license, or other government issued ID, prior to donating.

Witness for Life

Please join the "Witness for Life" from 4 to 5 p.m., Thursday, Jan. 22, at the corner of Bridge and Clinton Street in Charlevoix. This marks the date of the Roe/Wade decision of 1973, which legalized abortion. Signs are welcome. Call Marge at 547-2401 for further information.

Free throw contest

The local Knights of Columbus is sponsoring a Youth Free Throw Contest. All boys and girls ages 10 to 14 are invited to participate in the local level of competition for the Knights of Columbus Free Championship. The local competition starts at 3 p.m. on Saturday, Jan. 24, at the Charlevoix Middle School gym.

The Knights of Columbus Free Throw Championship is sponsored annually with the winners progressing through local, district, and state competition.

International champions are announced by the Knights of Columbus International headquarters based on scores from the state-level competitions. All boys and girls 10 to 14 years are eligible to participate and will compete in respective age divisions.

Participants are required to furnish proof of age and written parental consent. For entry forms or additional information contact Shawn McDonough at 547-5437.

SCRAPBOOK

Writer tells tale of fighting frozen lakes

Marilyn Boss

'Days gone by'

There is a sad, true story that I remember hearing from the time I was a small child.

It happened on Feb. 8, 1936, which was a Saturday. The weather was very cold, but five fishermen would go out on the ice each day during the winter months. They were not fishing for fun, for the depression had hit rock bottom, and they needed the fish.

The men were: Clayton E. Brown, 25, his father-in-law, Claude Beardsley, 51, Cleo Lapeer, 50, his son Lloyd, 18, and Gene Berst, who, at 72, was the oldest of the group. Clayton was six foot one, and weighed 176 pounds, and was considered to be a very fit man. They all were Charlevoixians.

Their winter fishing grounds were five or six miles out from Bay Shore. Clayton was a construction worker in the summer and he fished for a living in the winter, as there was no other work. They fished for trout, ate some and sold the rest.

Without the fish, there was no money for groceries. Ten or 15 men fished each day right after daylight and stayed out on the ice until just before dark.

They figured a good day was catching five or six trout apiece. Most of the fish weighed about 5 or 6 pounds.

They would fish over the reefs in 100 to 150 feet of water, where the fish were. They could then yank the line and catch the fish. They would then quickly bring up the fish, throw it over a shoulder and fling it across the ice, making it an easy way to bring it in.

That cold morning, they could see the ugly look of a storm brewing off shore from the south east, and that gave them concern. If the ice might break off, it would be blown out into the open lake.

They decided to take the chance on the weather and move to safer grounds, which was between two points that jutted out into the lake, Big Rock and South point. That particular place was safer, and if the ice broke there, it usually would break along a line about a mile from shore. This was known as The Crack.

They felt they could get back to shore if they had trouble. When they went out to their regular fishing grounds, they would take a 16 foot clinker boat along. Their big dog would pull it. Because they were only going a mile out, they felt they didn't need it, so they left the boat and the dog behind.

They dragged their outfits behind them on small sleds and started shortly after breakfast. The sleds carried ice spuds, lines weighted with four ounces of lead, which they needed to get the hooks to the bottom and the box of herring, which was the bait. They had a net set near the shore, which kept them in a good supply.

Also, each man carried three poles and a strip of canvas 6 or 8 feet long. These were used as a shelter from the wind. They set the poles up in a triangle, and hung the tarps on the two windward sides to protect them.

The wind had stripped the ice of most of the snow, and it was two to four feet thick. When they reached The Crack, they saw that it had broken away earlier, but had blown back, and refrozen. Clayton stopped there, figuring that the others could go out farther and he would be right there to signal them in case the crack widened again.

He had fished for about an hour when he realized that his line was slanting toward the shore. Somewhere between him and the shore, the ice had broken off. Now the slab was moving out into the open lake.

The wind was rising, and he shouted a warning. The five men grabbed their gear, and raced for the shore, but didn't make it. They were adrift on a piece of ice, a mile wide. Going adrift on the ice happened to someone almost every year and no one had ever been lost. They knew someone would send help, so they weren't alarmed at that point.

Then, the weather began worsening, the wind blowing up a gale, and the temperature dropped.

They also were concerned about how much cold a man of 72 could take. The men were all warmly dressed and were experienced in the outdoors. They felt helpless, though, watching the distance between land and their ice widen as the wind steadily drove the flow out.

They waved their windbreaks as a distress signal, which was all they could do. Someone on shore gave the alarm, and a boat from the U.S. Coast Guard station was launched. It was a 16 foot flat-bottom skiff with only one set of oars. It was not adequate, but at that time of year, the other boats had been laid up for repairs.

The men had drifted about one mile from shore when the boat launched. The Coast Guardsman at the oars was rowing with the wind and even though the wind was blowing very strong, he reached the men with no difficulty.

Berst and the two Lapeers climbed in with him, and they started back. The boat couldn't carry them all, so Beardsley and Clayton stayed behind, thinking that everything would turn out fine, with the boat coming back for them.

With only one man at the oars, they realized he could barely make headway against the howling wind. It was 4 p.m. before the boat reached the beach. Clayton and his father-in-law had been carried three or four miles out into the lake and the ice field was beginning to break up. Then, they saw the boat coming back, with the oarsman, Earl Cunningham. He was from the Charlevoix station.

Beardsley and Clayton crawled into the boat and they set out for shore. Then, a snow squall swept across the ice, making visibility nil. No land could be seen.

Clayton noticed that Cunningham was not dressed for the chilling cold. He was wearing a pea jacket over a light uniform, thin mittens and overshoes.

Clayton's clothing consisted of heavy wool underwear and shirt, two pairs of wool pants, a vest, leather jacket, and a sheepskin coat. He had a warm cap that he could pull down, and heavy chopper mittens. His feet were protected by two pairs of thick wool socks inside warm slippers under fleece-lined overshoes.

It was getting dark and the snow was so heavy in the air that they could see nothing but the bobbing blocks of broken ice and the black, churning seas. The men were working with an ax to break off the ice forming on the boat, but soon the load of the ice grew heavier and the boat settled lower in the water.

When there was a lull in the snow, they could see the distant lights of the water tower in Charlevoix, but as they grew farther and farther away, they knew they were losing their battle with the wind.

Around midnight, the men gave up. They had less than four inches of freeboard left and the boat was so heavy with ice that they were barely moving through the water. They turned downwind and rowed back toward the ice field.

The temperature fell to 35 degrees below zero that night. Clayton said that only those who had been out on Lake Michigan in such a storm could realize the treachery and savagery of those winter gales.

I will write the exciting continuation of this story next month, telling of their desperation, agony, death and rescue.

Hearing on firing postponed

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

A hearing to discuss removal of five Charlevoix Planning Commission members was canceled last week while the group waits for information to build its case.

The hearing was scheduled to take place Friday night, Jan. 16. But the day before, an attorney with the Grand Rapids firm Warner, Norcross and Judd, sent a letter to city attorney Jim Young requesting the hearings be adjourned until the city fulfills commissioner John Campbell's Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request.

John Logie, the attorney representing the commissioners, said, "I would say we feel there is urgency to try to clear this up, but haste makes waste. We want the information we requested before we try to defend ourselves."

The FOIA request was made to gather documents Logie said he thinks are relevant and helpful to his defense of the allegations made by Mayor Gabe Campbell against the commissioners.

On Dec. 15 Mayor Campbell announced his plans to dismiss commission chairman Dennis Kusina and commissioners, John Campbell, Francis "Brownie" Flanders, Steve Bennett and Richard Hodgson.

He has charged them with neglect of duty/inefficiency for their alleged failure to adequately review and study a special use permit application filed by Diane Gillette and Ruth Bellisimo, owners of Sunnybank Retirement Community, before they set a public hearing.

He also has charged them with inefficiency, claiming the commission set the hearing for Sunnybank without first resolving legal issues related to whether they could set the hearing under the city's zoning ordinance.

The mayor's decision to start this removal process stemmed from the commission's Dec. 8 meeting. At that meeting, those five members made the controversial decision to set a public hearing to listen to Bellisimo and Gillette's request for the permit that if approved would open the door for their proposed assisted living facility.

The facility would be located on a two-acre parcel on Charlevoix's north side, off Petoskey Avenue, in the R-2 single family residential district.

This decision went against city council's Nov. 17 majority vote not to set a public hearing to discuss a zoning amendment to allow this type of facility as a special use in the R-1 and R-2 districts.

The information commissioner Campbell requested is being gathered to help Logie defend their

Wal-Mart: Only minor changes

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Only minor changes have been made to the new Wal-Mart plan proposed for Charlevoix Township according to a company official.

"There are no real big changes," Chris Danos, real estate manager for Wal-Mart said of the company's plans for a supercenter in Charlevoix Township.

He said some minor changes were made to the building and area to keep as much of it away from Stover Creek as possible. These were based on public comments made when Wal-Mart brought a conceptual plan to a September Charlevoix Township planning commission meeting.

Danos said everything else, including building size and parking spaces, has remained the same as it was in the conceptual plan.

At a Charlevoix Township planning commission meeting in September, Wal-Mart officials presented a conceptual plan for a supercenter to be located on US-31 South, near Marion Center and Stover roads.

Parrish fired as coach of girls' basketball

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

After many years coaching girls' basketball at Charlevoix High School, varsity head coach Jim Parrish was fired.

At the school board's Jan. 12 meeting, the board voted unanimously in favor of following the recommendation of athletic director Jim Kanine to let Parrish go.

Jim Parrish

"Jim Parrish is a wonderful person and he did some fine things for our basketball program, but the program wasn't moving in the direction we wanted to go," Kanine said.

Parrish has coached at the high school on and off over the past 10 years serving as freshman team head coach, varsity assistant coach and then, in 2001, took over the varsity head coach's position when Jason Otter resigned after a firestorm of controversy.

But Parrish's time in the lead position was cut short when he failed to meet improvement requirements outlined by Kanine.

"I guess they didn't think I was doing enough as a varsity head coach," Parrish said.

At the end of the 2002 basketball season Kanine told Parrish that if a number of things didn't improve in the 2003 season a coaching change would be made.

These included practice organization, conditioning to prepare for games, performance and execution of the team, communication with players and parents and leadership of the program.

Kanine wrote in Parrish's 2003 season evaluation he saw some improvement with practice organization. He stated that concerns about practice time and pre-game shoot-around were addressed, but took issue with practice supervision. On three occasions Parrish had other people run practice.

Conditioning concerns were also noted as improved. Kanine wrote that players were ready to play both skill-wise and mentally.

Kanine's team performance concern was not met.

He recognized injuries to starting players Grace Farrell and Jamie Pettis as an impediment to the team's success. But he said the 10-0 start before these injuries happened should have been supported by more post injury wins.

"A good team should be able to have other team members step forward if a key player is injured," he wrote in Parrish's evaluation.

Parrish said in his defense that in the post season, his team pulled out two wins over East Jordan and Elk Rapids to land them in the district finals. Parrish and the team went to the finals all three years he coached.

Kanine recognized this accomplishment and said it may have been enough to save him from further criticism.

In the evaluation he wrote, "Advancing to the district finals (this year) probably again helped to quell the rumbling from those people who want a coaching change."

Kanine refused to comment as to who "those people" are.

While the district finals appearance may have been enough to "quell the rumbling," it wasn't enough to save Parrish's job.

These improvements were overpowered by what Kanine called communication and leadership problems. This prompted the school's administrative team made up of Kanine, principal Gary Grundman and Superintendent Dr. John Sturock to recommend Parrish be fired.

"We tried to treat Jim Parrish fairly, but any time a decision is made that doesn't go the way you want it to be made, it's difficult on people," Kanine said.

Parrish said he knew this decision could be coming, but is disappointed.

"I would have liked to have another chance at doing well with this group, but that's not the way it is so I'll move on," he said.

He plans to help his daughter, Lisa Greenier, the head coach of the East Jordan High School girls' basketball team, coach.

As he moves on to other coaching endeavors he leaves an open seat on the Charlevoix varsity girls' basketball bench that he thinks will likely be filled quickly.

"They probably have someone else in mind," he said. "Someone has a deal someplace and I don't know what it is. I'm not in the loop, so I'll just have to wait and see how it flushes out."

Kanine said no one has been pinpointed for the position and he doesn't know when applications will be accepted for it.

Working toward a better solution for all

EDITORIAL

Eventually, all problems can be worked out.

This is a lesson that the community of Charlevoix is learning. Combined with hard work and dedication on all sides of the issue, all problems have a way of working themselves out and to the benefit of everyone involved.

Take for example the possibility of Charlevoix City Mayor Gabe Campbell and the Charlevoix Planning Commissioners he threatened to fire coming to a settlement. After lots of bickering back and forth, it seems that these two sides are finally going to work toward an amicable solution to the problem.

If only they would have started working on this solution a while back instead of turning city politics into the equivalent of an elementary school playground fight.

Perhaps, it is hoped, these two sides' gestures of coming together will bear fruit and the city will be spared any more of this embarrassing bickering and any more unnecessary costs.

And then there is another example of elected officials of this community working to find a solution to a problem this week in the Charlevoix School Board.

For a while now the board has been trying to figure out a way to make students safer as they cross Bridge Street to get to the Charlevoix Middle School.

In the process they have discussed a light and a crossing guard and have requested the Michigan Department of Transportation look into the matter. Well, we all know how long it takes for state government to move on anything, so while waiting for the Michigan Department of Transportation, the school board came up with a temporary solution.

Under this new plan, students need to have the permission of a parent before walking across Bridge Street to the Charlevoix Middle School. Plus, the board has created some new bus routes for students living on the west side of Bridge Street.

With the help of the Charlevoix Police Department, the plan has been working so far.

Good job and keep it up.

New snow tells who has been visiting your yard

Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

One of the few pleasures related to our almost daily lake effect snow showers is the possibility of knowing what has been going on in our yard and neighborhood overnight.

That new coat of a few extra inches of bright snow captures the wildlife events that happened while we slept. Every creature that has visited leaves its signature in the snow.

I am not what you could call a great tracker who can read the entire history of an animal from a few of its tracks, but I can recognize most of the common visitors and see what they have been doing. It's a little like being able to play a videotape of the night's events at leisure. And there is almost always some mystery to the patterns in the snow. Why did the animal stop here? Why did it turn at this place? Who was here first and who followed?

Deer come by most nights, when it isn't too cold, and apparently they walk within a foot of our back door before wandering across the back yard and down the alley. There is a fox in the neighborhood (we have seen him during the daylight hours), and he seems to have visited our yard while snooping about for the rabbit that lives under the large cedar. We haven't seen the rabbit, but his tracks betray him, both to us and to the fox. There is the occasional free-range dog, but their track pattern is enough different from the foxes to be clear.

We have a resident chipmunk that either lives in the garage and ventures out just around its corner or he lives around the corner and ventures into the garage. There is a chipmunk-sized opening at the edge of the door that is his exit or entry point. I have seen him only once in four years, but his tracks are there almost every winter morning.

If you live near enough to young woods or old orchards to have ruffed grouse in residence you can look for the miniature snow angels they leave. On cold nights where there is deep fluffy snow, a grouse will dive into the snow and disappear completely from sight. With the morning sun it will fly out of the snow, leaving a small depression with wing marks on either side of it: a beautiful, ephemeral sign of the persistence of life in difficult conditions.

Even people leave telltale tracks. I've often thought it would be a good idea to have and identifying registration number molded into or attached to all snowmobile treads, such that with each rotation of the tread the number was printed in the snow. It would be obvious where both the good actors and the bad actors had been.

Finding inexpensive outdoor entertainment may be more difficult in the winter, but the signs are there if we will only look for them.

Planning commission doesn't have to approve

Editor:

Dear Charlevoix Township Planning Commission members: In a few days, you will be asked to make one of the most important land use decisions that you will ever make as planners. You will be deciding on the merits of a plan for a Wal-Mart supercenter in your township. And even though it is located in your back yard, this decision will have critical implications for everyone with a Charlevoix address and beyond.

As a former planning commissioner, I understand the importance of basing your decision on whether the plan submitted meets the requirements of the Charlevoix Township Zoning Ordinance and Master Plan. I am writing to ask you to focus on certain sections of those documents; sections to which you may not have paid close enough attention in past site plan decisions.

These are sections that would allow you to control sprawl. Section 9.5, A.1. talks about development being "harmonious, compatible and appropriate in appearance with the existing or intended character of the general vicinity and that such use will not change the essential character of the neighborhood..." Section 9.5, A.2, says the proposed use, "shall not be hazardous or disturbing to existing or future uses in the same general vicinity." Section 9.5, A.8, says the proposed development, "shall be consistent with the township master plan."

The Master Plan has a business section. Its goal is: "Concentrate new business development at identifiable community centers and encourage the improvement and consolidation of existing business facilities." The objectives talk about "discouraging commercial strip development" and the "consolidation, revitalization and improvement of existing commercial areas, both aesthetically and functionally, into strong, unified and active service centers."

It is clear that sprawl is getting out of hand, especially in the US-31 South area. There may be some justification for past decisions that allowed shopping centers in your township on the outskirts of Charlevoix, but how far should this kind of development go? Maybe it is time for Charlevoix Township to draw its own line in the sand. The above referenced laws give you the option of doing just that.

I believe that you have two justifiable options in making your decision on the site plan for Wal-Mart:

1) Deny the site plan because it is "not in conformance with applicable township plans and ordinances" (Section 9.3B) and require the applicant to locate in an existing shopping center if they want to come to your township. (There happens to be an empty store in the Kmart plaza).

2) Deny the proposed site plan, but indicate that you will consider a plan of smaller scale that would limit the total area of the buildings and number of parking spaces to not more than that of the largest existing commercial business in the township (Kmart). Also, the smaller size could provide for a greater buffer for Stover Creek. This may discourage them from locating here, but if they cannot conform to your plans and ordinances, they should not be here anyway.

It is my hope that you see this proposal as a challenge to begin a new era of responsible planning for our little community. Please use the tools you have to stem the tide of sprawl. Then maybe we will all learn the true meaning of the words: CHARLEVOIX THE BEAUTIFUL!

Support Wal-Mart

Editor:

It is time to address these personal attacks concerning the Wal-Mart issues. I choose to live in this community but do not choose to be dictated to about my "spending habits" and told to drive 20 miles if I want to save money. Or told that those who do drive the distance do not want to "save our community." My dollars spent here do help my community, whether it is to a local small business or a "big box company." I am tempted to start my own petition called "This is My Town too." I want a Wal-Mart in this town and I feel there are a lot of others out there who do too. But these are middle class working people who are busy taking care of families and they don't have time to sit and write letters and form committees when they feel something is an "eyesore" to the community. "Buying cheap" does matter to these people and a planning commission shouldn't be attacking the majority of this community. If you need to undertake a project maybe you should start by looking at your own city government!

Why not address the issues of empty buildings in town while a new professional building is being built. Or the "big box" video store coming to the old McDonald's, who moved up the road to be seen first, while that building sat empty for years. And are those two not "big box" businesses as well? What will go into the library when they move the middle school? And renovation of the city park? They are tearing down perfectly fine buildings just to add more boat docks to an already crowded lake. It seems that issues affecting upper-class citizens get overlooked, while middle and lower class are told to go somewhere else to do business.

And let's consider that issue; why would we want our citizens driving to another community to get gas, clothing and food? Has anyone done surveys on how many people drive to Petoskey or Traverse to do their shopping? Would it not be smarter to keep them in Charlevoix purchasing these items? It is more than a "few pennies" leaving our town, I bet it is several thousand dollars. If businesses in town are worried about the impact of a Wal-Mart, then maybe they should learn to compete with their prices and lower them. Or put out more advertising showing us a reason to shop here. Where would we buy school clothes, shoes, winter jackets and such? In those other towns! Because our downtown shops cater to the tourists! Not to its citizens!

I have had enough of the attacks! I wish to challenge the people who do want to see Wal-Mart come to town, to take time from your busy schedules and write some letters. Let's get out there and be heard as well. This is our town too!

No to Wal-Mart

Editor:

To the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission, Board of Trustees and citizens of Charlevoix: Let Charlevoix be a model for progressive thinking, thoughtful growth and unwavering town pride by keeping Wal-Mart a short 17 miles away.

A fascinating phenomenon is happening in our big cities. One example is Rochester. After 20 - 30 years of urban sprawl and growth, they are tearing down strip malls and big box retailers to put in downtowns like we have right now. There are small, quaint storefronts with fancy streetlights, trees and flowers and people are enjoying walking outside in the elements. Imagine that! It's called New Urbanism and if you're in planning or zoning you should know about it and be embracing it.

To the planning commission and board members, it has been so disheartening to hear the "there's nothing we can do" attitude. You can listen to the public. You can read all the information you can find. You can consider the environment. You can study the traffic impact. You can care about saving our downtown and quiet way of life. Most of all, you can stand up and fight for the town you represent and not let an outsider giant walk right in and leave its huge, ugly footprint without even a whimper.

It is challenging, but become educated, be progressive and let's skip the 20 - 30 years of damaging, uncontrolled sprawl and extreme growth that other towns have allowed. We can be leaders, not followers. And most important of all, take a sight-seeing trip to Rochester to see the future is what Charlevoix is now.

No to Wal-Mart

Editor:

I am a Beaver Island resident who feels very much a part of the city of Charlevoix. I was saddened to read that Wal-Mart was trying to invade this lovely, small town. I implore the citizens and governing body of Charlevoix to send Wal-Mart on its merry way. Charlevoix has many small, attractive and service minded businesses — we must not lose them.

Stop the bickering

Editor:

We call our town "Charlevoix the Beautiful." However, in light of recent issues perhaps we should more aptly call our town "Charlevoix the Bickering." Why? We constantly bicker over anything and everything. It's getting down right embarrassing. Are we ever going to grow up?

Recently we have the debate about the proposed site on the north side for Sunnybank Assisted Living. Our "illustrious" mayor has put the guillotine to a public meeting on this issue. This would imply we assisted living in our town. End of conversation. Mr. Mayor, have you no vision for the future or compassion for the elderly and our parents? And what about you and I when we can no longer live alone? Where will we all go? When that time comes I would like to stay right here and not have to go out of town. Wouldn't you? Gone are the days when we could simply move in with our grown kids. It just doesn't happen much anymore.

It is unbelievable that our elected leader and a few folks with deaf ears and cold hearts of stone can simply end this issue that is of vital importance to the future of the community. Do you not

New chamber board president named

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Charlevoix resident Maura Snabes has added a new title to her list.

Maura Snabes

Maura, 36, is a wife, a mother, a attorney and now, chairman of the board.

She was named the new chairman of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors by the organization's board and business members at the chamber's annual meeting Jan. 8.

She said with her children, Nicholas, 8, Alexandria, 3 and Blaise, 1, getting busier and busier, it was now or never for her to serve the chamber in this capacity.

As a working mother she doesn't have extra time. But she said her husband Christopher, a microbiologist working with PRS Environmental, is supportive of her effort to find time to volunteer with the chamber.

"I think it's (the chamber) very important. It helps promote existing businesses and brings new businesses, people and events that benefit the whole community. I think without the chamber there wouldn't be a lot of things that we have — it makes this a vital community," she said.

She started on the chamber board three years ago and has since served as treasurer and last year as vice chairman.

As a Charlevoix resident Maura has a vested interest in keeping the community vital. She and Christopher moved to Charlevoix in 1994 from the Detroit area after Maura completed her law degree at the University of Detroit.

She has been an active member of the community ever since. Maura is currently employed by Corporate Title where she is underwriting counsel for all 11 offices and has her own private law practice, Maura A. Snabes P.C.

While she keeps up at work and home this year she also has a full plate at the chamber.

"I am really excited about this year because we have a lot of things on our plate and high goals," she said.

Maura's chairmanship will bring with it fresh ideas for events. She also plans to work toward the chamber's goals for 2004 which include revitalizing the downtown, promoting businesses, finding a new home for the chamber, working on housing issues and working toward a shared vision for the community.

Car club announces scholarship

The Boyne Country Region Antique Automobile Club of America has announced two $500 scholarships for the coming year are being offered to high school graduates and seniors entering school for any phase of practice within the automotive field.

Those interested in applying should contact either their school counselor, their automotive high school instructor or by writing to the Boyne Country Region Antique Automobile Club of America Scholarship Committee, P.O. Box 902, Boyne City, MI 49712.

Completed applications for the scholarship must be received by March 1 and must include the high school principal's report (which may be obtained by the group) and a transcript of your high school grades.

High school graduates who have entered the work field must complete the application and return it with two letters of reference.

Boyne Country Region Antique Automobile Club of America is for those interested in preservation and restoration of antique, classic and veteran motor cars.

The club conducts several tours, meets and events throughout each year, the largest being the Antique Car Show, Swap Meet, Antique Show and Flea Market the second weekend in August in Boyne City.

Those interested in club activities or in becoming a member, may contact by writing to: P.O. Box 902, Boyne City, MI 49712.

Obituaries

Bruce E. Kroken: Died Jan. 1, 2004

Bruce E. Kroken, 58, a resident of Albuquerque, N.M. died suddenly Thursday, Jan. 1, 2004.

He is survived by his wife of 36 years, Patricia "Pat" Kroken of Albuquerque; daughters, Christina Barber and husband Tom of Lemoore, Calif. and Jennifer Amann and husband Pat of Dallas, Texas; and grandsons, Zachary and Jacob.

Bruce was the co-director of the Albuquerque Concert Band and a charter member of the Albuquerque Jazz Orchestra. He previously taught high school band in Wisconsin and was the band director at Manzano High School in Albuquerque. Most recently, Bruce was assistant band director at Desert Ridge Middle School and a mentor to band directors across the city.

A memorial service was Tuesday, Jan. 6 at Manzano High School Performing Arts Center. In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to the Albuquerque Concert Band Bruce Kroken Memorial Scholarship fund, c/o Bonnie Hustler, 7016 Foxford Ave. N.W., Albuquerque, N.M. 87120.

He was born Feb. 5, 1924, and raised in Bretheren, son of Joseph G. and Edith (Gilbert) McNamara. He graduated from Brethren High School and served in the United States Army during World War II.

In 1952 he married Sally Campbell in East Jordan. She preceded him in death in January of 2000. Ed is survived by his daughter, Susan, of Charlevoix; his son Tom of Rockledge, Fla.; his brother, Joe McNamara of Manistee; two nieces and a nephew. Besides Sally, Ed was preceded in death by his parents and sister, Marge.

A gathering of friends to celebrate Ed's life is being planned for later this summer.

In lieu of flowers the family suggests donations be made to the Charlevoix Area Hospital of Hospice of Havasu, P.O. Box 597, Lake Havasu City, AZ 86403.

Lawrence H. Ingalls: Jan. 25, 1940 - Jan. 14, 2004

Lawrence H. Ingalls, 63, of Charlevoix, died Jan. 14, 2004 at Charlevoix Area Hospital after a long illness.

Mr. Ingalls was born in Detroit on Jan. 25, 1940 to Henry and Ella (Lakies) Ingalls. As a very young child, he came to live in Charlevoix when his parents returned to the area of their childhood.

Larry attended school in Charlevoix, and graduated from high school in 1958. He later went on to earn his B.A. in business and his M.A. in international relations with help from the U.S. Army and G.I. Bill. In 1963, Mr. Ingalls enlisted in the U.S. Army, where he served for 20 years, retiring at the rank of CW2. He was a Bronze Star and a Legion of Merit recipient. During his Army career, Mr. Ingalls belonged to the Army Security Agency and was trained as a foreign language specialist. He spent time at the Defense Language Institute learning German, Vietnamese and Russian, though not all at the same time. Up until his death, Mr. Ingalls was still fluent in German, and could manage what he called "Cocktail Party Russian" and "Restaurant Vietnamese." Aside from one tour in Vietnam, he spent most of his Army career in Germany, where he functioned as an Eastern European specialist. After retiring from active duty in 1983, Larry went to work for the Army as a civilian employee in the intelligence sector. As a civil servant, he was able to work in Bosnia, Russia, Ukraine and Italy. He had a very good time in all those places.

Mr. Ingalls had a brief first marriage to a German woman and fathered a son, now estranged. In 1986, he married a New York City native whom he met working for the 66th MI Group and she survives. While this marriage produced no children, Mr. Ingalls was the proud caregiver of three ungrateful cats, Maverick, 16, Harry (The Meatloaf), 10 months, and Junior (Ferret Face), 7 months.

Always active in his youth in his church choir, Mr. Ingalls enjoyed singing in the Russian Choir in Monterey, Calif. While in Heidelberg, Germany, he was invited to join an award-winning men's singing group, the MSG Liederkranz, where he was the only non-German singer. An active member until his return to the United States, Mr. Ingalls remained on the roster as an inactive member until his death. After his retirement from civil service in 2001, Mr. and Mrs. Ingalls returned to Charlevoix. He was moderately active in the Charlevoix Historical Society until his death, and had just a tremendous time at his forty-fifth high school reunion in September of 2003.

Mr. Ingalls was preceded in death by his father. Survivors are his wife, his mother, a sister and her family, as well as various other relatives. Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix is handling cremation arrangements. A memorial service took place Jan. 16.

In lieu of flowers, contributions to the Charlevoix Historical Society as well as the Little Traverse Bay Humane Society would be greatly appreciated.

Delbert "Del" Sapatka, 71, died Jan. 13 at Mercy Hospital in Cadillac.

Del was born Feb. 11, 1932 in Manistee to Albert and Mary (Masunas) Sapatka. He married Irene Mary Pacholski on his birthday in 1955 in Manistee. She preceded him in death on March 31, 1986. He married Janet Potter on Aug. 29, 1987 in Cadillac. Janet survives. He was referred to as "Del the Lithuanian Prince." He attended high school in Bretheren. He was employed as a route sales driver for Herrud Meats for 25 years and worked for Schafer Bakery for 15 years retiring Feb. 29, 1992. He enjoyed bowling, golf, gardening, his special rose garden and his recipe books. He was a veteran of the Korean War and a member of the Elks Lodge and the American Legion.

He was preceded in death by his parents. School may have solution to dangerous crossing situation

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

> "We haven't given up on the situation. It's just on a temporary holding pattern while we see if the trend holds."
> Dennis Halverson,
> Charlevoix school board president

The dangerous situation Charlevoix students face when crossing Bridge Street may have been solved — at least for now.

An attempt by the school district to have the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) install a traffic light at Garfield and Bridge streets was slowed when MDOT representatives asked that a traffic study be done first.

Instead of waiting until the study was done, and MDOT made its ruling as to whether or not the light should be installed, school administrators teamed up with middle school parents to solve the problem.

The school board approved a new policy requiring parents to sign permission slips allowing their student to cross. The slip was attached to a letter sent to parents stressing the school's concern about students crossing the busy, four-lane highway.

The letter also reinforced that there is a school bus that will take all students to school safely and they don't need to walk. Bus routes were changed and four stops were added on the west side of Bridge Street to service all students, regardless of their proximity to school.

According to middle school principal Keith Haske, 40 students received their parents' permission to cross.

The city police then patrolled the area looking for students crossing and compared the names of those crossing to a list of approved names.

City police chief Dennis Halverson said in patrolling both the Garfield Street and Carpenter Avenue intersections with Bridge Street, about five to six students a day crossed, the majority of which had permission from their parents.

Those without permission were reported to Haske's office and he addressed the issue the following day.

He said this only happened in three instances and in each case the student returned the next day with a signed permission slip.

The results of the enforcement have been just what the school board was looking for.

"Since the letter went out the number of students crossing dropped considerably," Halverson said.

He added that this may be attributed not only to parental awareness, but also to the wintry weather which may have coaxed kids onto buses.

While city police patrols at the crossings have dropped off, Halverson said he still plans to have officers there periodically to monitor the situation.

Because of this dramatic decrease in crossings, the board's plans to pursue hiring a consultant to conduct a traffic study for about $5,000 has been put off. They also agreed to hold off on asking MDOT to do its own study.

Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools Dr. John Sturock said, "MDOT will do a one day study, if they come in and see no one crossing the street their recommendation won't be to put in a traffic light."

Instead of moving forward right now, when there are few crossings, the board voted at its Jan. 12 meeting to revisit the issue in March when the weather starts to warm up, tempting students to walk to school again.

Even though fewer students are crossing, the school board hasn't given up on providing a safe crossing route by having a traffic light installed.

Halverson, who is also the school board president, said, "We (the board) haven't given up on the situation. We are not walking away from it or throwing our hands up. It's just on a temporary holding pattern while we see if the trend (of fewer students crossing) holds."

Career speech

Seventh-and eighth-grade students from Charlevoix Middle School attended a career pathway luncheon at the Weathervane Restaurant Jan. 14. At the event they enjoyed lunch and learned about becoming entrepreneurs from Mike Stowe, owner of Great Lakes Motor Works in Boyne City. This was one of the lunches that take place monthly to prepare the students for future careers. The focus of the day was business, management, marketing and technology.

comprehend that people are living longer, which means a greater need than ever for this type of housing. (Notice I said "housing" not "business.") I have yet to hear a constructive and compatible solution to this dilemma.

This should not be an issue of who is right but what is right and good for Charlevoix.

Would you like to know what Sunnybank is all about? The exterior is an attractive one-story facility with nicely kept grounds. It is safe, caring, homey and reasonably priced. Upon entering one will come into a cozy living room with gas fireplace aglow. Beyond this is the dining room and kitchen and to the right are couches, T.V. and library. To the left, the beauty shop. Residents live on both sides of the main area in either a studio or one bedroom unit including a handicap bathroom. Each room is private and residents have their own familiar furnishings. A 24 hour emergency call button is worn by all.

Their needs are met, such as meals, laundry, cleaning, bathing and companionship, by a great staff. It is akin to a big caring family.

Yes, I have had personal experience with Sunnybank over the last three years, as my dear mom was a resident until she passed away. I had hoped she could live in a Charlevoix Sunnybank, but it never happened.

So please Charlevoix, let's be known as "Charlevoix the Caring and Cooperative." Let's all pull together and move in a positive direction toward an assisted living facility for our town.

Recreational authority, pool millage in works

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

A recreation authority may be the answer to the Charlevoix Area Community Pool's financial woes.

At Monday night's city council meeting, Tim Boyko, president of the pool board, announced that the pool plans to work with three municipalities to establish a recreation authority. This body will allow the pool to put a millage request on the November ballot.

The authority would cover the city of Charlevoix and Charlevoix and Hayes townships. Boyko said these are the three areas from where the pool draws the greatest number of users.

Earlier this month he attended meetings of the township boards in Hayes and Charlevoix townships and both agreed to approve articles of incorporation to establish the authority.

Boyko said the only question was in Charlevoix Township, where some board members wondered whether they would be giving up rights to their recreation areas like Shanahan Field.

Boyko stressed that when the authority is created the only thing under its jurisdiction will be the pool. However, he said in the future it could take on more projects like a skate board park and a disc golf course.

With the city of Charlevoix also agreeing to join the authority, the next thing to do is for each of the three municipalities to approve articles of incorporation. This document has to be ready by March 1 to put the authority in a position to get the millage on the ballot. Boyko anticipates this being ready for their approval at February board and city council meetings.

After the articles are approved the authority's membership will be formed. Boyko said he anticipates this including two members of each governmental body and three outside members.

Pool director Al Gooch said the millage request will be for .3 mill for 10 years which will cost a homeowner whose home is valued at $100,000, $30 a year. This request will only go before voters in the city and in Hayes and Charlevoix townships. Other residents outside those areas will not be taxed.

Gooch said if approved, this would generate about $100,000 for the pool, which would cover about a third of its operating budget. The pool still plans to charge user fees, seek grants and have fund-raisers, like the annual auction, to make up the remaining two thirds.

Boyko said if approved, the money generated from the millage will allow the pool to enhance programs it offers and add some new ones.

Gooch said it will also give the pool some financial stability. He explained that year to year it doesn't know what grants or funds are going to come through.

"We've had great support from the community for the pool — doing a millage is another piece that will help us be stable and plan from year to year," Gooch said.

The pool has been seriously considering establishing an authority and putting the request before the voters since fall. Gooch said the project became mobilized most recently when Mayor Gabe Campbell brought up the millage option.

In the past the mayor has not supported the city handing over money to the pool because in 1992 voters turned down a request to support building the facility.

At council's Jan. 19 meeting Mayor Campbell stuck to his guns when Boyko again requested city funding for the pool's dollar nights program. The request was for $6,900 to help meet a matching grant from the Frey Foundation.

Council denied the request in a tie breaker decided by Mayor Campbell.

Even though he voted against the city giving the pool money, Mayor Campbell said now is the time to ask the voters for their support again.

"I think it would pass and I would be willing to make a donation and pass petitions," he said.

FOIA request reason for hearing postponement decision to set the hearing.

Commissioner Campbell entered the FOIA request Dec. 23. In it he requested city clerk Liz Gooch, who is also the city's FOIA coordinator, to collect a slew of documents. These include documents related to the 1998 lot split of the proposed Sunnybank property. He also asked for documents related to the May Street Apartment complex currently under construction that the city was once sued over. His final requests were for documents related to Sunnyhank and documents related to the mayor's decision to fire the commissioners.

So far, it has taken two city staff members, Gooch and city manager's administrative assistant Linda Weller, 42 hours to fill the request. And Gooch said they have about 15 more to go.

Young, who is acting as counsel for the mayor, called Logie Jan. 14 and told him the city wouldn't be able to comply with the request before the scheduled hearings. Young asked for a 10 day extension which Logie said he had no problem agreeing to.

However, Logie needed this information to build his case for the hearings and asked that they be temporarily adjourned.

Logie should have the information by the end of this week and said he would then need time to review it.

Logie said he is hoping that while the FOIA request is completed and his firm pours over the information, the commissioners and Mayor Campbell will find a way to settle this issue.

"My hope is we will find a way to resolve this matter before the hearing," he said.

To resolve the matter both sides will have to agree.

The only way Mayor Campbell said he will agree to settle the matter is if the commissioners agree to rescind the motion they made to set the hearing.

"We can't have them making a motion for a piece of property that doesn't qualify," Mayor Camphell said. "I don't want to keep the city in turmoil. So, if they can come up with something reasonable and understand they can't do certain things, that's fine."

A new hearing date has not been set.

Boyne City/Charlevoix Road, US-31 to be reworked

The US-31 and Boyne City/Charlevoix Road intersection may become safer in the future.

Pat Harmon, manager of the Charlevoix County Road Commission, said the county was awarded up to $200,000 in a safety grant to improve the intersection.

Harmon said he is not sure what changes the county is going to make at that intersection yet. Currently, engineers from Northwest Design Group are working with the county to design a new, and safer, intersection.

After the design is approved, work will begin.

The county is hoping to have a design ready by mid-summer, Harmon said. Construction could begin in late summer or early fall.

Attorney fee reimbursement tabled

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Settlement of a dispute between Mayor Gabe Campbell and five planning commissioners is on the horizon but whether the city will foot the bill for the commissioners' legal expenses is still up in the air.

City council tabled the commissioners' legal fees reimbursement request at Monday night's council meeting.

Commission chairman Dennis Kusina and commissioners, John Campbell, Francis "Brownie" Flanders, Steve Bennett and Richard Hodgson were all threatened with dismissal by the mayor. The mayor has said they had no business setting a public hearing for an assisted living facility in the R-2 single family residential district.

Early this month they hired John Logie, an attorney with the Grand Rapids law firm Warner, Norcross and Judd, to help defend their decision.

In a letter the commissioners wrote petitioning council for attorney fee reimbursement, they state, "As you know, we are all private citizens who have volunteered for our positions on the planning commission. Accordingly, we should not be forced to bear the burden of legal fees that are directly related to a decision that we made in our capacities as volunteer city officials, especially since the mayor will not have to bear this burden."

Council was split on the reimbursement issue with first ward councilman Bill Haggard supporting reimbursement, while his fellow first ward representative Bob Timms said no way.

Third ward council member Shirley Gibson also said she won't support reimbursement.

Gibson said last year when she pursued a zoning debate with the city she had to pay over $2,000 in legal fees. She said if the planners are reimbursed she will submit her expenses too.

June Cross, a former long-time planning commissioner, said, "What they (the commissioners) did was wrong. I don't want my tax dollars going to pay for that fee."

John Dobulis, a member of the planning commission who has supported his fellow commissioners in their fight with the mayor, urged council to pay up now before it becomes a pricey legal battle.

"I understand emotions are involved in this thing. But the time has come to see if we can get rid of it," Dohulis said. "They (the commissioners) feel procedure was followed properly. At this point city council should cut their losses. If it gets pushed, it will be much more expensive than it is tonight."

To erase the past month of turmoil, Dobulis suggested to council that they settle the issue with the commissioners and pay their legal fees to date.

Commissioner Campbell, who attended the meeting, said he did not know the total of the charges to date. But a request made in writing to council asked for up to $5,000.

Council agreed to enter settlement discussions in this matter, but tabled the reimbursement request while they explore their options.

The fee issue will be back before council at a later date that has not been set.

Charlevoix area residents have the option of shopping at Wal-Mart in Petoskey. Opening a new Wal-Mart in Charlevoix will hurt Charlevoix's economy and small town character.

- "Wal-Mart creates a net job loss in communities because most of its sales are transferred from existing merchants, resulting in little or no economic gain to the host community.[1]"
- Profits from local business are re-circulated in the town, while profits from Wal-Mart Supercenter are sent to Bentonville, Arkansas.
- Local businesses contribute generously to a variety of community activities, yet in 2002, Wal-Mart donated only four-tenths of one percent of its revenue to charities that met their standards.[1]
- It is predicted that for every Wal-Mart Supercenter opened, two grocery stores will close.[2]
- Nearly 13,000 traditional American supermarkets have closed since 1992.[2]
- Carter's of Petoskey stated that Wal-Mart contributed to their closing.

Wal-Mart's plans for a supercenter will get a site plan review on March 3 at the Charlevoix Planning Commission.

Bob Hoffman, president of the anti-Wal-Mart group This Is Our Town, said members of the organization will be at the meeting in force.

"We think there are a number of issues that deal with wetlands and discharge into Stover Creek. We would like to see those issues addressed by the planning commission," he said.

As for the plan being in compliance with township ordinances, Hoffman said it might, but he does not know because he has not seen the official site plan yet.

"The only thing we know is that that property is zoned commercial. There are a number of other issues," he said.

Nancy Rajewski, chair of the commission and township trustee, said a decision could be made that night on the plan. She added it does not need the approval of the township board, only the planning commission.

Rajewski said usually there is no public hearing on projects which are before the commission for a site plan review. However, she will be opening the Wal-Mart meeting up to public comment, following Wal-Mart's presentation and a report from township consultants.

Speakers from the public will have about 3 minutes each.

Rajewski said plans for the Wal-Mart should be posted at the township hall around the end of this month.

At that time, she encouraged residents to examine the plan.

If they have any comments or questions, she said people are welcome to mail those to any of the planning commissioners.

The planning commissioners and their addresses are:

- David Christiansen — 13837 Division Street, Charlevoix, MI, 49720.
- John Haggard — 09375 Pearl Avenue, Charlevoix, MI, 49720.
- John Dixon — 09522 Cottage Point, Charlevoix, MI, 49720.
- Nancy Rajewski — 14590 Park Avenue, Charlevoix, MI, 49720.
- Stan Martin — 09150 North Pointe Woods Drive, Charlevoix, MI, 49720.

In the meantime, This Is Our Town is circulating a petition throughout the town for people to sign if they are against Wal-Mart's plans.

Hoffman said the group has not collected all of the petitions yet, but said there are already over 700 signatures.

This Is Our Town has been collecting signatures for about a week.

Hoffman said no one from the group has contacted Wal-Mart on this matter yet.

Danos said he has not heard from anyone against a Wal-Mart in Charlevoix and has not seen any petitions.

Wal-Mart officials said they hoped to have the store open in 2005.

This conceptual site plan was submitted to the Charlevoix Township Planning commission in September. While it is not the official site plan — Wal-Mart has until the end of this month to submit it to the township — a company official said the new plan has only a few changes from this one. Most of the changes revolved around keeping parking and the building as far from Stover Creek as possible.

Island sports gets sweep

By FRANK SOLLE
Special to the Courier

BEAVER ISLAND — The Beaver Island Islanders completed a double sweep against the Munising Baptist Bobcats here last weekend.

The basketball team topped the Bobcats 54-34 Friday night for its first win of the season, then claimed a 61-46 victory Saturday morning. The wins pulled the Islanders to an even 2-2 in Northern Lights League play, while improving their overall record to 2-4.

Senior Barry McDonough led the Islander charge with 18 points on Friday night and 27 on Saturday. Sophomore John Albin also netted double digits in both games, scoring 10 on Friday and 16 on Saturday.

Both games turned on key Islander runs. On Friday the Islanders broke open a tight game with a 12-0 run to start the third quarter and never looked back. Saturday's win was propelled by a 12-3 run over the last four minutes of the first quarter and then a strong 26-24 showing over the middle two quarters.

"We've had to totally reconstruct the team from last year," said first-year head coach Mike Myers. "This weekend was a confidence builder for us."

The volleyball team remained undefeated in league action with a pair of two-game wins. On Friday the Islander girls earned a 15-0, 15-12 win, while on Saturday the bested the Bobcats 15-5, 15-3. The wins put the Islanders at 4-0 in NLL action and 5-1 overall.

The Islanders' service game proved to be too strong for a young Bobcat team to handle. On Friday senior Kerrie Gillespie provided the service spark as she sent five winners over the net, including four aces, to close out the 15-0 game one win. In the second game Gillespie brought the Islanders back form a 7-2 deficit with another strong run that included three more aces.

"Kerrie has an awesome serve," said Islander coach Connie Boyle. "She gets in a groove and just keeps going."

Saturday it was fellow senior Rachel McDonough's turn to shine on the serve. McDonough's deceptively hard underhanded serve resulted in a 12-point run to close out game one. In the second game McDonough provided some strong defensive play while Gillespie keyed a crucial six-point run with a powerful overhand serve.

"We were well-prepared and our older girls took the leadership," Boyle said of the weekend's performance.

This weekend the Islanders host Paradise for their final home stand of the season. Friday night marks both Homecoming and Parent Recognition Night.

Rayders have to give up two games due to ruling

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

A case of messed up paperwork has cost the Charlevoix High School varsity basketball team two games.

According to coach Keith Haske, the team had to forfeit a game against Suttons Bay and one against Boyne City because one of their players was ineligible to play.

The player, Erick Grossman, had transferred to Charlevoix from Indian River to live with his father. Grossman's parents are divorced.

Haske said Michigan High School Athletic Association rules state a player can be immediately eligible to play for a team if he or she transfers to a new school due to a divorce in the family.

Once in Charlevoix, Grossman filled out paperwork showing the transfer and submitted it to the school. Charlevoix was suppose to send that paperwork to Indian River and the athletic association.

However, that was never done.

"We never followed up with the paperwork," Haske said. "I didn't know we didn't fill out the form."

The situation came to light when Grossman moved back to Indian River over the holiday break, and the school discovered they never received the original paperwork from Charlevoix.

"Erick did everything he was supposed to do," Haske said.

But, because the school did not follow up on the paperwork, the Rayders had to forfeit the two games Grossman played in. This leaves the previously undefeated Rayders with a 5-2 record.

Haske said he does not know how this will impact the season for the team, especially considering they wanted to win the league and one of the games was a league game.

"I know in our hearts, we are undefeated," he said.

Haske added he does not know if the team will appeal.

Basketball team adds two more big wins to its record

By ALLEN TELGENHOF

> "It was a game that met the hype and that doesn't happen too often."
> Keith Haske, Charlevoix coach on his game against Petoskey

The Rayder express rolled on again last week with two more victories, 63-61, over Petoskey and 86-48, over East Jordan.

The Petoskey game was hailed as one of the most exciting in recent Rayder lore as Jared Hunt's jumper at the buzzer won the game for Charlevoix against a tough Northmen squad.

"It was a game that met the hype and that doesn't happen too often," coach Keith Haske said.

The game was close throughout, with the Rayders holding a narrow 33-31 advantage at the half and 48-45 after three quarters.

"I thought the story of the first half was Ryan DeYoung (11 points in the half) and Cody Crain (10 points)," Haske said. "Cody made about three steals off Petoskey outlet passes and scored on them. Those were times when we were stopped, they got the rebound and still Cody turned them into points for us."

The Rayders extended the lead to eight midway through the fourth quarter as Scott Friske took control in the paint. But Petoskey's Anthony Wilhelm drained two key three-pointers and a Jordan Munson basket erased the Charlevoix lead.

The score went back and forth until the final possession of the game. Friske received the ball at the top of the key, penetrated and when the Northmen defenders collapsed on him, he calmly bounced the ball to Hunt who drilled the game-winner.

"Both teams didn't play that well until it counted," Haske said. "But they played as good as they could down the stretch. It was one of those games where the last team that had the ball was going to win it."

DeYoung finished with 17 points. Friske tallied 13 points and eight rebounds. Crain added 13 points and four steals. Hunt scored nine points.

The Rayders didn't suffer any letdown against East Jordan, racing out to a 34-15 first quarter lead and coasting to the win.

"It seemed like everything we threw up there in the first quarter went in," Haske said.

Charlevoix led 52-29 at the half and 76-44 after three quarters.

Friske led the Rayders with 17 points, 11 rebounds, six assists and three steals despite only playing half of the game. Hunt also scored 17 points.

Bryce Daly had nine points, six assists and two steals. DeYoung scored nine points as well.

Charlevoix, ranked fourth in the state in Class C by the Associated Press, hosted Harbor Springs in conference action on Tuesday, Jan. 20.

Results were unavailable at press time.

Youth hockey wins

Boyne Area Hockey Paul Bunyan Lanes hockey team did well in the Traverse City Invitational Midget Hockey Tournament on Jan 16, 17 and 18.

Sixteen teams from St. Clair Shores to Newberry participated.

Eli Barsy opened the scoring with a shorthanded unassisted goal.

Blue Water answered, then the defense took over. In the third period Russell Williams took a pass from Justin Conklin and powered in a shot on a short breakaway and Troy Scarbrough popped in a backhand to cap the 3-1 win.

Goalie Bobby Courtright made 20 saves and was awarded the game MVP.

The second game was against Mt. Clemens. Boyne's teamwork, tough defense and excellent penalty killing made the difference in this fast and physical game.

Fields scored with assists from Barsy and Conklin and Scarbrough put in the passes from Darren Looze and Cody Webster on a power play to make the game 2-1.

Courtright earned the win in goal as both teams put 14 shots on net.

Defenseman Ryan Fields earned the MVP.

Boyne cruised to a 6-0 win in the third game with Traverse City number two.

Nick Ferree earned the shutout in goal. Fields scored the opener through heavy traffic, Barsy took a pass from Fields and lifted it over the goalie,Webster popped in a pass from Josh Aown on a pretty wraparound. Williams drove in two slapshots, one on a pass from Evan Keller and the other from Britt King.

JP Fiedorek gave a pass to Scarbrough who shot the length of the ice and hit the open net.

MVP went to defenseman Josh Aown. On Sunday, the boys played Royal Oak in the semi final bracket. Boyne got off to a quick start when Looze scored with assists from Webster and Scarbrough just 13 seconds in.

Royal Oak shortly answered, but after Looze and Webster both scooped up rebounds and scored with assists from Webster, Felds, Looze and Aown, the score stood 3-2. With 8 seconds left, Royal Oak tied after capitalizing on a power play which gave them a 6-4 man advantage.

The game went into sudden death overtime and Royal Oak took the game with 1:04 left.

Courtright was in goal. Justin Conklin was awarded the MVP.

It's a pretty bold statement, considering we don't even know the question yet. Northwestern Bank is locally owned and each office is locally staffed and managed. Decisions are made right here by people with the answers, who are empowered to do what needs to be done. The person you ask is the person who'll make sure it happens.

You'll never get answers like, "That's not my department." Or, "You'll have to call this 800 number." When you ask anyone at Northwestern Bank, big things happen right away.

If your bank "can't do that," maybe it's time you found one that can.

Agriculture department to have hearings

The U.S. Department of Agriculture Natural Resources Conservation Service will have a public listening session in Lansing to gain feedback on a proposed rule to implement the new Conservation Security Program (CSP).

The meeting will be from 1-3 p.m. on Feb. 10 at the Clarion Hotel, 3600 Dunckel Road.

Authorized by the 2002 Farm Bill, CSP is a voluntary conservation program that supports ongoing conservation stewardship of agricultural working lands and enhances the condition of America's natural resources. The program is designed to reward the best conservation stewards of the most environmentally sensitive areas in targeted watersheds.

"We are holding the listening session to give the public ample opportunity to voice their opinions about the new program," said Ron Williams, NRCS State Conservationist for Michigan. "Last year, we used the public's ideas and suggestions to develop the proposed rule and now we are asking for comments that will help guide us in developing the final regulations for program implementation."

Public comments at the listening session will be limited to 5 minutes per speaker. Those who wish to speak may make arrangements in advance by calling Gloria Custer at (517) 324-5246 or they may sign up at the listening session.

If a sign language interpreter or other special accommodations are necessary, contact Gloria Custer by Jan. 27.

Written statements will be accepted at the listening session or may be submitted by mail, e-mail or fax to Conservation Security Program Comments, ATTN: David McKay, NRCS Conservation Operations Division, P.O. Box 2890, Washington, DC 20013; e-mail david.mckay@usda.gov; fax (202) 720-4265.

The CSP proposed rule was published in the Federal Register on Jan. 2; comments are due by March 2. The proposed rule and additional information on the program can be found at www.usda.gov.

New Gym Opens Saturday Night

Marks First Home Basketball Game of Season

Indoor Baseball, VolleyBall and Music by School Band Included in Program

Charlevoix's new high school gymnasium will be opened to the public for the first time on Saturday evening of this week, when the Red and White quintet takes on Kalkaska high school in the opening home game of the season.

Other features of the opening night program are a volley ball game between two teams composed of high school girls, an an indoor baseball game between two Charlevoix men's teams. In addition the Charlevoix high school student band will entertain with musical selections.

Work has beeen rushed to get the gymnasium ready for the opening night, and while not fully completed it is now available. Some idea of the dimensions of the new gym may be gained by the following figures. The interior floor is 56 feet in width by 95 feet in length and the basketball court is 42 feet wide and 85 feet long. Both basketball and indoor baseball courts have been marked out.

Other equipment includes drinking fountains and sanitary cuspidors on the end walls. Enough bleachers have been ordered for the main floor to seat 240 spectators and it is expected they will be available for the opening night. Balconies on three sides of the room equipped with three rows of opera chairs will accomodate 340 people. The large stage will accomodate many more and there is plenty of standing room in addition to seats. Fifteen large ceiling lights illuminate the playing floor in addition to a series of hidden lights beneath the balconies.

The gym has five separate exits so that a large crowd may leave the room in short time. One set of shower baths for boys have been installed and ready for use, but otherwise the basement is not completed.

However, the contractors have stated that unless unseen obstacles prevent, the entire structure will be finished by the end of February.

Ice Crusher Plows Path for Island Ferry At St. James

Blocked from entering St. James harbor Friday by ice which had formed that day, the North Shore had a channel plowed for it Monday by the Coast Guard's Mackinaw which came over from Cheboygan.

The Mackinaw took 25 minutes to ram a path through the ice and out again. The North Shore planned to sail again Thursday morning for the Island.

Beaver Islanders got a big laugh out of the published report that the North Shore was a rescue ship bringing needed food to keep folks from starving. Stores and homes there are well stocked for the next three months.

On the Lyons boat were two cars, four caskets, 20 barrels of oil, two stoves, 3000 pounds of coal, five cases of food fats, ten boxes bread, 15 sacks of feed, four cases tobacco, 19 cases liquor, 300 cases of beer and ten cases of wine.

Memorial Book Shelf at Library Sponsored by Club

A Memorial Shelf is to be started at the Charlevoix Library.

Sponsored by the Dickens Club

the purpose of the Shelf is to give citizens an opportunity to give books in memory of relatives or friends, and thereby add to the Library.

Four persons have started the shelf with gifts: Mrs. Harry Craig and Mrs. Archie Livingston in memory of their mothers; Mrs. Clair Webster and Mrs. Angus Fochtman in memory of their parents.

A specially designed bookplate has been obtained and one of these will be put on the inside cover. It tells who gave the book and in whose memory. Organizations as well as individuals can give books in memory of members, as can neighborhoods for a friend, or relatives for those who gave their lives during the war.

The library can supply infomation if help is wanted as to what book to buy.

The Memorial Shelf Plan has been carried out successfully in other places. In one town of 1300, during eight years 689 books which the public library otherwise could not have afforded were put on the shelves.

Stores Close for Half Day

Thursday Afternoon is Picked by Merchants

Most of City's Business Men Have Signed Agreement to This Effect

Merchants of Charlevoix have decided to adopt a most wise and beneficial policy. Under the signatures of practically all of the merchants on Bridge street, the owners of these stores have agreed to close their places of business at 12:00 p.m. each Thursday for the balance of the day during the months of February, March, April and May, and no doubt October, November, December and January.

The carrying out of this movement will give the clerks and themselves a chance to get out doors and do things they have heretofore had to put off until Sunday.

Putting is plainly, they have decided to get a little more out of life than has been possible under the old system of staying "holed up" between the walls of the store from Monday morning until Saturday night, with Sunday as the only breathing spell from one years end until another.

Local banks and dentists are included. Patrons and customers of the places of business and service, are asked to arrange their trading accordingly, and the favor will be greatly appreciated.

A large number of towns in the state take all of Thursday off, while others close their place of business at noon on Saturday. However, Thursday afternoon wil prove the best arrangement for Charlevoix with the exception of the busy months of June, July, August and September.

Pastors of our local churches will no doubt expect a larger Sunday church attendance, the increase being largely composed of merchants whose previous excuse for non-attendance has been "duties at my place of business tie me up six days a week and Sunday morning is devoted to taking care of the many little repairs and upkeep about the home."

Winter weather hammered the Charlevoix area last week, bringing several inches of snow and frigid temperatures.

According to Jim Caldwell, lead operator of the Charlevoix Water plant, the area received about 7 inches of snow on Thursday and another two inches by mid-afternoon Friday, making a total 59 inches of snow on the ground.

The average yearly snowfall for the Charlevoix area is 104 inches.

"We are a little over halfway there," Caldwell said.

Andy Sullivan, meteorologist with the National Weather Service, said the showers were the result of a very cold air mass moving over the relatively warm waters of Lake Michigan. The water temperature is currently around the mid 30s, but the air temperature is in the upper singles and teens.

Sullivan said there is more in store for Charlevoix residents this week. He said the cold air and snowy weather should stick around through this weekend.

Sullivan pointed out in late fall the National Weather Service did predict a slightly warmer winter, with average precipitation.

ZBA votes against Sunnybank

Attorney for developers may take it to circuit court

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The city may have told an assisted living developer no, but a circuit court judge could say yes.

The city of Charlevoix's Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) ruled Jan. 21 that professional office uses allowed with a special use permit in the R-1 and R-2 single family residential districts do not include assisted living facilities.

This means the application submitted by Ruth Bellisimo and Diane Gillette, owners of Sunnybank Retirement Community, can only go through with the help of a judge.

The application submitted in early December requested that the city planning commission grant Gillette and Bellisimo a special use permit to build an assisted living facility. The proposed property is a 2-acre parcel owned by Charlevoix resident Ed Amick that is located in the R-2 district off Petoskey Avenue on Charlevoix's north side.

Ed Engstrom, an attorney with the Charlevoix law firm Barron and Golski argued on behalf of Bellisimo and Gillette. He said that because there is no definition of professional office in the R-1 and R-2 districts that the same uses that are allowed in the professional office district, including nursing homes, are allowed as a special use in the R-1 and the R-2.

On Dec. 8 the planning commission made the controversial decision to set a public hearing to listen to the request.

The hearing was postponed pending an appeal by city manager Mike Wiesner and at that appeal, the ZBA ultimately ruled the facility is not an allowable use in that district.

The ZBA's decision circled around definitions of professional office and nursing home.

Because there is no definition of professional office in the zoning ordinance, the ZBA relied on a dictionary of general use to define it. After looking up the definition of professional and office, members of the ZBA

Annual Ride-In Saturday

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Thanks to favorable winter weather, the Charlevoix Snowmobile Club's annual Ride-In will be closer to home this year.

The event, which will be Saturday, Jan. 31, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., was usually at Ferry Beach. However, club president Bruce Wood said great winter conditions will allow the club to have the event in downtown Charlevoix this year at East Park.

"The trails are great. They are being groomed all the time coming into Charlevoix," Wood said. "They will be groomed several times this week."

This year's annual Ride-In will feature door prizes, free hot-dogs, hamburgers and brats, a membership drive and a T-shirt sale. Wood added most of the door prizes were donated by local merchants.

The club has around 50 members.

To get to the Charlevoix Snowmobile Club Ride-In, use the snowmobile trail to get to Ferry Avenue and then turn left on Belvedere Avenue.

Belvedere Avenue will take you into town.

Parking will be at Veteran's Park.

Wood said there will be signs leading downtown for snowmobilers or they can just follow the "green diamonds."

Blizzard Bags help area elderly in winter

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Over 10 inches of snow was forecasted to fall Wednesday Jan. 21.

This news was a thorn in the side of people in the business community that have to make the morning and evening commute to work. But for homebound elderly people in town it's more than an inconvenience.

Shirley Johnson, a Charlevoix resident who lives at the Pine River Place, said she feels a little anxious as she sits in her apartment watching the flakes fall and wondering if her next meal will arrive.

"I'm practically in a wheelchair, I don't get out," she said.

With no mobility and senior center meals on wheels volunteers unable to navigate nasty roads to get meals in the hands of Johnson and others, they could be left hungry.

But many area seniors are finding additional help through preplanning by coordinators of "Meals on Wheels" programs at both the Charlevoix Senior Center and the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging.

"They are not going to go hungry," Susan Bergmann, director of the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging, said.

The commission on aging sends extra frozen dinners out in early December and asks recipients to rotate them. On the weekends they get five hot meals and two frozen meals. If the weather is bad, they throw in an extra frozen meal just in case.

The senior center handles the nasty weather by assembling blizzard bags for the 17 people they deliver to every day.

The bags include packaged applesauce and granola bars, canned soup, cracker packages and juice.

"The people at least have something they can snack on and don't have to get excited about not having a meal," Earl Muma, director of the Charlevoix Senior Center, said.

Menus for the Meals on Wheels program are inspected by the Area Agency on Aging. Meal providers are required to include 3-4 ounces of protein, one cup of fruits and veggies, bread, dessert, milk, one serving of vitamin C, one serving of vitamin A three times each week and only one high sodium meal a month.

Those who are delivered meals through the senior center are charged $3. A $2 donation is suggested for those who partake in the commission on aging program.

For more information about the senior center's Meals on Wheels program contact the center at 547-5361 or for information about the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging program contact the office at 237-0103.

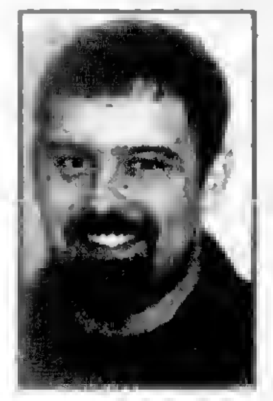
Walking billboards, road heroes and athletics



Jeremy McBain

'Just a thought'

Ah, the winter weather has arrived in Charlevoix.

It is during this time of the season, I find myself sitting back a little more and deeply thinking about things around me. Usually, a cup of hot tea is in my hand, maybe mixed with something to stimulate the thoughts further.

So, without further ado, here are a few things to think about this month.

Advertising

The other day I found myself at the Grand Traverse Mall. Before all the local merchants start sending me hate mail, I usually don't spend too much money there, I just enjoy people watching.

While there I noticed the massive amount of people who have become walking billboards. You see them every day, wearing T-shirts that say "Nautica" or "Guess" or whatever.

It seems that fashion is no longer the color of your clothing, its cut or the cloth that it is made out of. Fashion today is the brand name prominently displayed for all to see.

I could never get into this trend. But, it is so hard to find a simple shirt anymore without advertising on it. Have you ever really taken a look at what retailers have to offer in clothing? Just when you find a shirt that is the color and cut that you like, you look at the front to find some business name splashed across it.

Personally, I don't understand why people would want to pay to advertise a business. I am from the school of thought that says businesses must pay me to advertise for them.

Oh well, I guess I am just not as hip as I used to be.

On a side note — NASCAR fans have really taken this clothing as advertising trend to the max. I see several of them sporting coats now that are covered with the same advertising that is on their favorite driver's car. I find this very interesting.

The best one I saw was last weekend at the Grand Traverse Mall. Here was a middle aged man, walking around the mall with a NASCAR jacket on. And, in big letters across the front and back of this jacket was the word "Viagra" – which is a brand-name drug to cure impotence in men.

This was a man who was either proud of his erectile dysfunction or not really sure what "Viagra" is.

Snowplows

During this time of year, there is a hero that tends to be overlooked by the community.

This hero helps keep us safe on the roads, by clearing a path. He or she keeps traffic moving, helps us get to work and thus keeps commerce flowing.

This hero of the winter is snowplow drivers.

These men and women work long hours each week to make sure our drive to work or school is uneventful in the morning. Sometimes even over 60 hours a week. They brave chilling temperatures and whiteout conditions as they complete their task.

Sure, sometimes we get mad at them when driving behind one or they push the snow into our driveways. But think of where we would be without snowplow drivers....besides a ditch, that is.

Jim Parrish

It saddens and angers me that the Charlevoix Community School Board decided to fire Charlevoix High School varsity girls' coach Jim Parrish.

Parrish is a man who I have enjoyed working with over the last few years. He came to the program following the controversial resignation of former basketball coach Jason Otter and helped lead the team to success.

Along with his quiet and kind demeanor, Parrish led the girls' basketball team to conference and district championships. Even this year, when Parrish found himself without some of his star players due to injury, the team went to the district finals.

But, apparently this is not enough for some people in our school district. In his reasoning for wanting the board to fire Parrish, school athletic director Jim Kanine said he was concerned with Parrish's leadership, conditioning and the team's success, among a few others — all very minor.

Kanine even said that some people — who he wouldn't name — wanted a coaching change.

I am sorry, but I thought Parrish was a decent man and a good coach. He was a great example to the students on his basketball team and his team was successful, even if they didn't go to state finals.

The people of the school district — parents, administrators and fans — need to remember that school sports is about learning teamwork, the thrill of competition, athletic skills and bonding between students.

It is not about winning.

What will happen when Wal-Mart comes to town?

Edith Gilbert

'Behind the news'

The next time you drive to Wal-Mart in Petoskey, think how lucky you are that we don't have one in Charlevoix — at least not yet!

Yes, I know this mega corporation delivers phenomenally low prices, cheap groceries, promises new jobs and enriched local tax coffers. But at what cost?

When you buy for less at Wal-Mart, you are still paying — it's just a question out of which pocket?

Let's start with jobs that Wal-Mart offers. Workers who are hired for these so called "jobs with a future" are not likely to get more than $6.25 to $8 an hour and 70 percent of "associate jobs" are part time or 28 hours a week.

Associate positions must remain flexible and require some nighttime and weekend work. There is no overtime offered. As a result, Wal-Mart workers often turn to food stamps — paid for with our tax dollar — apply for the federal government's Earned Income Tax Credit and turn to states for aid in child support payments.

Is it any wonder that 500,000 workers quit these dead-end jobs every year?

What about Health Care? Part-time Wal-Mart workers have to wait two years for insurance, full-time employees wait six months for insurance, and the coverage has high premiums and deductibles.

Consequently, uninsured workers are forced to use emergency room services that we pay for.

Speaking of insurance, life insurance for Wal-Mart employees is actually a tax shelter for the company. Wal-Mart offers its employees something called "company paid life insurance" which turns out to be, according to Newsweek Magazine, a clever loophole in the federal tax code.

Wal-Mart agrees to pay $5,000 to the family of anyone who dies while employed by Wal-Mart.

Letters to the editor

Wal-Mart = traffic

Editor:

Have you considered the increased traffic congestion in our community if the proposed 157,000 square foot Wal-Mart Supercenter is allowed to be built? First of all, Wal-Mart has proposed closing Stover Road and adding a new traffic signal in the location of the old Silver Birch Motel.

Local traffic on Marion Center Road, M-66 and US-31 will be forced to handle an estimated 5,000 to 10,000 additional shopping trips per day to the proposed Wal-Mart Supercenter. That's not including the semi-truck traffic needed to fill up the big-box store that will travel on M-66 and US-31. Maybe you've already noticed the extra time in traffic at the corner of M-66 and US-31, and that's only with the relocation of the Post Office and the new high school.

What combined impact will summer bridge traffic and Wal-Mart traffic have on our town? Where will the traffic through town end? Two summers ago, it took me an hour to get to Wolohan's to buy a sheet of plywood. Do we as year-round Charlevoix residents, want to experience Venetian Festival traffic everyday so people in East Jordan, Ellsworth, Torch Lake, and others can shop at a Wal-Mart Supercenter?

We already have a Wal-Mart Supercenter only 20 minutes away.

Dave Beane

Don't worry about Wal-Mart

Editor:

Local merchants and residents should not worry about Wal-Mart coming to a nearby township. They, instead, should worry about how to come up with $3.8 million dollars for a marina project that probably isn't needed either.

Richard L. Weidinger
Ellsworth

Wal-Mart will hurt

Editor:

We all know the movie "It's a Wonderful Life." In it, George Bailey was able to see what would have happened to his community if he had not existed; now there's something to think about.

What would be the economic effect of a Wal-Mart in Charlevoix? Many towns have taken the time to do an Economic Impact Study and have found it would be detrimental to have this type of supercenter in their community so they have denied zoning on that basis alone. The town of North Elba, who oversees the development of Lake Placid, New York a small tourist town very similar to ours, enacted zoning laws that call for "any undue adverse impact on the natural, physical, social and economic resources of the Village/Town [to] be avoided." Their Economic Impact Study showed that it would take up to 14 years to refill vacant space caused by the construction of a superstore. Another Economic Impact Study done on three small, adjacent towns in Maine showed that 44.6 percent of the local businesses' revenue was spent within the surrounding two counties. This compares to 14.1 percent for a major big box retailer. That is money that will no longer go to local banks, manufacturers, newspapers, repair people and, maybe more importantly, local charities. The Maine study showed that the local businesses contributed four times as much, based on overall sales, as Wal-Mart gave to charities in 2002. How do we suppose that will affect local schools, food banks, the pool, the Venetian Festival and of course the Petunia Patrol? Imagine what this community will be like if the stores directly affected by this didn't exist. It's not that just the stores would be vacant, the jobs would be lost, the money that flows back into our local economy would be lost and our very sense of community would be lost.

I do not want to overlook the environmental effects this will also have. In June, 2001, the Department of Justice settled multiple Clean Water Act violations with Wal-Mart to the tune of $1 million and a $4.5 million environmental management plan that was intended to improve their compliance with environmental laws. Only two years later, in 2003, the Attorney General of Connecticut is suing several Wal-Marts and Sam's Clubs for failing to obtain the necessary permits for wastewater discharge. The Attorney General said, "There is a clear pattern of corporate

This is not a fortune, but it is free and give employees a reason to sign up. Wal-Mart, of course gets tax deductions that are worth far more than the death benefit it pays to the family.

In southern California 70,000 grocery workers have been striking major local chains for over 4 months, because the companies are demanding a 50-percent cut in workers' medical coverage, plus a two-tier wage system that denies new employees good middle-class wages now being paid to grocery workers. The companies claim that potential Wal-Mart competition is forcing their hand. We already know what Wal-Mart has done to the toy stores.

Professor Ken Stone released a study for the Iowa State University that says, "When Wal-Mart comes into a small town, they're going to take a big hunk out of the retail pie and the retail pie is virtually fixed. Somebody loses."

In Charlevoix that means more vacant stores, plus the city will lose property tax revenues. In addition Wal-Mart's profits leave the area and are not re-invested here

Finally, when asked about union membership, Wal-Mart states they are non-union, not anti-union, but according to a former employee, Dale Stiles, "The open door policy means that if you OPEN your mouth, you'll be OUT the door."

For those who are interested in learning more on this subject, there are two excellent books currently available. One is called, "Nickel and Dimed" by Barbara Ehrenreich, which was on the N.Y. Times best-seller list, and the second is called "Slam-Dunking Wal-Mart!" by Al Norman.

Part 2 of 3

Charlevoix residents have the option of shopping at Wal-Mart in Petoskey. Opening a new Wal-Mart in Charlevoix will offer mostly part-time, low-paying jobs with poor benefits.

- Working full time as a Wal-Mart associate means working 28 hours a week for between $6.00 and $7.50[1] (2001 wages).
- In 2001, its sales clerks made less, on average, than the federal poverty level.[2]
- Wal-Mart's employee turnover rate is 44%[2] and "70% of employees leave within the first year."[1]
- Even Wal-Mart has to cut back hours during the off-season to keep up profits.[3]
- Full-time employees are eligible for health insurance, but they must pay 35% of the costs, twice the national average.[1]
- Many employees can't afford the health insurance offered by the company, and many of those that do have health coverage through the company can't afford deductibles that run as high as $3,000 a year.[4] disregard that rises above the management of individual stores. Such a callous disregard of their environmental responsibilities will not be tolerated." This is the second time Wal-Mart has been referred to the Connecticut Attorney General. Apparently the $5.5 million total fine in 2001 was not of consequence to this corporation.

I ask our county officials to be thorough in their investigation of what this development will really do to our community. Commissioning an Economic Impact Study to help protect our community character is an important part of thoroughness.

I am asking the supporters of this development to consider whether or not this sounds like such a wonderful life? While George Bailey may be a fictional character, I hope that the spirit of his message will be felt by our community.

Thank you Edith

Editor:

Dear Edith Gilbert:

So glad you are still young and well. I remember a beautiful slim Gilbert yacht, black hull, must have been a connection. My parents bought the Japanese cottage in a grove of trees about 1923 from the Kittselmans who had lived in Japan. My nephew Burton Hales is the current loving owner who also grew up in the cottage, along with his brother Dan Hales, who is now living as close as he can — next door. On the then open porch of the Casino in 1937 I met Helen Cornwell of Sequanota and are still living happily ever after — and shouting many mornings, "This a Charlevoix Day."

Every day of the war in the Pacific was also delightful on the aircraft carrier USS Wasp with Air Officer, Commander Ed Shanahan. We had the Courier and a boat bigger than the Sylvia and we were always sailing to Beaver Island! Valentine Love to you ALL.

Blood drive success

Editor:

Do you remember the harsh, blizzard-like conditions on Thursday, January 22?

The weather was hard and cold outside, but hearts were soft and warm inside the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix as the Red Cross had its January community blood drive.

Red Cross staff and Red Cross volunteers welcomed 126 potential donors. What a spectacular turnout at a time when the demand for blood is growing faster than the collections.

I am so proud of the active support for the Red Cross that we can count on in Charlevoix! Thank you!

The list of heroes for the Red Cross in Charlevoix is long and impressive. It includes all of my volunteers who make phone calls, bake and work at the blood drive, every individual who donates blood, the Lions Club members who willingly do the hard work of setting up all of the beads, tables, chairs and supplies for the afternoon, then return to reload and reset. I'm grateful to the Reformed Church and to the businesses that promote awareness of the blood drives with posters and flyers. Thanks to the city water and electric staff for dealing with the banners in the strong winds.

Bethany Lutheran Church will host a drive for Type O blood from 1 - 6 p.m. on March 11. The Reformed Church will again be the site for the community drive from noon - 6 p.m. on May 13. Please be a regular blood donor for the American Red Cross. Thank you!

Thank you

Editor:

To the generous people of the three county area, we thank you for your unselfish donations to the 2003 "Toys for Tots" toy drive. Toys, books, games, financial support were collected and distributed to over 350 children from 168 families in the Charlevoix area.

This massive job would not have happened without the help of all the dedicated volunteers from the following groups: Charlevoix Christmas Foundation, Salvation Army, Family Independence Agency, American Legion, Marine Corps League, V.F.W., Care and Share, the churches, school, local news outlets, Traverse City Trolley, the Charlevoix Street Department and the many businesses that placed boxes and posters in their stores.

Special thanks to you Bev Boss and your Christmas crew.

Without your support many families would not have had a truly joyous Christmas. Thank you to all the many volunteers who spent countless hours sorting and preparing bags and boxes for delivery on Christmas week.

We of the Marine Corp. League salute you. Semper Fi.

Wonderful music

Editor:

This music listener regularly bounded back and forth from places like Masonic Temple in Detroit to Hill Auditorium in Ann Arbor for 32 years to attend the very best presentations by leading symphony orchestras, bands, chamber music ensembles, dance companies and instrumental and vocal soloists from all over the nation and the world. Now, the great news is that Northwest Academy Band of Charlevoix will perform at Hill Auditorium on Jan. 23 in competition with other selected student ensembles.

It was my pleasure to hear this group several times during the past few years. A few weeks ago I heard them play the compositions to be performed in Ann Arbor. They were truly very proficient and exciting. So much so in fact, that I decided to go to Petoskey to hear them again yesterday, in spite of very wintry weather. They were the invited guests and participants in a program sponsored by the Crooked Tree Arts Center, but at Petoskey High School.

The additional happy surprise was the music performed by the Crooked Tree Youth Orchestra, divided by their concert orchestra and their chamber orchestra, a culmination of great effort by Robert Dudd, Dorothy Gerber chair for children and music, who rightly boasted the successes of getting more than 400 area students involved in learning to play stringed instruments:

The Youth Orchestra is comprised of students from this large group of new enthusiasts from several local communities. Happily, this string orchestra has greatly improved in a very short time and were a joy to hear, thanks to Dudd, who with his obvious enthusiasm and commitment conducted the orchestra. The Sunday program concluded with two pieces performed by the strings group and the Northwest Academy Band, again with Dudd as capable conductor and with a few additional student musicians helping out.

A big thank you, then, to Dudd, Gary Stutzman, conductor of the Northwest Academy Band, Dale Hull, director of the Crooked Tree Arts Center and the students and parents who made this enjoyable and inspiring event possible. And the best of wishes to Stutzman and the band and in Ann Arbor on Jan. 23.

You are great.

How soon will we hear about Crooked Tree Youth Orchestra being invited to perform at a well-known, prestigious auditorium? Soon, I bet.

Loeb project still needs aquifer tests

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Marion Township consultants have found two parcels off Loeb Road would support on site septic systems, but a study of whether or not wells would impact the aquifer has been held up.

In November, the Marion Township Board approved hiring consultants to help the township work through the kinks of a controversial rezoning request.

Wayne Boss and his family members, who are partners in Legacy Development Group, LLC, have filed a request with the township to rezone land they own from agricultural to R-1, single family residential, to make way for a development.

The request applies to two parcels totaling 53 acres, both fronting on Loeb Road around where it intersects with Veenstra Road.

The development plan presented by the Legacy group at a public hearing in late October included 85 "affordable" home sites on lots that would be a minimum of 20,000 square feet. Boss said he is aiming to keep prices under $120,000.

Residents at the hearing voiced concerns about the property's ability to maintain a good septic system and to handle this type of development in lieu of wet areas. Each home would require its own on-site septic and well or the developers could go with a shared water supply.

Aaron Nordman, a civil engineer with Performance Engineers in Charlevoix, was contracted by the township to study these issues.

He said he is looking at two things. One, soils and the possibility of contamination from onsite septic fields. And two, the impact on-site wells would have on the aquifer both in terms of contamination and water supply.

Larry Levengood, a registered sanitarian with the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, helped Nordman with the study. Levengood said a study of this kind is a typical approach to development.

"There is greater concern here in that we are looking at more units than there are in most projects," he said.

Nordman and Levengood have completed the septic part of the study and Nordman said no problems were found.

On the parcel north of Veenstra Road, which Nordman referred to as the sandy site, he found a confining clay layer. And at the south site, tests showed high groundwater and a wet area on the back side of the property. He said these wet issues doesn't mean this southerly parcel can't be developed — Legacy will just have to design around it or deal with it by using mounded septic systems.

Boss has said he doesn't plan to develop this wet part of the property, which he estimates to be about five to seven percent of the whole piece.

Nordman said he assumes he won't find any problem with onsite wells, but hasn't been able to do that part of the study yet because Boss has told him it isn't something Legacy is required to do.

"We can possibly waive it and close out the project, that just wasn't the original plan," Nordman said.

Nordman told Boss this change in the scope of the project isn't a decision he could make and it would have to be cleared by the township planning commission.

Boss is in the Upper Peninsula this week and was unavailable for comment for this story.

Planning commission chairman Tim Matchett said he doesn't think Boss is stalling. He said for the aquifer test, Legacy will have to foot the bill for two wells that can later be used for residences, but the up front cost it still there.

Barney Way, one of the developers, attended the commission's meeting on Jan. 26 and said the group is looking at building a shared water system with two large wells. With this approach the wells being used for tests would be a waste for the developers.

At the commission's meeting they reviewed a memo from Nordman. In it he tells them that Legacy has provided several well logs for surrounding properties as well as a log of one onsite well.

"This information could be used to make some inferences about the susceptibility of the proposed aquifer to contamination from the on-site septic systems. However, without conducting an aquifer test, we do not believe that enough information has been presented to make any reasonable assessment of the aquifer characteristics pertaining to storativity, transmissivity, yield or impacts to neighboring properties," Nordman wrote in the memo.

He then recommended that the township require the aquifer testing. And the commission ultimately voted to require the test.

Once Nordman brings back the aquifer information the township's planning commissioners will make a recommendation to the township board as to whether or not they feel the rezoning request should be approved. The Charlevoix County Planning Commission will then review the request and make its recommendation.

Then the township board will review it and make the final decision.

The planning commission may review the aquifer information at its next meeting scheduled to take place at 7:30 p.m., Feb. 23 at the Marion Township Hall located off Marion Center Road. However, Matchett said it is doubtful the study will be ready for review.

Matchett said the commission is taking its time on this rezoning request and is being very cautious.

"It's one of the largest rezones to R-1 quite frankly in the township, period, to date. It's a big step. It's a large amount of land," Matchett said.

City wants change in bridge operation

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Bridge coaching may make your summer commute through Charlevoix a little faster.

City manager Mike Wiesner plans to contact representatives at the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) to inquire about the possibility of making some changes in the way the bridge currently operates.

At the city council meeting Jan. 19 discussion emerged once again about closing the north intersection of Bridge and Clinton streets to help alleviate the seasonal traffic problem.

Discussion from those who attended the meeting did not support this idea.

Many brought up the traffic study done by Rick Lyles and Associates of Williamsburg that showed this would not make a significant difference in the flow of traffic, would be difficult to enforce and may be perceived as "anti-pedestrian."

Lyles' crew was in Charlevoix watching traffic and pedestrian flow during the summer of 2002. The study they later completed said Bridge Street, a two-lane road and the drawbridge are the source of the traffic debacle.

Lyles suggested removing some parking spaces and altering crosswalks, but did not advocate closing that north intersection at Bridge and Clinton streets.

Kirby Dipert, owner of several clothing stores along Bridge Street said such a closing would not only be anti-pedestrian it would be anti-business. He said closing the crosswalk could deter people from shopping on the Round Lake side of the street from Clinton Street to Bridge Park Drive.

"And I don't think it's going to overall improve anything. I think it would just change it," he said.

Dipert suggested managing the openings and closings of the bridge instead in an attempt to limit the amount of time it's open.

"I think if we have the bridge open 50 percent less time, there will be 50 percent less of a traffic backup," he said.

Wiesner said it would take a recommendation from a traffic engineer to make major changes to the bridge openings. But he said some easy to implement small changes could be an option.

He plans to discuss with MDOT the possibility of installing a clock at the pier head that is synchronized with the bridge operator's clock so boaters know when the bridge will open. He said he is also considering getting a radio for the bridge operator so that individual can communicate with boaters and get them ready to make their way through.

"Hopefully it would get the boats in a tighter line so the bridge doesn't have to stay open as long," Wiesner said.

Drain commissioner thinks county is not paying enough

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix County Drain Commissioner JoAnne Beemon said she is tired of the way the county treats her position and is thinking about going to an attorney about it.

Beemon announced her intentions at a Charlevoix County Commission meeting earlier late last month, saying the yearly salary of $1 was not enough and the commissioners are not paying her for all the meetings she is required to attend as part of her position. She said she has contacted a Traverse City attorney about the matter, but has not had time to meet with him.

"It is a disservice to the people in the county who elected me to do my job," she said. "Who in their right mind would go up against big money and the good old boy network to protect streams for nothing."

Beemon said she regularly attends meetings that she is required to attend, where she is the only county official who is not being paid to attend that meeting. She added even Charlevoix County Commissioners are paid for the meetings they attend as part of their jobs.

Beemon said when she was elected, she knew that the county would only pay a salary of $1 a year for the drain commission, but she thought the commissioners would be fair about the meetings she must attend.

But, Beemon said she is not the first Drain Commissioner to have an issue with the county commissioners.

"There is a colorful history of the Charlevoix Drain Commission, going back to a 1972 squabble between the drain commissioner and the county commission," she said.

In that argument, the drain commissioner was complaining because his budget was slashed and his pay was cut down to $1.

"Our county hasn't wanted a Drain Commissioner, so they made it so painful and difficult to do the job. My job is to protect natural water sources and resources of Charlevoix County," she said.

But, Charlevoix County Commissioners say this is not true.

Charlevoix County Commissioner Valerie Snyder said beside the fact that state law required the county to have a drain commissioner, Beemon's $1 a year salary is consistent with a lot of other northern Michigan counties, such as Emmett County.

In fact, Snyder said she thinks the county is actually moving forward in its relationship with the drain commissioner. She said before Beemon was elected, the drain commissioner did not have an office. Now the Drain Commissioner has an office and a computer.

Snyder added, the drain commissioner is in charge of drains in the county and Charlevoix does not have any.

But, Beemon argues this is false.

"There are designated drains in Charlevoix County. There are two drains," she said.

Beemon added she is getting requests for more drains. Plus, she said state laws indicate she is responsible for all the natural waterways in the county.

Snyder said, "I think there is a difference of opinion between the role (Beemon) thinks she has and the role some of the commissioners think she has."

As for getting paid for the meetings she attends, Shirley Roloff, county commissioner and member of the audit committee that pays for those meetings, said Beemon simply is not turning in the required paperwork.

And when she does, Roloff said Beemon does not fill it in completely.

"I have said to her every month, "JoAnne, please turn in a voucher,'" Roloff said. "We do this every month and there is nothing there."

Norwood Zoning Administrator resigns

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

After three years of service, Norwood Township zoning administrator Lynn Smolenyak has stepped down.

She officially resigned the position at the Norwood Township Board meeting Jan. 19 saying the part-time job has become a full-time responsibility and it's just too much. She said the job takes at least 700 hours a year.

"The time the position requires is too intrusive to my first priorities which are my family and other job," Smolenyak wrote in a letter to the township board.

While she cited time as the contributing factor in her decision, Norwood Township Supervisor Wayne Boss said there was more to it.

"I think she got tired of getting blasted from side-to-side by the Maynards (Mark and Marilyn) and having her integrity impugned, which was not justified. Lynn was a very competent zoning administrator," Boss said.

Township clerk Doris Pearl agrees that Smolenyak endured unnecessary hardship. At the meeting Jan. 19 Pearl said she thinks Smolenyak was the best zoning administrator in Charlevoix County.

Smolenyak's work as the administrator has been under strict scrutiny over the past year. A zoning dispute between neighbors Mark and Marilyn Maynard and Frank and Barb Hamilton centered around permits she issued the Hamiltons for a fencing modification and a shed addition for their kennel operation, Auntie Barb's Country Kennel.

The permits were overturned by the Norwood Township Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) at a November 2003 meeting. The board then asked that the Hamiltons reapply for their special use permit under the new zoning ordinance to operate the kennel.

Smolenyak appealed that ZBA decision at the request of the Hamiltons. Whether or not the ZBA will rehear the appeal will be decided later this month at a meeting scheduled to take place at 4:30 p.m. Jan. 28 at the Norwood Township Hall.

Either way the board rules, this dispute will likely end up with either the Hamiltons, the Maynards or both suing the township.

The Maynards have also called into question whether Smolenyak selectively enforces the zoning ordinance elsewhere in the township. Marilyn sent a list of 13 complaints she claims reflect "selective enforcement" by Smolenyak, to planning commissioner Mark Pirie at his request.

Marilyn said she is hoping that with Smolenyak stepping down, this alleged activity will stop.

"I would like things to be fair for everybody and would like the law to he applied to everyone," she said.

Smolenyak has denied the Maynards claims of misuse of her position.

In her resignation letter to the board, she states, "I have always interacted with residents and other agencies in a professional manner."

The resignation takes effect Feb. 16.

The board has not yet decided how to fill the position. Smolenyak has suggested her replacement be a "professional, experienced zoning official."

"The learning curve is too great and the risks too many these days, to use any willing citizen," she wrote.

Professionals Smolenyak said might be a good fit include policemen, lawyers or criminal justice majors.

With this suggested change from a local face to a professional she also suggested an increase in pay. So the new approach to the position won't be cost prohibitive she suggested partnering with another township or the county and having the administrator fulfill duties for each municipality.

Boss said he doesn't agree that a professional is needed.

"My feeling is that the Maynards have made the position so difficult. Under normal circumstances I think it could be handled by a normal individual in the township," he said.

But Boss said he doesn't anticipate the Maynards backing down. And Marilyn said she and her husband don't plan to step back until the ordinance is enforced the same for all Norwood Township residents.

Norwood board makes appointments

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The Norwood Township Board appointed new members to the zoning board of appeals (ZBA) and the planning commission.

At the Jan. 19 township board meeting the board considered seven applications in making its appointments. Patrick Klooster was named a member of the ZBA and township clerk Doris Pearl and resident Cindy Brooks were named to the planning commission.

Klooster is an alternate who will fill the seat of Tom Carey who resigned in December. Klooster's term will run through Dec. 31, 2006.

ZBA chairman Bill Jackson, who had resigned in November, citing other commitments, agreed to stay on for one more meeting.

At the meeting the ZBA will consider a request for a rehearing submitted by zoning administrator Lynn Smolenyak on behalf of Frank and Barb Hamilton.

This meeting will take place at 4:30 p.m., Jan. 28 at the Norwood Township Hall.

After that meeting, Jackson will resign, leaving another ZBA seat up for grabs. The planning commission will make its recommendation for that vacancy at its meeting Feb. 5.

Terms had expired for planning commission chair Mark Maynard and commissioners Dave Parsons and Julie Burgess.

Parsons and Burgess declined to be re-appointed. Parsons said he can't make the majority of meetings and Burgess said she is just too busy.

But Maynard, who has been a planning commissioner for five years and chairman for three of those years, said he wanted to continue to serve.

In spite of his interest, Boss recommended the township board not re-appoint him and fill his seat with Denny Way, Boss' relative through marriage.

He said Maynard's "feud" with his neighbors, the Hamiltons, about their kennel operation, was "whaling over into township matters" and would likely get the township sued.

Boss said he read an e-mail sent to township zoning administrator Lynn Smolenyak from Maynard about permits that had been requested by the Hamiltons.

This e-mail lead Boss to believe Maynard "couldn't approach certain things unbiasedly."

Because of Boss' perception that Maynard couldn't be objective, he said it isn't appropriate that he continues to sefve.

In December, when he initially made the recommendation to replace Maynard with Way, some who attended were outraged claiming his action constituted nepotism.

At the recent meeting, Boss didn't back down and made the motion to appoint Way.

"It's a crock. Even though Denny Way is my wife's first cousin, he was the sixth person I contacted to see if they would serve and the first to say yes. I wouldn't say the sixth person selected is showing favoritism," he said.

However, his motion died for lack of a second.

Township Board treasurer Ellen Jenson said in making her decision, she wasn't focused on the nepotism concern.

She said of the seven applicants, Way's resume had the least amount of information and she felt others, like Brooks who was ultimately appointed, were more qualified.

The final planning commission seat will be filled at the board's next meeting scheduled to take place at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 16 at the Norwood Township Hall located at 19759 Lake Street in Charlevoix.

The township has received other applications from Doug Way, Sr., Frederick Siegwart, Sadie Bartosik, Jerry Straub and Wayne Wynkoop.

Norwood Township residents interested in filling the planning commission seat can contact Pearl at 547-9096 for a list of information that is needed. Or e-mail her at dapearl@freeway.net.

The planning commission meets monthly and members are compensated $50 per meeting.

Attorney: City not violating charter

Council to decide if clerk changes to full-time

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Charlevoix's City Council will soon make a final decision on the city clerk's position.

At its meeting scheduled to take place at 7 p.m., Feb. 9 council will end the month-long debate which has circled around whether the clerk's position should be full or part-time.

Liz Gooch

City council member Shirley Gibson has argued that the city charter intends this position to be full-time.

The clerk's seat is currently being filled by Liz Gooch who was reelected in November of 2003. Gooch is compensated for 20 hours of work but has said she can't fulfill all the duties of the clerk in that time. Any time she works over 20 hours is not paid for.

She said most of her current responsibilities include keeping records like city council minutes, compiling voter registration information, running elections, coordinating Freedom of Information Act requests and acting as clerk for both council and the Board of Review.

Gibson said if the job was restored to what is intended by the city charter and code, there would be more than enough work to fill 40 hours.

"If it (the clerk's position) was meant to be part-time it (the charter) would say part-time," Gibson said. "I want an elected official down there that doesn't answer to the city manager."

City manager Mike Wiesner said duties assigned to the clerk in the city code that have been carried out by other city staff members include transferring deeds for Brookside Cemetery, signing checks and collection of civil infraction fines.

He said someone needs to be at city hall 40 hours a week to provide this service to the public, but the work itself requires only about eight hours a year to complete.

Wiesner said the city gets about 31 cemetery deed transfers annually with each taking about 10 minutes to process. The treasurer's office is handling the civil infraction fines and the checks are signed by a machine.

He plans to recommend that council change the ordinances in the city code that assign these duties to the clerk.

While Wiesner said the work just isn't there to warrant full-time status for the clerk, Gibson said the duties being assigned to the deputy clerk/treasurer, who is expected to be hired this week, should be given to the clerk to make the position full-time. She thinks the deputy should be the part-time employee.

This deputy will be responsible for a number of duties including filling in at city council meetings, assisting in elections, doing accounts payable and receivable, keeping cemetery records and filling out workman's compensation paperwork.

In the job description posted for the position, the word "may" was added before each duty that would fall under Gooch's official deputy. This includes assisting Gooch in registering voters, maintaining voting records, supervising elections, taking minutes at council meetings, recording and collecting cemetery lot transfer costs and maintaining cemetery records.

By having the word "may" there, city attorney Jim Young said the city has avoided violating the city charter which gives the clerk the responsibility of hiring a deputy.

Section 3.8 of the city charter states, "The city clerk may, with the approval of the city council, appoint a deputy clerk."

Council will take one final look at the issue next Monday night acting on a review by the city compensation commission that took place Jan. 23.

The commission decided that if council makes the clerk's position full-time, the full-time deputy clerk's position should be eliminated and the clerk's salary set at $34,000.

If council decides to keep the position at its current part-time status, the commission recommended it continue at the present salary $16,416.

In making its determination, the commission referenced the charter, finding the clerk's position listed along with the city manager and fire and police chiefs, as an administrative position.

Of these administrative positions, the clerk is the only one working part-time.

Commission member Ken Staley said by grouping these positions the charter implies the clerk's position is also full-time.

But Wiesner said in the 20 years he has served as city manager the position has always been part-time and he does not plan to recommend a change to council.

Library may be able to get many donations

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

A consultant said the campaign trail leading to $1 million for the Charlevoix Public Library building project has many supporters and just a few hurdles to overcome.

Sandi Frost-Parrish, a consultant with Monaghan Associates of Grand Rapids, was in charge of a feasibility study that looked at whether the money to fund the over $7 million library project was available in Charlevoix.

She was in town last week on Jan. 22 presenting the results of the study to a group of over 30 interested residents.

"You've picked a good time. We are seeing a strengthening in philanthropy, especially in the past [illegible] months and we are at the front end of an economic recovery," she said. "We feel if you go out and raise the money today, you could raise in the neighborhood of $1 million toward the project."

This recommended figure is an estimated total of gifts and grants the library may get for the project. The support gauged by the study was enough for Monaghan to recommend that the library move into the next phase of the project, the capital campaign.

Frost-Parrish said this is exciting news as only about 50 percent of projects they look into get their seal of approval.

The study identified enough gifts in the five figure range to recommend this next step. Even though no six figure gifts have been pinpointed, Frost-Parrish hasn't given up. She has meetings scheduled for mid February with two significant foundations that could boost the capital campaign goal to between $1.5 and $2 million.

"Those two could make a dramatic difference in what we recommend," she said.

In the 43 interviews that the three-member Monaghan interview staff conducted, they found 13 things working in the library's favor as volunteers begin to raise money.

She said the community understands the importance of the library and that the current location off Clinton Street is no longer cutting it. She also heard during the interviews that Charlevoix needs to keep pace with surrounding communities like Petoskey and Traverse City and this project is a step forward.

Those interviewed also recognized there is a need for community meeting space, technology and an expanded children's area, all of which the proposed project would provide.

She said they also found preservation of the middle school is perceived as an important element of the project. The plan is to convert the old Charlevoix Middle School off Grant Street, into a state-of-the-art Charlevoix Public Library.

However, this renovation was also one of five things working against the library.

Frost-Parrish said there was some question as to what extra charge there will be for renovation versus a new building and just how much space the library needs.

The new library proposal looks to renovate and add on to the existing school. The proposed brick facility is about 24,000 square feet, with all its main functions on the first floor.

This primary floor will include small additions, totaling just under 4,000 square feet of space — one will house the program room and the other, a children's activity room. The facility will offer adult, children's and teen collections as well as a popular reading room, plenty of quiet reading areas, a self check out, a staffed circulation desk and outdoor landscaped plazas.

Some expressed concern that the second floor office area should be used for books. The second level floor won't sustain the weight of books and Frost-Parrish stressed this is an educational issue that will be addressed as word spreads throughout the community.

She also sensed nervousness from some people interviewed about passing of a millage on June 14 without some support for the project from a government entity. She said the city of Charlevoix's Downtown Development Authority came up frequently as a possible source of funding.

Other millage jitters sparked questions about competition from other entities like the Charlevoix Area Community Pool, which is working toward establishing a recreational authority to get a request for .3 mill on the November ballot.

With this $1 million recommendation under its belt, the library board of trustees now has to work on the rest of the funding equation making up the remaining $6 million with the millage, the sale of the current building and possible participation by governmental entities.

Sandi Frost-Parrish a consultant with Monaghan Associates in Grand Rapids was in town last week to recommend that the Charlevoix Public Library go for about $1 million in its capital campaign. The money will help support its over $7 million proposed new library project.

And these numbers will have to be worked out quickly.

This month, Paul Stauder of Stauder-Barch in Ann Arbor, the library's financial advisor for the bond, will use the Monaghan group's study information to calculate the size of the bond the library will need to ask voters to approve to fund the project.

Once the bond amount has been established, Tom Colis, the library's bond attorney with Miller Canfield in the Detroit area, will write the ballot language.

The ballot language and the bond size has to be in the hands of Dr. John Sturock, superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools by March 1. Sturock will then pass it along to the district's attorney for review.

If the library comes up with the money, the board is hoping to break ground in the spring of 2005 with about 14 months of construction to follow and a grand opening in the summer of 2006.

Local author, Cadarette, to have book signing

Local pastor, the Rev. Kathy Cadarette, has just released a book she wrote about her experiences with God in the midst of grief.

Cadarette wrote "A Very Present Help" based on the five years she served as pastor of Horton Bay and Greensky Hill United Methodist Churches.

Shortly after she was appointed as the pastor in Horton Bay, she was joined there by her current husband, Dave Cadarette and his first wife, Cathy. Cathy had just been diagnosed with incurable cancer and given six months to live.

She lived for almost four years, allowing God to answer prayers to see her daughter marry and her two sons graduate from Boyne City High School.

"This book is really a love story," Cadarette said. "It's about the love between Dave and Cathy; the love between them and the church; the love of all three of us as friends; and the unexpected love between Dave and me. But, ultimately, it's about God's love for all of us and His desire to be very present help in the midst of our lives."

Cadarette is a native of Greenfield, Ind. She majored in journalism at Ball State University and worked for newspapers for nine years.

In 1994 she graduated from United Theological Seminary and was appointed to the Horton Bay United Methodist Church. After taking a three-year leave of absence to write her book, Kathy returned to full-time ministry in 2003 and is serving as a pastor of the Alanson and Harbor Springs United Methodist Churches, while she and her husband, Dave, continue to make their home in Horton Bay.

Kathy Cadarette will signs copies of her book from 1-3 p.m. on Saturday, Jan. 31, at the Bridge Street Book Shop, 407 Bridge Street, in downtown Charlevoix.

Pine Cove Apartments reveals its new look

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Pine Cove Apartments has had a makeover.

Last spring the apartment complex, which has been located on May Street since the 1970s, unveiled its newly renovated buildings.

Heidi Lowell, resident manager, said the Charlevoix Limited Partnership — owners of Pine Cove — decided the buildings needed new roofs, windows and siding. Plus, the individual units were also upgraded with new air conditioners, refrigerators and interiors.

"It was a complete overhaul," Lowell said.

Work was completed over four months, while tenants were living in the buildings. But, this did not slow the complex's desirability to customers as it is 97 percent full with a three month long waiting list.

No other expansions to the complex are planned in the future.

Lowell said Pine Cove Apartments is composed of 94 units, with a majority of those being one and two bedroom apartments. There are some three and four bedroom apartments.

In those apartments, Lowell said it is 25 percent singles, 50 percent families and 25 percent elderly.

Prices for an apartment run between $400 and $435, per month. Subsidies are available.

Because its price is lower than many other rental units in the area, Lowell said, this complex fills a need for affordable housing.

And, the tenants of Pine Cove are very respectable citizens of Charlevoix.

Just to get an apartment in the complex, a possible tenant must pass a credit check, criminal check and background check. Because of this scrutiny, Lowell said there are some great people in at Pine Cove.

For more information on Pine Cove Apartments, call 547-5202.

Islanders end home sports season with wins for both

By FRANK SOLLE
Special to the Courier

BEAVER ISLAND — The Islander volleyball and basketball teams closed out the home portion of their 2003-04 schedule in fine fashion here last weekend as the home teams claimed victory in all four contests.

The volleyball team improved to 6-0 in Northern Lights League play with a Friday night win over the Paradise Rockets 15-10, 15-7, and a 15-7, 15-8 decision Saturday morning.

The two wins put the Islanders in firm control of the top spot in the league standings as Paradise falls to 4-3. The Rockets and the Islanders each have a victory over Mackinac Island, giving the Lakers two league losses. The Islanders travel to Mackinac February 13-14.

On Friday, the Islanders found themselves trailing Paradise 7-2 in the opening game before rallying behind solid, all-around team play.

Danielle Cary and Christine McDonough provided the spark from the service line, while Cary and Melissa Bailey were strong at the net. Kerrie Gillespie and Rachel McDonough added some critical defensive play.

The second game was not as close on the scoreboard, but still filled with action as both teams played to their talent with plenty of long rallies between points.

Cary again had a number of kills while Rachel McDonough and Gillespie each served up timely aces.

Saturday's contest saw the local girls fall behind 7-2 in each game before battling back for the wins.

"Apparently, they really like the challenge," Islander coach Connie Boyle said of her team's propensity to fall behind before picking up their play.

"It's often been an issue for us over the years," the coach added. "I think part of it is they are just too nice. We have to develop that killer instinct."

The basketball team was not challenged nearly as much as they easily grounded the Rockets 57-30 on Friday and 62-49 on Saturday.

Freshman Jared Wojan stepped up offensively over the weekend, leading the Islanders in scoring on Friday with a career-high 24 points. On Saturday he added another dozen, improving his season average to just under 10 points per game.

Senior Barry McDonough led the team Saturday with a season-best 34 points. On Friday he scored 16. McDonough leads the team with an 18.6 scoring average.

The Islanders broke open Friday's game with a 20-0 run to start the second quarter. Wojan scored 14 of his 24 during the run.

On Saturday the Islanders used a 13-0 run to open the third quarter and put out the Rockets' fire.

The Islander teams travel to Grand Marais this weekend to face the Polar Bears in more NLL action.

Winter fun

Parker Elowsky, 7, of Charlevoix (left) took advantage of the snow day away from school to try out some of the many sled-worthy hills around Charlevoix. He and his brother, Hudson Elowsky, 5, took turns sliding down this snow pile on Park Avenue Friday, while another group of children enjoyed a similar hill just down the street.

Charlevoix Rayders beat Grayling in wild game

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

Since coach Keith Haske brought his run and gun style of basketball to Charlevoix, teams in the Lake Michigan Conference have searched for different ways to slow down the Rayders.

Most have tried to control the tempo and slow the game down.

Grayling, the league's newest member, tried something new. They ran with the Rayders. And ran and ran. They ran all the way to a 102-99 loss.

The 201 points scored in the game were believed to be a league record.

"The people who didn't make the trip down to Grayling missed a great high school basketball game," Haske said.

The game was nip and tuck throughout with the Rayders jumping out to an early 6-0 lead, but the Vikings battled back to ties at 6-6 and 8-8.

The Rayders' largest lead in the first quarter was five at 15-10, but Grayling took its first lead of the game at 19-17 minutes later. Charlevoix led 23-21 at the end of the first stanza with 11 of the Rayder points coming from Scott Friske.

Early in the second period, Charlevoix extended the lead to 29-23 on a Friske putback. The Vikings battled back to cut the lead to 42-40 when Bryce Daly answered with a three-point bucket to extend the lead to five.

Grayling cut the lead to one again at 45-44 and Daly answered with another three-pointer with 35 seconds left in the half. The Rayders headed to the locker room with a 50-47 advantage.

Charlevoix led throughout the third quarter, by as much as seven and never fewer than three. Graylings junior guard Gibson Tobin knocked down four three-pointers though to single-handedly keep the Vikings close. Charlevoix led 76-73 after three quarters.

With 7:02 left in the game, Charlevoix led 81-75 when Friske was called for his fourth foul and headed to the Rayder hench. The Vikings scored four straight to cut the lead to two.

Jared Hunt sank two free throws and Kyle Kramer scored to push the lead back to six at 85-79. Grayling wouldn't go away though as they scored seven straight points to take an 86-85 lead, only their second lead of the game and the first since it was 19-17.

Friske entered the game during the Viking run and hit two free throws to regain the lead for Charlevoix at 87-86. On the ensuing play, however, he picked up his fifth foul and left the game for good with three and a half minutes to play.

Grayling scored four straight for a 90-87 lead. A Kramer putback cut the deficit back to one and John DiMartino's two free throws gave the Rayders the lead again at 91-90.

The Vikings converted a three-point play to take what would prove to be their last lead of the game at 93-91. The Rayders then scored nine straight points on a Daly three-pointer and free throw, three free throws by Kramer and a hasket by Ryan DeYoung to take a 100-93 lead with 1:12 remaining.

Grayling hit another three-pointer though, stopped the Rayders and converted another field goal to make one final run. Tobin then stole an errant Rayder pass and was fouled with 12.7 seconds to go and his team trailing 100-98.

He could only convert one of the two free throws to cut the lead to one. Grayling was forced to foul and Daly calmly sunk both free throws to ice the game.

Daly finished with 24 points and five assists to lead Charlevoix. Friske had 22 points and 11 rebounds. Kramer had 14 points in what Haske termed the best game of his life.

Hunt scored 14 points and dished out five assists. DeYoung added 11 points.

Tobin finished with 37 points for Grayling.

The Rayders shot 50 percent from the floor and 60 percent from behind the three-point arc. The difference in the game may have been from the free throw line where Charlevoix was 30 for 39 and the Vikings were only 18 of 36.

Earlier in the week, the Rayders manhandled Harbor Springs, 79-59.

Friske led the team with 22 points, 15 rebounds, three assists and two blocks. Cody Crain scored 12 points and had six assists. Ben Bergmann and DeYoung each scored 10 points.

The Rayders (7-2 overall, 4-1 conference) face a difficult test Friday at Traverse City St. Francis where they meet the undefeated conference leader.

Charlevoix slipped to number six in the Associated Press poll last week in Class C, likely due to the two forfeit losses while St. Francis received honorable mention.

Winter weather expected to stay around

"Obviously we have deviated from that since," he said.

Sullivan said the cold weather does bring some good news. The longer it stays around, the faster the waters of Lake Michigan will freeze, which will hring an end to lake effect snow.

The winter weather has heen great news to some area businesses, especially snow plows.

Dan Skrezeckoski, who plows out several area driveways with his truck, said the last three weeks have made up Decemher's slow start.

"January is turning out to he a good month as far as plowing," he said.

Skrezeckoski added he has spoken with a few other plow drivers, who have also said this month has heen good to them.

Charlevoix road crews have also been very busy as winter weather dumps snow on the roads.

Pat Harmon, Charlevoix County Road Commission manager, said his drivers have been working 10 to 12 hour days since last week.

But, he added his drivers have been working less this year than last.

"Up to this point, we have had a pretty easy winter, I think," he said.

Charlevoix City Street Superintendent John Martin also said his drivers are on schedule.

"It is kind of business as usual," he said.

Health department has free radon testing kits

In observance of National Radon Action Month, free radon test kits are available at local offices of the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, the local health department which serves Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego Counties.

It is easy and inexpensive to detect and remove radon. If a radon test kit detects unsafe radon levels, the health department offers free consultation to assist residents in solving the problem including linking residents with certified contractors who can install an inexpensive mitigation system.

National Radon Action Month co-sponsors such as the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and Michigan Department of Environmental Quality (MDEQ) encourage everyone to test their home for radon hecause radon is the second leading cause of lung cancer in the U.S.

"When radon is inhaled, it decays into radioactive particles that become trapped in your lungs," said Joshua Meyerson, M.D., Medical Director of the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency.

"These radioactive particles can cause damage to lung tissue and over time, this tissue damage can result in lung cancer."

Any home can have a radon problem, said Scott Kendzierski, who coordinates National Radon Awareness Month activities for the health department. Contrary to public understanding, there is no direct correlation between radon levels and building age.

Several homes in the area have been identified with elevated radon levels, including some severe cases.

"The risk for unsafe levels of radon in our counties is classified as 'moderate exposure' by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency," he said.

Radon is a naturally occurring, invisible, ordorless, radioactive gas that is harmless in outdoor air, but trapped in buildings, can reach potentially harmful levels.

Radon gas is a naturally occurring byproduct of the decay of small amounts of radium and uranium commonly found in bedrock and soil. Most soils in our area contain some amount of these radioactive elements.

As they breakdown, radon gas is conveyed by moving through small spaces in permeable soils and fractured bedrock. Ultimately, radon enters buildings through openings in foundation floors or walls and accumulates within them.

During cold seasons when homes are closed, radon can rise to very high levels.

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is the local health department serving Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego Counties. Its staff is dedicated to preventing disease and injury and promoting healthy communities.

Free radon testing kits are availahle at its offices in Bellaire, Mancelona, Charlevoix, Petoskey and Gaylord during regular business hours.

For additional information about radon exposure in your home, contact Kendzerski at (231)547-7651 or call toll-free (800) RADON GAS.

Sunnybank claims zoning law flawed

concluded professional offices are places from where people practice things like medicine, law and accounting. They said this does not include a residential facility.

When city planner Gerry Harsch was asked if not in the R-1 or R-2, where does assisted living fit in the ordinance, he responded, "I don't know."

He said it would conceivably be allowed in the R-4, multiple dwelling residential district, but not practically.

He said the unit size required in the R-4 is twice the size of units that would be put into an assisted living facility.

Harsch further explained that the R-4 requires 15 percent ground coverage. With the 49 unit, single level Sunnybank proposal, this would require a six acre lot. To fit Sunnybank on a two acre lot, like the one they are looking at on the north side, while meeting the R-4 ground coverage requirement, the building would have to be three stories high.

However, multiple stories are not desirable for a facility like this because of the nature of its residents, the elderly, who are often wheelchair bound and can't easily travel to different levels.

Aside from the fact that multiple levels are a challenge to residents, Harsch said a developer looking for a vacant two acre parcel in the R-4 district in the city isn't going to have any luck — it doesn't exist.

He said this development would not be possible unless an existing development in the R-4 is torn down.

"For all practical purposes, there is no district within our zoning ordinance which is available to accommodate this project," Harsch said.

Engstrom's argument that assisted living is a nursing home was also debated.

Harsch argues that assisted living facilities are not the same as nursing homes. He said he equates assisted living more with congregate living facilities that offer small apartments and common living areas.

But according to the definition in the zoning ordinance Harsch said it could be argued that they are in the same realm as nursing homes and are thus allowed in the C-1 commercial district and the professional office district.

Harsch plans to review the nursing home definition and make a recommendation that the planning commission work on clarifying the wording.

Engstrom thinks the city is trying to cover its tracks.

"They are scrambling to change the definition. They're changing their position to fit this use in the professional office district. It's just not proper," he said.

Engstrom said with no space for assisted living in the R-4 and the possibility of it not being allowed in any other district in the city, he has a case of exclusionary zoning.

"We have the right to go before (33rd) Circuit Court Judge (Richard) Pajtas for him to decide whether it's (assisted living) been excluded in this city," Engstrom said.

One standard they will have to meet if it goes to court is that this is a needed project.

"No one has ever said it's not needed in the city, that's one element (of the exclusionary zoning case) fulfilled," Engstrom said.

He said the best outcome of the lawsuit would be for Judge Pajtas to rule in Sunnybank's favor, allowing construction at the R-2 lot on the north side.

With the ZBA's rejection of assisted living as an allowed use in the R-2, the planning commission must now address its Dec. 8 decision to set a public hearing to listen to Sunnybank's request.

Harsch said the commission can approach the issue in two ways. They can hold the hearing and make a finding that based on the ZBA's decision the request cannot be fulfilled because the assisted living facility is not an allowed use in that district. Or, they can vote to not reschedule the hearing, which was postponed pending the recent appeal, because it is not a use allowed in the R-2 district.

The next scheduled planning commission meeting will take place at 6 p.m., Feb. 9 in the Coast Guard training room located at 109 Bridge Park Drive.

CHARLEVOIX BRIEFS

Area events

Family workshop

The Charlevoix Public Library is offering a parenting workshop for families who have children from a previous relationship and have entered a new marriage, or are considering entering a new marriage. These workshops are from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., on Thursday evenings with focus on "A Real Family" taught by Amy Spegele, Family Life Educator. The workshop will be focusing on many issues faced by blended families.

Admission is free and the classes take place downstairs in the meeting room at the Charlevoix Public Library, please call or stop in to register.

The Charlevoix Public Library is located at 109 Clinton Street. Their hours are 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Friday and 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., Saturday. Contact the library at 547-2651 or online at www.charlevoixlibrary.org.

Pool events

The following events are planned for the Charlevoix Area Community Pool:

- Scuba Review-Fun — 4-6 p.m., Jan. 31. Cost is $15 or $25 if you need rental gear. An opportunity for certified divers to review their skills and try out the new equipment received as Christmas gifts and/or try out new shop equipment.
- Pool/Academics Class — 6-10 p.m., Tuesdays and 2-6 p.m., Saturdays, Feb. 3, 7, 10, 14, 17 and 21. Cost $215. This is an opportunity to complete the classroom and confined water portions of dive certification training.

For more information contact Charlevoix Area Community Pool at 547-0982 or Scuba North (231) 947-2520.

Stroud honored

The Charlevoix Township Board will be having an open house in honor of Oscar Stroud for his many years of service to the people of Charlevoix Township. The township will acknowledge his retirement from 1 to 5 p.m. on Saturday, Jan. 31 at Stroud Hall, 12491 Waller Road in Charlevoix. The public is encouraged to attend.

Bible study

A new lunchtime Bible study for men and women starts at 12:10 p.m., on Wednesday, Feb. 4, at the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix located at the corner of US-31 and Mccch Street. The six week video series will follow with a small discussion group after each video. For more information call Sandy Malewitz at 547-1975.

Winterfest

Sheriff reminds drivers to travel safely

Pointing to recent statistics that show fatalities on the rise on America's roadways for the first time in over a decade, public safety officials are urging motorists to exercise extreme caution this winter.

According to the Department of Transportation, 42,815 people died in traffic accidents in the U.S. last year, the most since 1990. With the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) citing traffic accidents as the leading cause of death during winter storms, the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office is reminding travelers that despite adverse conditions, many accidents can be avoided.

"What a lot of people need to understand is that a high percentage of traffic fatalities are a result of poor decision-making," Sheriff George T. Lasater of Charlevoix County and the Michigan Sheriffs' Association said.

"In bad weather, it may come down to something as simple as postponing travel for a day. If you do have to brave the elements then watch your speed, don't try to drive too far if you're tired, and make sure your vehicle is equipped with the necessary equipment for the conditions. Most importantly, always wear safety belts and never get behind the wheel after having too much to drink."

In 2002, nearly 18,000 Americans died in alcohol-related accidents, the most since 1992. Most of these victims were not wearing seat belts. Despite statistics showing that seat belt usage in the U.S. has increased over the years with about four of every five travelers now buckling up, there is still room for improvement.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration estimates that if all drivers and passengers wore seat belts, approximately 8,000 lives a year would be spared nationwide.

Even with improved safety technology, such as airbags in a majority of vehicles, the United States, once the safest country in the world for driving, has fallen to ninth among industrialized nations based on fatalities per 100 million miles traveled, according to a recent study conducted by the Organization of Economic Cooperation and Development. The organization, which collects a variety of health and safety data worldwide, indicated that the U.S. has been surpassed by countries such as Great Britain, Canada and Australia in traffic safety.

America's declining rating can be attributed to the higher incidence of casualties from speeding, drunk driving and seatbelt negligence, as well as a greater number of deaths among motorcyclists — many of whom do not wear helmets. Another factor is the proliferation of sport utility vehicles and pickup trucks, which present a greater danger to smaller vehicles in accidents and which roll over more frequently.

Traffic deaths and injuries are a growing concern all around the globe. The World Health Organization has recently published a report indicating that traffic accidents will become the world's third leading cause of death and disability by 2020. In fact, automobile accidents will be the main subject at the World Health Day conference to be held on April 7, 2004. The event will mark the start of a global campaign for traffic injury prevention.

In the U.S., federal and state lawmakers are trying to do their part by allocating funds to improve conditions of the nation's roads, creating electronic weather advisory signs, and banning driver cell phone use.

Nevertheless, adds Sheriff Lasater, safe travel ultimately comes down to the people on the roads.

> "What a lot of people need to understand is that a high percentage of traffic fatalities are a result of poor decision-making."
> George T. Lasater,
> Charlevoix County Sheriff

"The individuals behind the wheel are not only responsible for themselves and their passengers, but responsible for all the other travelers they share the roads with at a given time. Every thought and every action counts."

In what is already been a harsh winter throughout much of the U.S., the Michigan Sheriffs' Association suggests the following safety tips for road travel in winter weather:

Winter driving tips:

- Check your tires, engine oil, antifreeze, and brakes before embarking on a trip
- Buckle up and make sure your passengers do too
- Reduce speed in snow, sleet and rain
- Allow yourself plenty of braking space in wet weather
- Lightly pump your brakes on wet roads when slowing the vehicle
- Never venture down unplowed roads
- Avoid distractions (talking on the cell phone or eating)
- Keep headlights on and use low beams in fog
- Listen to the radio for information on local road and weather conditions
- Pull off the road if you're tired or if outside conditions worsen
- If you break down, don't venture more than 100 yards from your vehicle to seek help

Things to include in your vehicle during winter driving

- Map of the area where you're traveling
- Water
- Flashlight (with extra batteries)
- Snowbrush and ice-scraper
- Package of cat litter (for tire traction)
- Spare tire, as well as tire-chains or tire-cables (even for 4x4s)
- Small shovel
- Hats, weather proof gloves and boots and a heavy blanket
- Matches and flares
- Cell phone (for emergency use only)

Castle work

A $3 million project at Castle Farms that started in October of 2003 is about 50 percent complete. Last week workers from Pearsall Construction braved high winds and nasty snow storms to install air vents on the roof of this pavilion. The project includes two 6,400 square foot pavilions that will extend into the center grass field from the former cattle barn. They also worked on trusses for the large building they are roofing.

The renovation will open up covered event space to accommodate 900 people, pavilions and a courtyard area for family activities, with a 20 foot pond at its center, chapels, gardens and added parking.

Society to have romantic dinner

The Historical Society will host a potluck Valentine dinner at 6 p.m., Tuesday, Feb. 3, at the historic depot at the end of Dixon Avenue in Charlevoix complete with romantic music, history, poetry, and tales both fictional and true.

The public is invited to attend.

Those who do come are asked to bring a dish to pass and their own tableware.

Your admission ticket is at least one Valentine signed with your name or "from a secret admirer" that will go into a decorated box and later will be distributed to shut-ins and the elderly on Valentine's Day. Bring your wedding picture, which will be displayed and admired by all.

A special treat this year will be romantic songs sung by The Charlevoix Men's Chorus.

For more information about this event or if you need a ride call the Charlevoix Historical Society at 547-0373.

Wal-Mart meeting postponed

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Wal-mart has postponed its plans to meet with the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission for at least a month.

Last week, planning commission chair Nancy Rajewski said the retailer informed her it did not have all of its needed information for a March meeting. Therefore, Wal-mart officials asked her to postpone the planned meeting to sometime in April.

Rajewski said the company must have site plans to the township one month prior to a formal site plan hearing — which was what Wal-Mart was requesting. Since the meeting is being postponed until sometime in April, this means Wal-Mart does not have to have its site plan to the township until March.

Rajewski said she did not know what information the company still needed before presenting its plan. Wal-Mart officials did not return telephone calls before presstime.

In an interview with the Charlevoix Courier in late January, Wal-Mart official Chris Danos said the new plans only had minor changes from those presented in September to the township. Most of those changes centered around keeping development away from Stover Creek.

It would have 40,000 square feet of grocery space on the left side of the store and over 100,000 square feet of retail space on the right side. The store would be a total of 157,400 square feet.

There is also room for seasonal sales, such as Christmas trees and garden supplies, as well as an automotive department for tire, oil and lube changing.

The supercenter will have two main entrances, not including a truck entrance on US-31. One entrance will be on US-31 and the other will be on Marion Center Road. Plans also show the addition of a lighted signal at the US-31 entrance and the addition of deceleration and acceleration lanes and turn lanes on US-31.

These road plans are subject to approval by the Michigan Department of Transportation. A traffic study is currently being worked on.

Wal-Mart officials said they hoped to have the store open in 2005.

Bob Hoffman, a Charlevoix resident and president of the anti-Wal-Mart group This Is Our Town, said the group is looking forward to seeing Wal-Mart's new plans.

"We will be interested in seeing the changes in the plans," he said. "There are viable reasons to deny the site plan request."

As for the postponement, Hoffman said it is advantageous for This Is Our Town.

He said it gives the organization more time to build its support and gives it more time to do necessary research.

Currently, the group is circulating a petition in the area of people opposed to Wal-Mart's plans for a supercenter.

Sturock against state grades

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Report cards issued by the state last week for public and charter schools in Michigan have disappointed some administrators with Charlevoix Public Schools.

This is the first year the Michigan Department of Education has administered this accountability system which rated Charlevoix Elementary School a C and gave Charlevoix Middle and High schools Bs. The local charter school, Northwest Academy was not rated.

Grades were released Jan. 30 and the local reaction hasn't been positive.

"Not many superintendents in the state of Michigan are happy with this program. The state tried to rush something out that unfortunately penalized us and a lot of school dis-

Who will be the next queen?

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

At half-time of the Rayder basketball team's Winterfest match-up against East Jordan a king and queen will be crowned.

This year's court includes 10 seniors. They are: Brittni Simonti, Bryce Daly, AnnaKate Trubilowicz, Scott Friske, Jessica Pettis, Josh Fassett, Brooke Blanchard, Mike Dupuis, Libby Campbell and Tim Cross.

Out of the five accomplished female students, only one will be selected to be the 2004 Winterfest queen.

Simonti is the daughter of Al and Kathi Simonti. She is a member of the National Honor Society and when she isn't hitting the books, she enjoys football. In the fall of 2004 she is thinking about attending Grand Valley State University.

Pettis, a Rayder student athlete, is the daughter of Jim Pettis. During her high school career she has participated in volleyball, softball, basketball and cheerleading and is a member of the National Honor Society. After graduation she plans to attend Grand Valley State University to pursue a degree in a field related to health care.

Trubilowicz is the daughter of Bill and Marty Trubilowicz. When she isn't busy with the National Honor Society, the French Club, the Spanish Club, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation Youth Advisory Council or steering meetings as student council president, you can find her skiing, running cross country or playing tennis and soccer. After high school she will head to Ann Arbor where she will enroll at the University of Michigan majoring in political science.

Blanchard is the daughter of Clint and Patricia Blanchard and Shaunee and Steve McKenney. Her high school career has been a mix of athletics and academics. When she isn't busy with the National Honor Society or the Spanish Club, you can find her on the basketball court or blocking shots in goal on the soccer field. This fall she will

Winter fun at the high school

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The 2004 Winterfest celebration at Charlevoix High School will be a week-long event packed with everything from goofy getups and shopping cart floats to a face off of two neighboring basketball teams.

During the week the students will decorate the halls, create Rayder banners, decorate shopping carts and hone their talents for six minute shows.

The week of activities will be rounded out by a dress-up competition with a daily theme.

Decision needed in Gooch debate

EDITORIAL

Why won't they just make a decision?

This city clerk debate has outlived its welcome. The Charlevoix City Council needs to come to a decision now, instead of debating this matter to death.

The issue is: Charlevoix City Clerk Liz Gooch, an elected official, wants to be full time in the wake of the deputy clerk's recent retirement. Currently, she is part time, while the deputy clerk is full-time. She says she needs to be full-time because the work load is too much to complete in 20 hours. Therefore, she said she has been working 40 hours a week at times, without being compensated for it.

But, some people in city government just don't want this to happen.

First Charlevoix City Manager Mike Weisner wanted to violate the city charter by hiring a deputy clerk. The city charter clearly says the city clerk makes this call at the approval of the Charlevoix City Council. However, Weisner insists he can hire a deputy clerk, but, sorry, the charter reads differently.

Then, some officials said we just can't afford it. How can we not afford it if we eliminate the deputy clerk position or make it part time? That argument doesn't float.

Then they argued that the city clerk position has always been part-time and it hasn't been a problem. Charlevoix is a growing city and in a growing city, the duties of city government grow. Sometimes, we need to change the way we do things to keep pace with life.

The bottom line is it seems there is a power struggle going on at city hall and it is getting pathetic. Some people in the city need to relinquish some control.

Gooch should be paid for the hours she works. If the city does not want to make her full-time, at least pay her for the hours over 20 that she does work.

Make the decision. It is time to move on.

Wal-Mart may be an opportunity for some

Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

Since childhood I have heard from ministers and inspirational speakers that the Chinese word character for opportunity is the same as the character for crisis.

I have never verified the truth of this with a Chinese language scholar, but it is a worthwhile sentiment in any case.

Some of Charlevoix's citizens clearly view the coming of a Super Wal-Mart to the shore of our community as a crisis and there seem to be others who think it represents opportunity. While living in Iowa I was part of a small community that fended off the final arrival of a Super Wal-Mart for five years at considerable legal, emotional and psychological cost.

The store is now operating in that community. I suspect Wal-Mart will finally be here as well.

We pretty much know about the crisis side; what could be the opportunities? Some of us will not wish to ever visit the new store, even though it may offer specific products we want. Some will not mind paying a little more for products or services if a local business benefits from those actions.

Both the above groups could very well be served by a potential new business related specifically to the arrival of Wal-Mart: We could call it Delivery of even Deliverance.

Some number of our local population could fill a need by purchasing and delivering pre-ordered products from the new super store. Delivery fees would be set by the difference between Wal-Mart prices and local prices for the same products.

All the new business needs is a telephone or an Internet site and some reliable delivery vehicles. The people who never want to darken the doors of Wal-Mart could stay away, even while purchasing its products and could also benefit the local Deliverance business by paying for delivery and the delivery service would help keep local dollars in the local economy. And of course if someone wanted to pay even more for some needed product, they could specify that it be purchased in a local business and have to pay even more for some needed product; they could specify that it be purchased in a local business and have it delivered for a modest fee.

Fifty years ago I worked for Neff Brothers Grocery in downtown Charlevoix. We delivered our products to anyone who wanted them. We even did the shopping for our customers, packing it from the shelves and sending it off in our delivery van. Neff's delivery service was free, but times change. It was popular as a service then and there seems little reason why it wouldn't be equally popular now.

Wal-Mart could eventually shrink the size of their parking lot because Deliverance workers would be visiting the establishment and shopping in one trip for dozens of families or individuals. Out-of-town deliveries might be just a tad more expensive, but even those living in rural areas should be willing to pay a little extra not to have to drive to either Charlevoix or Petoskey. At least one empty downtown store front could house the Deliverance offices, and maybe competition for the lucrative delivery business would produce two such opportunities.

Fuel costs for local shopping would be reduced with fewer vehicles making the trip to Wal-Mart: Kind of like mass transit for products rather than people. Summer traffic congestion would be limited somewhat. Do you really want to fight your way through the Wal-Mart parking and the over-busy, over-large and confusing store interior when you could be enjoying your lake view or a sunset, the flowers in your yard or the crisp new cover of snow?

Entrepreneurs arise! Our crisis can be your opportunity.

Letters to the editor

Are you prepared?

Editor:

There are several business opportunities available in Cadillac. Carter's, 45,000 square feet, closed. Glen's, 55,000 square feet, closed. Kmart, 120,000 square feet, closed and Wal-Mart, 120,000 square feet, closing to build bigger.

If relocating does not interest you, similar opportunities may be coming to Charlevoix. How strong is your planning commission?

Norwood dispute should go to mediation

Editor:

As a resident of Norwood Township and an active participant in township affairs, I have been concerned about the recent public dispute in our township. At the Jan. 19 board meeting, I publicly suggested that all participants be civil, respect each other's opinions and perhaps, learn how disputes can be amicably resolved. I had specifically suggested that the parties consider using the effective mediation services of Northern Michigan Community Mediation. My suggestions were directed at the township officials, as well as the parties having the dispute.

Thus, I was very disappointed to read in the Jan. 28 issue of the Charlevoix Courier that the township supervisor chose, in my opinion, to aggravate the situation by publicly detailing his opinion regarding the dispute and related issues. In my opinion, those types of comments will only serve to stiffen the resolve by all parties and divide our township.

Friends and neighbors, there are many critical social and economic problems in our world; let's appreciate all advantages we enjoy living here, and, in regards to the recent public disputes, request the Norwood Township and city of Charlevoix officials to demonstrate the leadership they were elected to fulfill.

How to get your event news into the Charlevoix Courier

If you have a news item you think would be perfect for the Charlevoix Courier, feel free to call 547-6558, e-mail charlevoixcourier@charlevoixcourier.com or visit the Courier office located at 112 Mason Street in downtown Charlevoix.

News items include events sponsored by non-profit organizations. Please inform us of your event at least two weeks in advance.

Our coverage area is the city of Charlevoix and its immediately surrounding areas, including Beaver Island.

Because of space limitations in the newspaper, we generally try to avoid publishing "check-handing" pictures or "ribbon-cutting" pictures. However, we will work with your organization to get a picture that reflects the event and is visually interesting to our readers.

Due to time constraints on the staff, we cannot attend every event we are notified of. If you have a picture of your event, we will gladly consider it for publication. But, please, contact us before your event.

It should be noted, each story and picture is dealt with on its individual merits. Any policies outlined above may be suspended by the editor or general manager of the Charlevoix Courier if necessary.

Charlevoix residents have the option of shopping at Wal-Mart in Petoskey. Opening a new Wal-Mart in Charlevoix will increase lawsuits and contribute to the loss of American jobs.

- A jury in Oregon found Wal-Mart managers had coerced hundreds of employees to work overtime without pay, and the company is facing over 40 similar suits around the country.[1]
- It has what may be the "largest sex-discrimination case employment lawyers can think of."[2] It also has the "most American with Disabilities Act-related EEOC suits of any US company.[3]
- The Manufacturing sector employs over 3,000 people in Charlevoix County, and Wal-Mart is "probably a significant part" of the dynamic causing the loss of US manufacturing jobs to overseas markets.[4]
- Contrary to the 1980s "Made in the USA" campaign, only 15% of Wal-Mart's items are now made in the USA.[5]
- In 2002, 10% of all US imports from China were bought by Wal-Mart. That was $12 billion that was not paid to American companies.[4]

Wedding

Newcomb — Udy

Rachel Newcomb and Kevin Udy, both of Collierville, Tenn., were married Sept. 13, 2003 in front of 175 guests at the Charlevoix Community Reformed Church.

Rachel is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edward Newcomb of Charlevoix. Kevin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Udy.

The Rev. Waring Porter of Knox Presbyterian Church, in Harrison Township, performed the service.

The bride wore a pearl adorned silk and satin dress, which was made as a gift by the groom's aunt. She also had a pearl beaded headpiece and carried a bouquet of hydrangea, rose and stock combination that was handcut and tied with an ivory ribbon.

Music at the ceremony was provided by Theda Williams on piano and Grant Newcomb on the trumpet.

The maid of honor was the bride's sister, Chelsea Newcomb.

Bridesmaids were Jocelyn Lorenger, Emily Eshenroder, Shelley Williams, Anne Scott and Danielle Smith. They wore French blue satin gowns and carried blue and green hydrangea bouquets.

Rachel Sjolander was the flower girl.

Brett Ament was the ring bearer.

The best man was Bradley Udy, the groom's brother. Groomsmen were Jim Metzger, Steve Caldwell, Steve Bawks, Rob Myers and Grant Newcomb.

Ushers were Justin Clark and Scott Graul.

A reception was given at Stafford's Perry Hotel in Petoskey.

The couple went on a wedding trip to Grand Cayman. They are making Memphis, Tenn. their home.

The bride graduated from Michigan State University in 2001. She works for Medtronic in Memphis, Tenn.

The groom graduated from Michigan State University in 2001. He works for Hunter Fan Company in Memphis, Tenn.

Petrosky named to new public affairs position

Tim Petrosky

Timothy D. Petrosky has been named public information director for Consumers Energy.

He succeeds Kevin Keane who was recently appointed area manager for Genesee and Lapeer counties.

In his new position Petrosky will share responsibility for statewide media relations relating to the utility's electric operations and service to customers. He will also continue to support public affairs activities at the Big Rock Point Restoration Project.

He will maintain an office in northern Michigan.

He began his career with Consumers Energy in 1981 as a part-time meter reader. He has held positions in marketing and sales, community services and public information. In addition to Big Rock Point, he has worked in the utility's Royal Oak, Livonia, Alma, Fenton and Saginaw offices.

Petrosky was named Big Rock Point public affairs director in 1991 and is responsible for the plant's media relations, emergency communications, local government and public relations and employee communications.

Petrosky earned a bachelor's degree from Ferris State University and a master's degree in communications from Eastern Michigan University. Petrosky, wife Tricia, and children Jacob and Elizabeth, reside in Charlevoix.

Big Rock Point was the world's first high power-density boiling water reactor and an important research site for the nuclear power industry. The plant was shut down on Aug. 29, 1997, after 35 years of service, making it the nation's longest running nuclear plant.

Due to its many contributions to the nuclear and medical communities, Big Rock Point was named a Nuclear Historic Landmark by the American Nuclear Society.

Consumers Energy, the principal subsidiary of CMS Energy, provides natural gas and electricity to more than six million of the state's nearly 10 million residents in all 68 Lower Peninsula counties.

Library to take part in community reads event

Little Traverse Community Reads will continue this month with a community book discussion of the Newberry Honor Book, "The Watsons Go to Birmingham," by Christopher Paul Curtis.

Discussion will take place at 7 p.m., Tuesday, Feb. 10 at the Charlevoix Public Library located off Clinton Street in Charlevoix.

Library Director Val Meyerson will lead the group in a lively discussion of this hilarious tale.

"A book discussion is a wonderful way for parents to spend an evening with their child," Meyerson said.

Meyerson has invited parents and their middle school age children to participate.

The Watsons' story takes place in 1963. Byron Watson and his younger brother Kenny are constantly in trouble for one thing or another.

Before the system can label Kenny a delinquent, the family packs up the car to deliver Kenny to his grandmother in Birmingham. The journey from Flint is packed with humor, until faced with one of our country's most tragic events, the bombing of the Sixteenth Avenue Baptist Church.

The author gracefully blends the fictional account of an African American family with the factual events of the violent summer of 1963.

For more information contact the library at 547-2651.

Refreshments will be provided by the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library.

Obituaries

David Alan Farnsworth: Oct. 10, 1950 - Jan. 30, 2004

David Alan Farnsworth, 53, of Charlevoix, died Friday, Jan. 30, 2004, at his home in Charlevoix.

He was born Oct. 10, 1950, in Watertown, N.Y., the son of Donald and Roberta M (Lance) Farnsworth. He grew up in the Detroit area and graduated from Redford High School in 1968, then attended Lawrence Tech.

He has lived in Charlevoix for 23 years, where he was a member of the Charlevoix Country Club. He loved to golf and had shot a hole-in-one at the Country Club.

David was employed at Bay Shore Steel where he was a purchasing agent. David was also a journeyman carpenter.

He is survived by his mother, Roberta M. Johns of Saint Claire Shores; brother, Robert A. (Phyllis E.) Farnsworth of Fairfield Glade, Tenn.; nephews, Robert and Michael Farnsworth; nieces, Heather Farnsworth and Kendra Kinsey.

Visitation will be 4 p.m. until 8 p.m., Wednesday, Feb. 4 at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. Following the visitation, Michael will be cremated and his remains will be interred in the York Township Branch Road Cemetery near Medina, Ohio.

Memorial contributions may be directed to the Charlevoix High School Golf Team.

Matilda K. Willard: Oct. 5, 1916 - Jan. 25, 2004

Matilda K. (Guidi) "Til" Willard, 87, of Portland, passed away on Sunday, Jan. 25, 2004.

She was born Oct. 5, 1916 in Ionia, a daughter of Santino and Mary Guidi. Her eyes shown with proud memories when she described the family candy store in Portland.

Candyland was run as a family operation and she could remember making fudge, taffy and other candies. A kid in a candy store as she recollected.

Mrs. Willard graduated from Portland High School, attended Michigan State University and graduated from Central Michigan University. She met her husband, Ralph, in high school and they were married for 61 years, prior to his passing in 1999.

They had three children, Steve, Louise and Roger. While the children were growing up, Til worked part-time as a merchandiser for Marjo Hat Shop in Grand Rapids.

She also ran fashion shows at various department stores, like Steketees, showcasing hats and purses. In 1956, she and Ralph moved the family to Portland.

Til went to work at St. Patrick in Portland as an English teacher, when her youngest child was 18. She went on to implement the first home economics class there. She had the distinction of being one of the first lay teachers hired at St. Patricks and rose to the position of elementary principal.

Mrs. Willard was preceded in death by her husband, Ralph, parents, sister, Vi and brothers, Ronald and Carl. She is survived by her children, Steven (Kay) Willard and Roger (Diane) Willard, both of Portland and Louise (Dr. James) Hilligan of Charlevoix; six grandchildren, Wendy (Greg) Woodruff, Julie Willard, Todd Willard, Christine (Don) Harbort, Jeffrey (Janice) Hilligan, Jennifer (Bryan) Vollmer; seven great-grandchildren, Rachel and Jordan Woodruff, Madison, Mackenzi and Nicholas Harbort, Tucker and Abigail Hilligan and one Vollmer on the way.

Thanks to a special friend, Valerie Jenkins and the caring staff (especially Kerinne) and nurses at Heartland Healthcare in Ionia.

Cremation has taken place. A memorial service will be held at the Portland Cemetery later this spring. Arrangements have been entrusted to the Barker-Leik Funeral Home in Mulliken.

Flood waters

Work on Charlevoix City Hall gave officials a chance to fix a leaky water pipe leading to the city last week. After digging through Mason Street, workers found the pipe — which quickly filled their hole with water — and patched it. Workers estimate the pipe had been leaking for about a year.

Commissioner wants to cut council pay

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

A question has been raised as to whether or not the mayor and six city council members should be paid for their service.

John Campbell

"They (council and the mayor) are no different than people that serve the community on library boards, school boards or township boards. It's a service to the community to be there," John Campbell, a member of the city of Charlevoix Compensation Commission, said.

Campbell reviewed information from the Michigan Municipal League outlining how other communities handle compensating city officials. He said other mayors and council members are given everything from no money at all to more money than the local group gets.

Currently the city pays its six council members a total of $10,800 and the mayor $3,400. The mayor's payment is more than is given in Petoskey, Boyne City and East Jordan but is less than Traverse City. And the council allocation is more than East Jordan and Petoskey but is less than Boyne City.

Campbell brought the local stipend up at the Jan. 23 compensation commission meeting. According to the city charter this commission sets the salary for the mayor and council.

He said in bringing up the issue he was not proposing that this wage be abolished or raised, he was just discussing.

Prior to attending the meeting Campbell talked to three council members. He said two of the three were in favor of discontinuing the wage.

Third ward councilman Sherm Chamberlain, who received a call, said, "The money was not a driving factor in it for me. I would probably do it for nothing, it's a public service job for me."

Chamberlain and others serve not only at two council meetings every month but also attend any special meetings and several ad hoc committee meetings. Chamberlain said these meetings are on top of personal time they use researching issues.

Others on the compensation commission agreed with Campbell that the elected positions are a way of serving the community and not jobs, but didn't wholeheartedly support cutting their stipend.

Phil Kluczynski, a commission member, said, "I don't think any of these people run for those positions because its profitable. They do it because it's a service to the community."

Kluczynski added that if abolishing the wage would save the city a bundle of money it might be worth it but it really wasn't for the $14,000.

But Campbell said the change isn't about saving the city money, its about taking the politics out of the position. He said he thinks that if the pay were cut maybe people serving who have their own agendas would be cut out of the picture.

Third ward council member Shirley Gibson said Campbell should stop worrying about the agendas of others and start worrying about his own.

She feels his sudden interest in this issue is related to his pending dismissal from the city planning commission.

"I think him bringing this up at the compensation commission meeting with the current situation is a conflict. He's mad at the mayor and city council because he didn't get his way on assisted living," she said.

> "They are no different than people that serve the community on library boards, school boards or township boards. It's a service to the community to be there."
> John Campbell,
> Planning Commissioner and city compensation committee

The alleged conflict Gibson alludes to stems from council's December vote against setting a public hearing to discuss a planning commission recommendation to amend the zoning ordinance to include assisted living. Campbell is a planning commissioner.

After council denied the hearing, the commission set a public hearing to hear a request to locate Sunnybank Retirement Community, on a north side property in the R-2 single family residential district.

This action prompted Mayor Gabe Campbell to threaten the dismissal of Campbell and four of his fellow commissioners. The Mayor claims their decision constituted neglect of duty and inefficiency.

Campbell denied that the compensation issue and the dismissal are related.

Another compensation commission member, Lou Hollow, also saw how cutting council's cash could be perceived in this way.

"It would look like the compensation commission is taking a position, slapping the council and the mayor," he said.

Commissioner Ken Staley motioned not to change the current compensation. This motion died for lack of a second.

Compensation Commission chairman Ed Johnson said he isn't comfortable supporting any change without first seeing how the people in those seats feel about it.

Another motion was made to table the matter to be brought up at a later meeting. This motion passed. Now, the commissioners plan to speak with members of council, the mayor and other communities about it.

Governor cuts less than expected from budget

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Public school districts across the state are breathing a sigh of relief as high early projections of cuts to state funding for public schools were overestimated.

"I certainly like $79 better than $196, but still it's $79 a student and $79 a student for us is about $100,000," Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools Dr. John Sturock, said.

Dr. John Sturock

On Jan. 8 a letter written by Gov. Jennifer Granholm was sent to school superintendents across the state announcing final decisions for budget cuts.

The letter with news of cuts was expected, but the size of the cuts was a surprise.

In mid-October Granholm announced that the state is facing a $900 million deficit it has to make up before the fiscal year ends on Sept. 30, 2004. Of that deficit, $349 million is a shortfall in the school aid fund.

The expected result at that time was a probable cut to the foundation grant at $196 per student which would cost Charlevoix Public Schools about $276,000. The school board got together and started talking cuts.

They decided to make the money up by cutting back in ways that wouldn't affect programs and paying the difference out of the district's fund equity.

That $1.6 million fund equity account will likely still take a hit, but it won't be as hard.

Granholm's latest plan reduces the foundation allowance by $84 per pupil for payments from October through January. So far, this has cost the district about $25,750.

Greg Bird, spokesman for the state budget office, said "It's good news, but it would be better if we didn't have to prorate at all."

According to Bird, things are looking even better for schools this month. He said at the Jan. 14 revenue estimating conference there was talk of that allowance reduction coming the school district's way even more. They are expecting the February cut to be between $74 and $79 per student.

Accounting manager for the Charlevoix School District, Shawn Biddle said this $74 cut is expected to stay at that level through the rest of the fiscal year and will cost the district $5,900 for February.

These cuts will likely plague the rest of the fiscal year and in the end will cost the district about $100,000. Just exactly where the money will come from will be discussed at the school board meeting scheduled to take place at 7 p.m., March 8 in the library at the high school located off Marion Center Road.

While the board will have to talk about where money will come from to band-aid this year's budget, the future looks bright. When the new fiscal year starts on Oct. 1, 2004, no cuts should be facing schools and the district should get $7,887 per student for the year.

Bird said at the state's January revenue estimating conference it was projected that the school aid fund for fiscal year 2005 is going to be about $414.2 million in the positive. This will be made more definite on Feb. 12 when Granholm presents the budget.

Bird said the reason for this better financial situation in 2005 is due to a better economic forecast and expected increases in revenue from the school aid funds main contributor, the sales tax.

He said Granholm is expecting people to buy more and is also taking into account two new lottery games, Club Keno and Pull Tabs. These lottery games are expected to bring in $50 million to the school aid fund.

But with the state facing a $1 billion deficit in the 2004-2005 fiscal year, and Sturock isn't holding his breath with hopes that the school foundation allowance is safe.

"How that (the deficit) will affect public schools remains to be seen. I wish I could project into the future. We'll base next year's budget on what we're getting this year ($7,887 per student)," he said.

Kennel issue appears to be headed for court

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Norwood Township's Zoning Board of Appeals won't rehear a permit appeal, so a circuit court judge may have to.

Permits for the construction of a shed and the modification of an existing fence issued for Auntie Barb's Country Kennel were overturned by the township's zoning board of appeals (ZBA) in November.

This action followed an appeal from Mark and Marilyn Maynard who are neighbors and former customers of kennel owners Barb and Frank Hamilton. Mark Maynard, is also a Norwood Township Board Trustee, a ZBA member and the former chairman of the township planning commission.

Mark Maynard said in June he and his wife appealed the permits which were issued to the Hamiltons by township zoning administrator Lynn Smolenyak in April and May of 2003. They claim those permits were given when the property didn't conform with the zoning ordinance.

The Hamilton's property is located at 02161 US-31 in Charlevoix's Norwood Township. They were granted a special use permit to operate a kennel there on April 12, 1995 under the township's 1991 zoning ordinance. This 1991 ordinance was revised and the new ordinance went into effect on June 16, 1995.

The ZBA decided that the Hamiltons had not done work of "substantial character" to get the kennel operation up and running in the months between their permit being issued and the new ordinance going into effect. And because of that, ruled the Hamiltons do not have a vested right for use of their kennel facility.

The ZBA also ruled the scope of kennel operations has changed from what was approved in 1995.

This means the Hamiltons need to get a new special use permit under the current ordinance, bringing the kennel and grounds up to today's ordinance standards.

Smolenyak entered an appeal of that decision on Dec. 18 on behalf of the Hamiltons. Dan Barron, the Hamiltons attorney with the Charlevoix law firm Barron and Golski, argued the legal standard the ZBA used in making its ruling was wrong and the issue needed to be reheard.

But that request for rehearing was denied at the ZBA's Jan. 28 meeting. ZBA chairman Bill Jackson said the board acted on a recommendation by Norwood Township attorney Bryan Graham.

Graham advised the board that there was no clearly erroneous standard it used in making its decision and therefor no grounds on which to rehear the case.

This means the Hamiltons can proceed in one of three ways. They can file an application with the township planning commission to get a new special use permit. They can file an application with the planning commission to amend their current permit to comply with the current zoning ordinance.

Or, they could appeal the decision to circuit court. And according to Barron a lawsuit is most likely the direction they plan to take.

He told the board, "Unfortunately this matter will most likely have to be decided in a court of law."

More signing up for WIC program

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency has reported that more young families are participating in the Women, Infants and Children (WIC) Nutrition Program than ever before.

The local health department serves Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties. Throughout the four county region each month over 3,000 women, infants and children participate in the program. Through the program they are provided with nutritious food, nutritional counseling and referrals to health and other social services at no charge.

WIC serves low income pregnant, postpartum and breast feeding women and infants and children to age five who are a nutritional risk.

"The record number of WIC participants is certainly a reflection of our struggling economy," Pat Fralick, director of the WIC program, said. "But it also reflects the respectful service provided hy our staff. It is very difficult for many people to ask for help so we really try to make families feel comfortable when they come to the health department."

WIC provides vouchers to purchase specific foods each month that are designed to supplement participants' diets. The foods are high in nutrients, such as iron-fortified cereals, vitamin C rich juices, peanut butter and tuna fish.

"WIC coupons are redeemed for nearly $1.5 million in groceries every year in our four-county area," Fralick said. "Without WIC, local food pantries would really be struggling to keep up with the needs of hungry families."

According to the USDA Food and Nutrition service, WIC saves lives and improves the health of nutritionally at-risk women, infants and children. Research has shown that the WIC program plays an important role in improving hirth outcomes, like fewer premature hirths and fewer infant deaths is well as decreasing health care costs.

"For each dollar spent on WIC, there is a savings in health care dollars up to $3.13," Fralick said. "This is an exceptionally cost-effective program."

Families may sign up for WIC at the health department offices in Bellaire, Mancelona, Charlevoix, Petoskey and Gaylord. The WIC program is open to women who are pregnant, postpartum (up to six months following the birth of infant) and/or breast feeding, and infants up to 12 months of age and children up to five years of age.

Local applicants must live in Michigan and meet the income requirement, currently an annual income below $33,485 for a family of four.

For more information about WIC contact the local health department at 547-6238.

Locks of love

Ellsworth girls Emily Piellusch, 12, (left) and Maggie Piellusch, 14, donated some of their hair to the cancer foundation Locks of Love. The hair will be used to make wigs for cancer patients. The girls donated their hair Wednesday at Shear Country beauty salon on Barnard Road. They said they had been growing their hair their entire lives.

I can do that.
Just Ask!
I can do that!
I can do that!
I can do that!

It's a pretty bold statement, considering we don't even know the question yet. Northwestern Bank is locally owned and each office is locally staffed and managed. Decisions are made right here by people with the answers, who are empowered to do what needs to be done. The person you ask is the person who'll make sure it happens.

You'll never get answers like, "That's not my department." Or, "You'll have to call this 800 number." When you ask anyone at Northwestern Bank, big things happen right away.

If your bank "can't do that," maybe it's time you found one that can.

Area man to sign book on life as a SEAL

Chuck Pfarrer, a resident of northern Michigan is a former Navy SEAL who served in Beirut, Central America and the Middle East, who at the end of his career was Assault Element Commander for the Navy's SEAL Team Six. "Warrior Soul," is Pfarrer's just released book from Random House, about the warrior spirit, and it takes the reader all over the world.

In "Warrior Soul" he recounts some of his most dangerous assignments: Playing a deadly game of cat and mouse with a Nicaraguan patrol boat on a clandestine reconnaissance mission on the Mosquito Coast.

Cut off on the streets of Beirut, the author's SEAL detachment battles snipers on the Green Line. In the mid-Atlantic, Pfarrer's unit attempts to retrieve - or destroy - the booster section of a Trident ballistic missile before it can be recovered by a Russian spy trawler. On a runway in Sicily, his assault element surrounds an Egyptian airliner carrying the Achille Lauro highjackers.

These are only a few of the riveting stories of combat patrol, reconnaissance missions, counter-terrorist operations, tragedies, and victories in "Warrior Soul" that illustrate the SEAL maxim "the person who will not be defeated cannot be defeated."

In addition to his outstanding eight-year career as a Navy SEAL, Pfarrer was also the screenwriter for the motion pictures "The Jackal," "Darkman," "Red Planet," "Virus," "Hard Target" and "Navy SEALs."

Pfarrer is co-founder and director of Visual Purple, LLC, a corporation providing national security affairs training with clients including the Department of Defense, FBI, Defense Threat Reduction Agency, and U.S. Special Operations Command, among others.

Chuck Pfarrer will sign copies of his book, "Warrior Soul" between 3-5 p.m. and 7-9 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 14, at the Bridge Street Book Shop, 407 Bridge Street, in downtown Charlevoix.

New island health care facility opens

By Frank Solle
Special to the Courier

BEAVER ISLAND — One time island physician and former president of the Beaver Island Rural Health Center board of directors, Dr. Phillip F. Lange, became the first patient at the new Beaver Island Rural Health Care facility last week and was given the honor of cutting the ceremonial ribbon prior to entering the examination room.

"This is just great," Dr. Lange, who as board president through the 1990s, helped lay the groundwork for starting the process of building a new clinic, said of the new 8,000 square-foot facility. "I now see fewer and fewer people leaving the island for medical care."

Sometimes even good change doesn't come easily to small communities, and the building of a new clinic on Beaver Island after 50 years in the old location has been no exception. Ever since Beaver Island Rural Health Center received a $1.5 million state grant in 2001, an air of controversy has swirled around the development, building, and now the opening of this impressive facility.

From deciding where the building should go, to its final shape and size; from the type of exterior siding, to the style of windows; to which fuel should be used to heat the facility and who should provide it, the island community has wrestled with opinion, emotion and concerns each step of the journey.

But through a summer heated by the non renewal of one health care provider's contract, an autumn colored by another's resignation and the hiring of a new provider with longtime connections to the island, to a winter chilled by controversy over the terms and amounts to charge the local, independent dentist for her use of the building, construction on the new facility continued.

"This has been very energy consuming in a variety of ways," Transition Manager Arlene Brennan said of the move to the new clinic. "But our staff has been fabulous. We really have a great work group here. They have taken a lot of pride in this. Everyone has had a lot of input and been very involved since day one."

Brennan added, "Functionality is the name of the game and this is at the very top. The design is beautiful, plus there is a lot of room for growth and expansion. This is going to serve the community for many years to come."

Current Beaver Island Rural Health Center board president Connie Wojan echoed Brennan's thoughts.

"This is something that will meet our needs as the population continues to grow. We didn't build this for the next two years, we built it for the next 50," she said.

Speaking of the overall appearance of the new building, Wojan added, "It's more beautiful than anything I imagined."

Asked what the new facility means to the island, Wojan was quick to respond, "It means a better quality of life. It means the ability to attract professionals. And it means the possibility of offering a wider range of medical services."

Both Wojan and Brennan gave praise to Beaver Island Rural Health Center board member Don Spencer, who acted as the Building Project Coordinator.

From his perspective, Spencer said, "This has been a dream to work with. This is one of the most important infrastructures in the community. Health care, schools, power and roads — those are the biggies. This is a major piece of that puzzle. Maybe we have set the bar for the community for new developments."

One member of the community who played a major behind-the-scenes role in making this development come true is Bill McDonough. While not a member of the Beaver Island Rural Health Center board, McDonough does sit on the board's Resource Development Committee.

Dr. Phillip F. Lange cuts the ribbon on the new Beaver Island Health Center as the first patient.

Looking to what he expects the community's response to the new facility will be, McDonough said, "I didn't envision something this grand. When the people of the community visit this for the first time they are going to be awed by the beauty and the functionality of this facility and I think they will quickly become very proud of it."

The new clinic officially opened this past Monday. An island-wide open house is scheduled from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. this Sunday. A grand opening celebration is scheduled for June 25.

City clerk debate continues at council meeting

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

At city council's meeting this week, a familiar debate took center stage.

On Feb. 2 council debated the city clerk's position and didn't make a final decision as to whether it should maintain its part-time status or be bumped up to full time.

Third ward city council member Shirley Gibson has argued that the city charter intends this position to be full-time.

"My feeling in reading the charter, is its intent is for the city clerk's position to be full-time. The job has been eroded and I want to see it go back to what the charter intends," Gibson said at the meeting.

But after over 30 minutes of discussion, Gibson, second ward council member Karen Campbell and about five public supporters of full-time clerk status, were unable to sway the rest of council.

Third ward councilman Sherm Chamberlain said his concern with making a change to full-time is money.

"I have to tell the taxpayers how I will come up with $16,500 plus the cost of health care insurance," he said.

In late January, the city's compensation commission recommended that if council makes the clerk's position full-time, the full-time deputy clerk's position should be eliminated and the clerk's salary set at $34,000.

If council decides to keep the position at its current part-time status, the commission recommended it continue at the present salary $16,416.

Aside from the financial hit the city could take, Chamberlain also sees no need for a change.

"For over 20 years the system has worked fine; why change it?" he said.

The clerk's seat is currently being filled by Liz Gooch who was reelected in November of 2003. Gooch is compensated for 20 hours of work, but said she can't fulfill all the duties of the clerk in that time. And any time she works over 20 hours is not paid for.

"I can't do it in 20 hours. There are things that just aren't getting done. Last week I put in 40 hours and I've never asked for compensation," she told council.

Gooch said most of her current responsibilities include keeping records like city council minutes, compiling voter registration information, running elections, coordinating Freedom of Information Act requests and acting as clerk for both council and the Board of Review.

Even though council voted in January not to expand the clerk's responsibilities, they will revisit the issue. At Monday night's meeting they decided to review a list of her duties for consideration. This information will be brought up at a future meeting.

Chamberlain said he would support paying Gooch hourly for any time she worked beyond the 20 hours she receives a salary for. First ward councilman Bob Timms also supports this approach.

Gooch said she would accept this.

Chamberlain hopes this clerk saga will end soon so the city can "start looking to the future."

He said there are bigger fish to fry. With Wal-Mart coming to Charlevoix Township's south side he thinks council needs to look at ways to support and revitalize the downtown.

"We are getting wrapped up in micro-management issues and not setting policy for the future of Charlevoix. This is not good," Chamberlain said.

If it's not in the newspaper, how will the public notice?

Zoning changes. Tax increases. Legislative proposals. These are just a few topics where government actions can affect your life and community. Imagine if government no longer had the legal obligation to publish this information in your newspaper. How would public notices get noticed? In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. It should not be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, when to look or even to know what you're looking for to be informed. It is government's responsibility to publish and deliver public notice information as it becomes available. So take notice. Your right to know is being served... right here in your newspaper.

attend Central Michigan University to pursue a pre-medical degree.

Campbell is the daughter of Wendy Grahn-Campbell. During high school she found her niche on the stage, in the classroom and in the pool. Campbell is a member of the National Honor Society and has been active in performing arts and in the Spanish Club. She excelled as a member of the community swim team and as a runner. She plans to attend the University of Michigan this fall to study business and accounting.

While these prospective queens dream of the crown, six royal princes will be waiting in the wings to hear who will be named the 2004 Winterfest king.

Daly is the son of Dennis and Suzette Daly. During his high school career he has played basketball and soccer and enjoyed working at Ward Brothers. This fall he will attend either Michigan State University or Grand Valley State University.

Friske is the son of Neil and Joyce Friske. During high school he excelled on the soccer field and basketball court. He enjoys German and Spanish and is a member of the National Honor Society. After graduation he plans to attend college.

Fassett is the son of Martin and Karla Fassett. During high school he has worked hard on athletic teams and in the classroom. He is a member of the National Honor Society, the high school band and serves as student council president. He plans on attending Aquinas College in the fall, majoring in information technology and administration.

Dupuis is the son of Mark and Molly Dupuis. During his four years at Charlevoix High School he has kept busy as a member of the National Honor Society and the soccer and ski teams. He hopes to play soccer at the University of Michigan or at Notre Dame.

Cross is the son of Larry and Cathy Cross.

He enjoys being outside snowshoeing, hiking, fishing and camping. His interests include photography, enjoying nature and art.

The night after the royal couple has been named, Charlevoix High School students will frost the Winterfest week with a celebration.

The Winterfest dance will take place from 8:30 to 11:30 p.m., Feb. 14 in the gym at Charlevoix Elementary School.

Winterfest events to fill school week

Festivities will kick off Feb. 9 when students will search out an interesting hat to cover their coif for Hat Day.

On Feb. 10 they will wear their class colors. Freshmen will wear yellow, sophomores will wear green, juniors will wear red and seniors will be in blue.

Then, on Feb. 11, class colors will change to future school colors as students and staff show off their collegiate allegiance dressing in college sweatshirts.

Those dreams of post high school education will change to laughs on Feb. 12 when students tear through their dads' closets in search of one of his ugliest ties for "Dad's Ugly Tie Day."

That day at lunch, tie clad students will fill the commons to entertain and be entertained at a Winterfest karaoke sing along.

After the hats, sweatshirts and wildly printed ties are put away, on Feb. 13 Rayder pride will shine as students deck themselves, head-to-toe, in maroon and white. The school colors will splash across the gym bleachers at 1 p.m. that day when teachers, students and alumni gear up for the big game at the Winterfest Assembly.

The varsity Rayders will take on East Jordan at 7:30 p.m., Feb. 13 in the high school gym, located off Marion Center Road. At half-time the cart floats will parade through the gym and the Winterfest king and queen will be crowned.

Win or lose against East Jordan, a big dance party is scheduled to take place from 8:30 to 11:30 p.m., Feb. 14, Valentine's Day, at Charlevoix Elementary School. The school is located at 13513 Division Street in Charlevoix.

Charlevoix ski team performs well at Rambler meet

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Charlevoix/East Jordan High School boys' ski team took third place at the Jan. 29 Rambler Meet, while the girls' took fourth.

Coach Sue Miller said she is happy with the results overall.

"There is room for improvement; we need to fine tune," she said.

Harbor Springs took first in the boys' and girls' meet.

Miller added she wanted to congratulate senior Mike Dupuis on a fine season.

"It has been a joy working with him," she said. "He certainly has come a long way in four years. Mike was a strong player on the team and he will be missed as a part of our team."

Dupuis' ski season ended early this year because he had to undergo surgery on his knee on Jan. 30.

"We wish (Dupuis) much success into a strong recovery," Miller said.

Individual results for the boys' team in the slalom are: York Smith in fifth place, with an overall time of 1 minute, 3.41 seconds; Taylor Fisher in seventh place, with an overall time of 1 minute, 4.23 seconds; Patrick Teske in eighth, with an overall time of 1 minute, 4.41 seconds; Dupuis in eighteenth, with an overall time of 1 minute, 9.29 seconds; Cameron Attee in twenty-fifth, with an overall time of 1 minute, 17.02 seconds; and Andrew Mallory in thirty-seventh place with a did not finish.

Individual results for the boys' team in the giant slalom are: Dupuis in sixth, with an overall time of 48.49 seconds; Fisher in seventh, with an overall time of 48.70 seconds; Teske in eleventh, with an overall time of 49.64 seconds; Mallory in twelfth, with an overall time of 49.91 seconds; Smith in twenty-first with an overall time of 52.88 seconds and Attee in thirty-seventh, with a did not finish.

Individual results for the girls' team in the slalom are: Margaux Rowley in third, with an overall time of 1 minute, 4.81 seconds; Michelle Fritsch in fifteenth, with an overall time of 1 minute, 14.90 seconds; Kelsey Poineau in nineteenth, with an overall time of 1 minute, 16.81 seconds; Katie Diller in twentieth, with an overall time of 1 minute, 17.20 seconds; Kristin Dupuis in twenty-fourth, with an overall time of 1 minute, 26.48 seconds and Sarah Lorne in thirty-fourth, with a did not finish.

Individual results for the girls' team in the giant slalom are: Rowley in fourth, with a time of 47.40 seconds; Fritsch in eighth, with an overall time of 48.44 seconds; Poineau in twenty-first, with an overall time of 53.08 seconds; Diller in twenty-fourth, with an overall time of 53.48 seconds, Dupuis in twenty-sixth, with an overall time of 56.45 seconds and Jenny Rich in twenty-eight, with a did not finish.

Rayder wrestlers compete in Gaylord Invitational

The Charlevoix Rayder wrestling team traveled to Gaylord for the Northern Michigan Invitational tournament Saturday, Jan. 30.

"We came up against our toughest competition yet. Most of the 26 schools at the tournament were Division I and II. Charlevoix was 1 of only four Division IV schools invited to this tournament," Coach Craig Golovich said.

Places went to Jeff Golovich in sixth, Shannon Gillespie in seventh and Tony Kiernan and Jamen Waha in eighth.

Charlevoix indoor soccer results

Josh Manker, Ryan Gokee and McDonald all had two goals.

But Great White couldn't hold out in back to back play. The team was edged out in the final minutes of their second game against Maroon Mission by one goal. The final score was 6-5. Bini led Mission Maroon with four goals and Marvin Witthoeft had three assists.

The leading scorer for Great White was Jim Armstrong with two goals while Manker, Gokee and Phillips all had one.

Blue Steel handled the Black Attack 14-4. Exchange student Nurken Ashenov led the steel with seven goals. Orange Crush took care of the Red Hots by the score of 9-1. Surprising performances by Northwest Academy administrator Scott Cochran and former goal keeper Jake Pace who both tallied hat tricks.

Description: The West 172.25' portion of the alley extending from Nettleton Street to Burns Street bounded by the southerly line of lots 95 and 94 of Crouter's addition and part of the southerly line of lot 93 of Crouter's addition that was not vacated in liber 201 page 115 on 04/28/65; and bounded by the northerly line of lot 96 of Crouter's addition; said alley is 16' x 172.25'.

B. A request by the City of Charlevoix to abandon the north-south alley between Nettleton and Burns Streets.
Description: The North 151.68' portion of the alley between Nettleton Street and Burns Street bounded by the easterly line of lots 96, 97 and 98 of Crouter's addition and bounded by the westerly line of lots 90, 89 and 88 of Crouter's addition; said portion of alley is 16' by 151.68'; and the South portion of the alley between Nettleton Street and Burns Street bounded by the easterly 37.7' line of lot 9 of the unrecorded plat of Fox and Eaton's addition and bounded by the westerly 37.2' line of lot 6 of the unrecorded plat of Fox and Eaton's addition; said portion of alley is 16.5' wide.

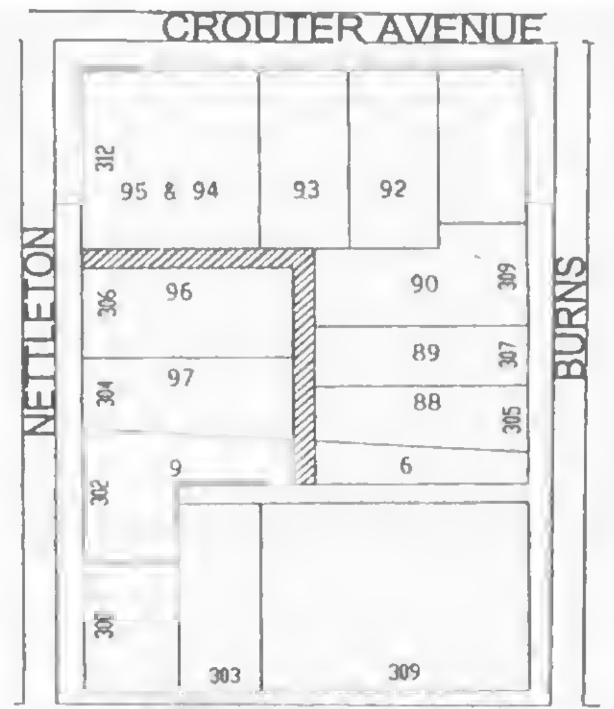
RESOLUTION — INTENT TO ABANDON

At a regular meeting of the City Council held at 109 Bridge Park Drive, USCG Acacia Conference/Training Room, Charlevoix, Michigan, on January 19, 2004, the following resolution was made by Councilman Timms and seconded by Councilman Haggard, to-wit: to schedule a public hearing for Monday, February 16, 2004 to consider the request by Robert Wine to vacate the Nettleton Street alley and to consider Staff's request to abandon the north-south alley (the two requests will be considered separately).

Motion adopted by the following yea and nay vote:

Yeas: Councilmembers Campbell, Gibson, Haggard and Timms.

Nays: None.
Abstain: Councilman Chamberlain.
Absent: Councilman Bellows.



The City of Charlevoix will provide necessary reasonable auxiliary aids and services, such as signers for the hearing impaired and audio tapes of printed materials being considered at the meeting, to individuals with disabilities at the meeting upon one week notice to the City of Charlevoix. Individuals with disabilities requiring auxiliary aids or services should contact the City of Charlevoix Clerk's Office in writing or calling the following: City Clerk, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, MI 49720 (231) 547-3250.

Charlevoix wins thriller against rival St. Francis

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

It was a heavyweight prizefight, but it took place on a basketball court.

The experienced, battle tested champion against the young upstart contender.

The champion was undefeated, but for a couple of technical disqualifications. The contender was unbeaten, but untested.

The stage was set for the Charlevoix-Traverse City St. Francis showdown in the Lake Michigan Conference last Friday night. And the game lived up to its billing.

The Rayders were knocked down early, but got up off the canvas and won a decision over the Gladiators, 75-66 before a sellout crowd of over 2,000 in Traverse City.

"It was everything we expected," Charlevoix coach Keith Haske said. "I thought it was a tale of two tempos, they kept it to the way they wanted to play it in the first half and we got it to where we wanted to play it in the second half."

St. Francis led by as many as 11 in the first quarter and left the court after the period with a 20-11 advantage.

In the second stanza, the Gladiators bumped the lead to 12 at 29-17 with 4:58 left in the half.

Rayder senior all-stater Scott Friske took over offensively for the Rayders, scoring Charlevoix's last ten points of the half. Unfortunately for the Rayder faithful, St. Francis all-conference star Josh Jorkasky matched Friske nearly basket for basket, scoring his team's last eight before intermission.

The Glads held a 37-30 lead at the half. Friske scored 15 for the Rayders in the first two quarters.

Haske adjusted the press at the half, moving the trap from halfcourt to the backcourt and the change paid dividends immediately as St. Francis turnovers and subsequent fouls allowed the Rayders to score the first eight points of the second half.

A short jumper by Ryan DeYoung following a steal by and feed from Jared Hunt put the Rayders in the lead at 38-37 with 6:14 left in the quarter. It was Charlevoix's first advantage since they led 2-0 to start the game.

"It is a bit of a cliché, but in this game I thought the first two minutes of the second half were the key," Haske observed.

The lead then changed four times in the remainder of the period. Neither team led by more than three. Friske's score on a spin move off an offensive rebound tied the game at 51-51 at the end of the third period.

On the first few possessions of the fourth quarter, Friske not only continued to be a force offensively but he switched defensively to cover Jorkasky and held him scoreless.

"We had talked in our pregame that we wanted to start off (with a) quick (defender) on Jorkasky so we went with Hunt," Haske said. "Later in the game we wanted to switch over to Friske to get a bigger player on him. It wasn't something that I told him (Friske) to do (in the fourth quarter). He enjoys that — guarding their best player."

While Jorkasky was silent, the Rayders put together a 12-4 run to begin the period. Hunt scored six and Friske four during the burst.

The spurt gave Charlevoix a 63-55 advantage with 4:27 left in the game. St. Francis scored but twice in a row, the Rayders' Bryce Daly blew past his defender for layups to push the lead to 67-57.

Kyle Kramer then rebounded a missed free throw and his putback made the score, 69-57 with only 3:06 remaining.

Just as the Charlevoix faithful breathed a slight sigh of relief, Jorkasky converted a three-point play to trim the score to 69-60. Moments later, the Rayders were called for a personal foul followed by a technical.

Jorkasky went to the free throw line with a chance to shoot four charity tosses with the clock stopped. He could only convert one of the four however.

The Gladiators made one last push, cutting the lead to 69-66 with 1:16 left, scoring three on a long shot and making two free throws following a foul call on Friske on a play where he swatted the St. Francis shot into the seats.

St. Francis wouldn't score again, however, as the Rayders converted six of eight free throws down the stretch, including two big ones in a one-and-one situation by Ryan DeYoung.

"It was a game where everybody chipped in," Haske said. "Bryce and Hunt had key plays when it counted. Bryce drove by his guy about four times in a row. John DiMartino came in and made some big plays for us. Kyle Kramer didn't play much but his putback was big."

Friske finished the game with 29 points and 19 rebounds.

Haske said, "(Friske) leads in a lot of ways. He gets after the other guys a hit. He's intense. He's just ready to play every night. He keeps turning it up more and more and just when you think he's done it all, he does a little bit more."

Daly ended up with 17 points. Hunt added 14.

The Rayders (8-2 overall, 5-1 conference), are still undefeated on the court and are now tied for first place in the Lake Michigan Conference. St. Francis dropped to 9-1 overall, 6-1 conference.

Charlevoix has three games this week. They hosted the Kalkaska Blazers on Tuesday, Feb. 3 but results were unavailable at presstime. The Rayders play at Boyne City on Friday, Feb. 6 and Glen Lake on Saturday, Feb. 7.

Elementary school gets a 'C' in state report

GRADES

tricts in the state of Michigan — good schools were unfairly penalized," said Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools Dr. John Sturock.

The report card rating is part of the state program Education Yes and federal legislation No Child Left Behind and its Adequate Yearly Progress evaluation.

The overall grade assigned to each school is based on three scoring criteria — Michigan Education Assessment Program (MEAP) achievement status, MEAP achievement change and indicators of engagement which looks at instructional quality and learning opportunities at each school.

Preliminary test scores that were released Oct. 20 gave Charlevoix Elementary School a C. The school's principal Dick Swenor appealed the grade.

According to the appeal letter written by Swenor, the C the state gave his school shows the calculation methodology has some major flaws.

The C came from a failing grade the school received for its achievement "change grade," which looks at the change in MEAP test scores from one year to the next. The state is looking for steady improvement.

Swenor admitted that the school is not "acing achievement change" but they aren't failing it either. He wrote that the school has fluctuated up and down some, but hasn't experienced any major dips during the period the state reviewed.

Sturock said the elementary school has scored high consistently on the MEAP test, but is being penalized because they didn't have a big change in the number of students who met the state standard.

"When you are at the top end of test scores it's harder to change those scores, he said.

Swenor wasn't the only one who didn't feel his school was fairly represented. About 1,200 other appeals from elementary and middle schools across the state flooded the department of education.

In spite of Sturock and Swenor's feeling that the report card rating methodology is flawed, the state did not change the elementary score.

In order to make sure the grade improves for next year, Sturock said the district plans to concentrate, as it always has, on improving MEAP scores.

But this rating doesn't have him looking at major changes to the way the elementary school educates students. He said he knows they are doing a good job.

"What is most important is that our community knows we are doing a good job. When our kids leave Charlevoix Public Schools and go on to college, they do very well and are very successful. That's what is most important. To put a grade on something just doesn't make sense to me," he said.

"I understand accountability, but when you put this (report card program) in the hands of politicians that don't understand education, I think you get problems and I think that's what we've got."

The state did not change the C it gave Charlevoix Elementary School, pictured above, during the first year of its report card accountability system, in spite of an appeal from school principal Dick Swenor.

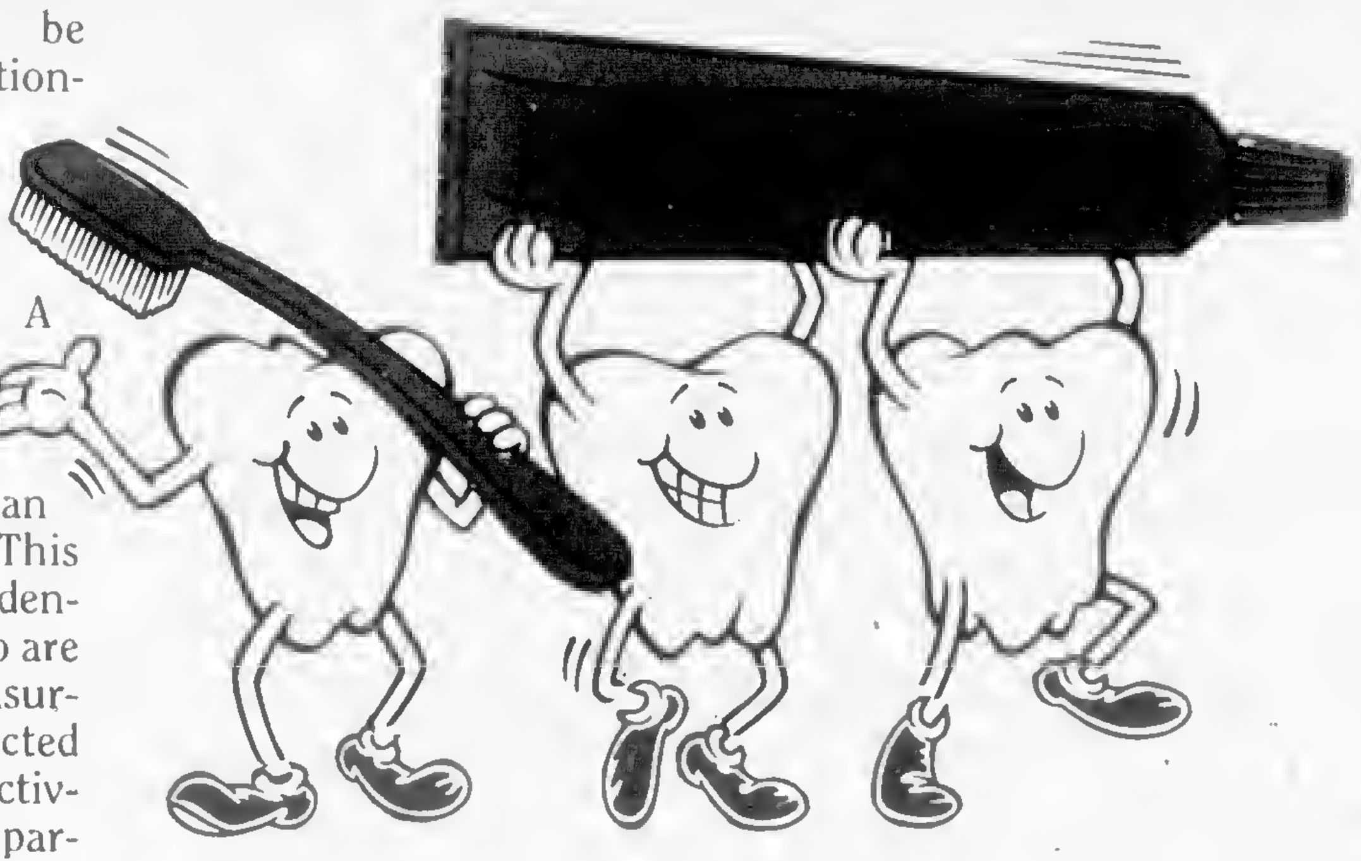
Area Dentists Observe National Children's Dental Health Month February 1-29

Local dentists observing National Children's Dental Health Month will be involved in many educational and preventative dental activities during February. Included among these activities is the "Dentist With A Heart" program, sponsored by Vacationland Dental Society, an affiliate of the American Dental Association. This program provides free dental care for children who are not covered by dental insurance. The schedule reflected below highlights local activities as well as dentists participating in the "Dentist With A Heart" Program:



- ♥ Dentists will be holding dental screenings at Charlevoix Elementary School:
  - Dr. Paramo
    February 6, 9:00 a.m.
  - Dr. Suckert
    February 11, 1:30 a.m.
  - Dr. Merrill
    February 13, 11:00 a.m.
  - Dr. Porter
    February 20, 9:30 a.m.
  - Dr. Balasz
    February 27, 9:00 a.m.
- ♥ Dr. Balasz will be at St. Mary's on February 13, 10:15 a.m.
- ♥ Dr. Sladics will be at East Jordan Elementary on February 6, from Noon-3:00 p.m.

To Ensure Your Child's Dental Health, You Should ☑

- ☑ Brush and floss your toddler's teeth.
- ☑ Supervise your child's brushing until he or she is 8 years old.
- ☑ Make sure your child uses a fluoride toothpaste, but only a pea-sized amount.
- ☑ Make sure your child visits the dentist every six months.
- ☑ Make sure your child uses a fluoride rinse if recommended by your dentist.
- ☑ Check your child's teeth for white, yellow, or brown spots, which are a sign of decay.
- ☑ Teach your child to brush after snacking.
- ☑ Encourage your child to avoid sweets and sticky foods.

City getting sued over Sunnybank

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The future of Sunnybank Retirement Community in Charlevoix is in the hands of circuit court judge Richard Pajtas.

On Monday, Feb. 9, Ed Engstrom, an attorney with the Charlevoix law office Barron and Golski, filed a lawsuit against the city of Charlevoix on behalf of Sunnybank owners Diane Gillette and Ruth Bellisimo.

Engstrom said he is basing his suit on a constitutional issue. He said the city's zoning ordinance is invalid because it excludes assisted living facilities like Sunnybank.

Based on the ordinance, the single family residential district is a no go for assisted living. On Nov. 17, Charlevoix's city council opted not to set a public hearing to discuss amending the ordinance to allow assisted living facilities in the R-1

Frosty the tree

During a break from the numerous snow showers the Charlevoix area has been hit with recently, this tree was found to be covered with a thick coat of ice during the early morning last week on Marion Center Road. Another cold snap is expected around the end of this month.

Wal-Mart preliminary plan released

This Wal-Mart supercenter is being pursued for Charlevoix Township.

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

A formal site plan review for a Wal-Mart supercenter is being scheduled for April 21 before the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission.

However, preliminary site plans were circulated to commission members and Charlevoix City officials last week. Michael Corcoran, township attorney, added this is not a complete application by Wal-Mart.

"This is just to show everybody in draft form what they are proposing," he said.

A complete application includes not only a site plan, but a "whole litany of things" such as traffic studies and environmental studies, he said. Wal-Mart must submit a complete application 30 days before its formal site plan review.

Corcoran said since the commission is shooting for an April 21 meeting, Wal-Mart will have to get its complete application in by the end of February or early

Harbor to host Day of Caring

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

During an afternoon in early Septemher many local workers will shift their focus from work, to the community.

The local manufacturing company Harbor Industries is steering an effort to mobilize Charlevoix County's business community to volunteer for a Community Day of Caring.

"This is an important part of our corporate culture — we feel we have an obligation to the community," said Tim Parker, vice president of Harbor Industries' northern operation.

On Feb. 4 a group of area professionals including a Realtor, a banker, a business owner, a hospital administrator and two area non-profit representatives, met with some employees of Harbor Industries to start planning the day.

They decided to orchestrate the event on Sept. 9, 2004 in recognition of the lives lost in the terrorist attacks that took place on Sept. 11, 2001.

At last week's meeting, project planning groups were divided into three teams — the project team, the recruiting and puhlic relations team and the administrative team.

Now, the project team will search out projects that need to be done in the county.

While the mission is being decided, recruiters will line up volunteers and spread the word. And the administrative group will act as a liaison between the two, setting up sponsorship and documenting the event.

The goal is to get workers across the county to work together on a project that will benefit Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City.

The project will take place during the work day. Parker said he hopes this doesn't discourage participation. He said businesses that roll up their sleeves and dive in with the Day of Caring project will enjoy the benefits of their workers learning to work as a team and sharing in the rewarding experience.

Parker said the Day of Caring project his company pursued this year in Grand Haven, where Harbor Industries' corporate headquarters is located, was a huge success with close to 1,000 people volunteering.

He is hoping to see the local event have the same success.

The planning group is looking for more interested people from the business community in Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City. The group will meet at 8:30 a.m., the first Thursday of the month at Harbor Industries in Charlevoix. The next meeting will take place March 4.

For more information or to get involved, call 237-6242 or e-mail the group at GetInvoled@harborind.com.

Changes in friendship bring lessons in life

Jeremy McBain

'Just a thought'

The sayings about change are correct.

Things always change. Nothing ever stays the same.

These words have haunted me lately as I think of my own life. I try to remember that change is not all bad.

For example, in the past year I learned I have an incurable, life-altering disease — a change that one can do without. But, within a few months I learned I am going to be a father and then — after four years of searching — I bought a house outside of town.

While the disease is a big change, there were two other changes to my life that were positive. Do they cancel out the pain of the disease? Not really. Each change affects different aspects of our lives and brings new lessons to learn.

With these major changes behind me, it would seem that I am ready for anything that comes my way. Again, not really. While I would love to say, "Bring it on!" I cannot. To be honest, I need a break from this change train, but this is one all of us will ride throughout our lives.

So, while I am not ready for every change that is coming my way, I am starting to accept the idea of it. But, there is one change that is the poltergeist of my haunting. That is any change that involves friends.

Recently, a friend since my freshman year of college informed me that he was moving out to the Pacific Coast — it seems his wife was offered a wonderful job out that way. While in the last few years we have not been as close as we were in college, the thought of him moving out west brought up the realities that I may not see this pal for a long, long time.

No, our friendship will not be over, but with that much distance between us, the chances of talking are few and far between.

But that is just another change in life. Friends come and friends go and it is amazing how fast it happens.

I began to think about this whole issue after this telephone call from him. How many good friends have I lost touch with as we go on making something out of our lives? How many people in my memories do I still talk to?

My college days were filled with fun. I remember sitting in my dorm room late at night with this buddy who is moving out west and about five others, quietly drinking cheap beer and discussing philosophy and politics.

How many of them do I still see? Maybe one or two, at the most.

And going further back to those youthful days when summer seemed forever and it was OK to play with action figures in the mud of someone's backyard. I remember battling with my buddies on BMX bicycles over who was the best at popping wheelies.

Or when I was in high school in Gladwin and we would drive to the big city mall to try and pick up girls. We were too hormonal and pimply faced to be attractive to many females, but we had fun trying.

How many of those chums do I still see? None. I know one, at least, has died.

Here it is many years and many changes later. We are all out pursuing our lives, starting families and just trying to make it in this world. Each of us has new friends, some of whom may eventually drift away, only to be replaced by others.

I wish each one of them the best in life. They have created so many wonderful memories to keep my soul warm on cold winter days. Plus, my friendship with each one has taught me something different.

One friend taught me the love of music, another taught me philosophy, another taught me a sense of adventure and so on and so on. Each one was a personal instructor to me who taught me how to live in this changing world.

Within the next few weeks, I will be meeting with this buddy who is moving out west. We will drink a toast and say goodbye. Into the future he will go, while the memories I have remain in the past. While drinking that toast, I will not only be wishing him well, but each one of the friends from the past who have led me to where I am today.

Will I see him again? I don't know. Depends on what other changes and lessons are in store.

An elegant afternoon during a northern winter

Edith Gilbert

'Behind the news'

Summer people always ask us, "What do you do in Charlevoix in the winter?"

Honestly, there are times when one doesn't know what to do first, and the last bitter, cold Sunday was just one of those days.

Of course, in the morning one has the choice of going to church or taking advantage of fresh powder and skiing. I decided in the afternoon to attend the opening of the Kitchen Painters Exhibit at the Crooked Tree Arts Center.

This group of artists has been painting together once a week for over 20 years — yes, in the kitchen at the center! Here we were offered a welcome choice of hot soups. There were so many people who showed up that they unfortunately ran out of soup.

I chatted with a goodly number of Charlevoix people, including Mike Bergeon, Jerry Staublin, Alberta Beyers, Edith Dale, Cynthia and Roger Postmus, Rudy and Virginia Scharschmidts, Sharon and Roger Knudsen. We circulated in the lower level and admired a lovely choice of oils and watercolors, mainly of flowers, fruit and marine scenes. They are nicely framed and matted and it's good to know they are for sale and modestly priced.

At 4 p.m. we were all invited to go upstairs and sit in the crowded gallery, where there happens to be a retrospective exhibit of Marian McKay's large vibrant contemporary paintings. Here we listened to a delightful quartet — members of the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra — perform as part of the free First Sunday Gallery Series, which will continue through May.

Robert Pattengale, formerly professor of music at Minnesota State University Moorhead, introduced the program as a Baroquen Consort. Pattengale played the harpsichord, Roger Lilak played the wind synthesizer, (which is capable of sounding like a violin, oboe, flute or saxophone), Margaret Beck, the viola and Bing Farrar, bass. Selections were as familiar as our copper sunsets, but still varied, ranging from Handel's "Water Music," Mozart's "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," and ending with the familiar "Swing Low."

Arts center had delightful winter activities

Still I must tell you why this was such a remarkable experience! To be seated in a gallery of huge, bright contemporary paintings — (the kind that attract attention and some people would confidently say, "Why my five year old can do better than that!") while listening to music that was composed over 300 years ago was utterly thrilling. It made me wonder what the next 300 years will have in store for us? People who were present will long remember this unusual Sunday afternoon experience.

At 5 p.m., the concert was over, so there was still plenty of time to return home and watch the Superbowl game on TV, with all the halftime unexpected brou-ha-ha.

Believe me, it was a full Sunday for us stay-at-homes, and now all you snowbirds know precisely what we do in Charlevoix during the winter.

Letters to the editor

Are we next?

Editor:

Hearne, Texas — the town that Wal-Mart killed twice — got their Wal-Mart supercenter about 10 years ago. In five years, Wal-Mart drove most of the local merchants out of business, by sucking the town dry and then when there were not enough people left in town, Wal-Mart left too.

Floyd Hafley, former city manager in Hearne, said, "Then, after 10 years, the Wal-Mart closed and the building still stands vacant as well as most of the downtown businesses. They hurt us coming and going."

Sound familiar? Sound scary? It's been repeated in town after town after town. But Wal-Mart can be stopped in many communities like ours. It's not a done deal! The future of our community is in the hands of five Charlevoix Township planning commissioners: Nancy Rajewski, Dave Christiansen, John Haggard, John Dixon and Stan Martin. Please call or write them and ask them to say "no" to Wal-Mart in Charlevoix.

We all live in Charlevoix because we like the small-town atmosphere. Let's keep it that way!

Thank you

Editor:

The staff and students of Charlevoix Middle School would like to express appreciation to the Boss family for their generosity in opening up the facilities and outfitting our students free of charge at Mt. McSauba last week.

Each class in turn was treated to a special winter experience in celebration of the completion of their MEAP testing. Many students were able to ski, snow-blade or snowboard for the first time. Others simply enjoyed these activities along with sledding and snacking in the lodge.

Everyone, including the teachers, had a wonderful day!

Thank you to those who were on hand to help students get fitted for equipment, as well as for the general hospitality and supervision that was provided during our stay. We are fortunate to have such a great winter recreation facility for our community.

It is also heartening for us to know that the community recognizes and supports the academic efforts of our students and staff.

Watch bus lights

Editor:

To the Driver of the Black Pickup Truck:

On Friday, Jan. 30, our two sons were getting off the bus at the entry to Phelps Valley subdivision on Marion Center Road. You were driving northbound, talking on your cell phone (according to the bus driver).

Maybe you were distracted by your conversation. Maybe you were eager to get that snowmobile out of the back and go riding. Maybe you were just driving too fast. No matter what the reason, you didn't stop for the 17 flashing lights on our sons' school bus.

Thank God that Bill, driver of bus 11, has the "thumbs-up" system to signal to the kids if it's safe to cross. Thank God that our kids paid attention to Bill and didn't dart across anyway. Because, driver, sometimes kids are excited to just get home and don't pay attention to safety. Sometimes they don't look out for irresponsible drivers.

Driver of the black pickup truck, you could have killed our only two children that day. Today, instead of writing this letter to you, we would be burying them. You would have been dealing with a personal tragedy that day, but we would have been making phone calls to Sault Ste. Marie and Florida telling grandparents that their grandsons were dead.

You see driver, there are reasons for those lights. Bus drivers take that job and make a promise. That promise is that they will get our kids to and from school safely. But once the children step off that bus, they have to trust that ALL drivers will stop for the flashing lights and that the children won't impulsively run across the street.

I hope the driver of that black pick-up reads this. I hope that he will stop the next time he sees those 17 flashing lights. And thank you Bill, for saving our children's lives.

Tom and Dawn Hovie

Follow ordinances

Editor:

I have been following the articles regarding the recent happenings in Norwood Township.

From what has been written in the paper it sounds like Mark and Marilyn Maynard have been trying to get the officials in Norwood Township to enforce the zoning ordinance.

It appears that the Maynard's have spent considerable time and invested a great deal of money to force the Township officials to do their job.

The Zoning Board of Appeals has found in the Maynards favor twice over the course of seven months.

Now we have the Township Supervisor Wayne Boss personally attacking the Maynards in print. He is saying that the Maynards are making zoning enforcement "so difficult."

The reality of the situation is: that the Maynards wish to have their property rights protected as provided by the township zoning ordinance.

I do not feel that demanding the protections guaranteed by law is being "so difficult." It is my suggestion that if the township officials were doing their jobs this would not even be an issue.

Wayne Boss is an elected township official and has a responsibility to be objective and fair to all of the citizens of the township. It would appear that he has chosen sides and is not afraid to slam the Maynards in the newspaper.

Wayne Boss is using his official position to assert his personal feelings in a public forum. I feel that this conduct is totally inappropriate for an elected official.

If the township ends up in court it will not be because of the May-

Library can bring books to you

Edith LaClair said she couldn't wait for Monday morning last week when she talked about her enthusiasm for the new outreach program at the Charlevoix Public Library.

Recently LaClair had surgery and found that her recovery required a wheelchair and far less convenience than she was used to. An avid reader, her trips to the library had been curtailed, and she was thrilled to read one Sunday in the St. Mary's church bulletin that she could have books delivered to her door.

"I thought, this is wonderful! Why didn't somebody do this a long time ago?" she said.

After calling the library, she was soon visited by a cheerful volunteer with a huge bag of books. LaClair chose seven or eight volumes while explaining her love of mysteries, histories and biographies and has been reading non-stop ever since.

Meanwhile her recovery is progressing nicely and LaClair is now using a walker with ease and hopes to be out and about in the spring. She encourages anyone who has difficulty getting to the library to do what she did, call 547-2651.

Parents with new babies or young children are also welcome to use this service. A volunteer will arrange to bring books or video materials to your home and return every couple of weeks to pick them up and leave a new supply.

This is sponsored by the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library, with volunteers Sharon Knutson and Mary Snider.

Pageants to be at Charlevoix High School

Applications are now being accepted for the 2004 Miss Northwest Michigan USA/Miss Northwest Michigan Teen USA pageant to be April 16 and 17 at the Charlevoix High School auditorium.

The event is an unofficial preliminary to the prestigious Miss Michigan USA/Miss Michigan Teen USA event whose winners go on to the nationally televised Miss USA/Miss USA Teen and then on to Miss Universe.

The pageant is open to young women from the Northwest Lower Peninsula who are between the ages of 14-26, never married, a United States citizen and reside or attend school in Emmet, Charlevoix, Leelanau, Antrim, Benzie, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Manistee, Wexford, Missaukee, Mason Lake or Osceola County.

The teen delegates must be at least 15 and under 19 as of Sept. 1, 2005 while "miss" delegates must be at least 18 and under 27 as of Feb. 1, 2005. The top three in each division will receive automatic berths into the Miss Michigan USA/Miss Michigan Teen USA pageant which will take place next fall in Port Huron.

In addition to the crown and title of Miss Northwest Michigan USA and Miss Northwest Michigan Teen USA, the winners will receive a prize package that includes full fees paid for the state event, gift certificates for clothing and other valuable prizes.

The first and second runners-up in each division will receive a place in the state event with a portion of their fees paid and other prizes. The contestants are judged in three equal categories consisting of personal interview, swimsuit and evening wear. Performing a talent is not a requirement.

For more information and to receive an application form, call the Miss Northwest USA offices at (906) 228-5499. Or visit the web site at www.michiganusapageants.com.

Up North Big Band to perform Sunday at Four

The first "Sundays at Four" program will be the Up North Big Band, featuring pianist Elizabeth Humphrey and vocalist JoAnne Beemon.

The show will take place at 4 p.m., Feb. 15 at the Charlevoix First Congregational Church located at 101 State Street.

The Up North Big Band is made up of musicians from varied professions who dedicate themselves to the preservation of live big band music, rehearse weekly under the leadership of musical director Karl Gilewicz.

This group of 18 musicians perform around the state in such venues as the Charlevoix Venetian Festival, Blissfest and most recently at the National Cherry Festival's first annual "Battle of the Big Bands."

This year, Humphrey will lead and accompany the audience in singing some of the "golden oldies" including "My Funny Valentine," and some others that most of us warble just in the shower.

There is no charge but donations are gratefully accepted. A reception follows the program.

For more information call (231) 536-7018.

Rod and Gun Club to have pancake breakfast

Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club will have a Valentine Day pancake breakfast from 8 to 11 a.m., on Saturday, Feb. 14, at the club house, two miles north of the bridge on US-31.

This All You Can Eat breakfast features pancakes, eggs, sausage, bacon, sausage gravy with home made biscuits, coffee and juice for $5 per person.

Obituaries

Orville Kenneth Kanipe: May 19, 1923 - Feb. 2, 2004

Orville Kenneth Kanipe, 80, of Southgate died Feb. 2 at Henry Ford Hospital in Wyandotte.

Orville was born May 19, 1923 in Boyne City to Austin Kanipe and Dolly Erickson.

He was married to Norma Herbert on Feb. 7, 1959 in Grand Rapids. He was a master welder and later worked maintenance for General Motors Fisher Body, retiring July 1, 1979.

He was in the U.S. Army during World War II from June 3, 1943 to March 13, 1946 earning an American Theater Ribbon, a EAME Theater Ribbon with two Bronze Stars, a Good Conduct Medal, a Purple Heart and Victory Medal World War II.

He was a lifetime member of the American Disabled Veterans and the Gibraltar American Legion.

He was preceded in death by his parents and three brothers Austin, Conrad and Erving and two sisters, Marcella and Florence.

He is survived by his wife Norma Kanipe of Southgate; his son, Kenneth (Marlene) Kanipe of Massillon, Ohio; three daughters, Victoria (Duane) Farnum of Rockwood, Lorinda (Theodore) Beneteau of Southgate and Robin (James) Harris of Charlevoix; a sister, Virginia Magana of South Carolina; seven grandchildren; and one great grandchild.

A funeral service took place Feb. 4 at Arthur Bobcean Funeral Home, Inc. in Flat Rock. The pastor Rick Jewett of the Light-House Ministry in Lincoln Park officiated. Cremation followed the service.

George Edward Sneathen: Died Feb. 9, 2004

George Edward Sneathen, 89, formerly of Charlevoix, passed away Feb. 9, 2004.

He was born and raised in Charlevoix. He graduated from Central Michigan University, and went to work for the Pure Oil Company later transferred to Dawes, W.V.

He retired from Capitol City Supply Company in Charleston, W.V. where he was a resident for many years. He served in the United States Air Force during World War II. He was stationed in England where he met his wife, Mary Blaker, who preceded him in death in 1991.

He is survived by two daughters, Elizabeth Sneathen, of Morgantown, and Ann Moncer, of Huntington, W.V. One son Timothy Sneathen, of Washington, D.C.; two brothers and sisters-in-law, Lee and Helen Sneathen, and Frank and Katherine Sneathen both of Charlevoix; two sisters, Evelyn Bare of Petoskey, and Marjorie Bare, or Royal Oak; and one grandson, Christopher Moncer.

Funeral Service and burial was in Charleston, W.V.

Barlow-Bonsall Funeral Home handled the arrangements.

Mariners moving to Depot

By JULIE WITTHOEFT

File photo

These sailors are part of the annual 4-H Youth Sailing School that takes place on Lake Charlevoix in both Boyne City and Charlevoix. The Mariners program was recently permitted to use a new location at Depot Beach.

Charlevoix's youngest up and coming sailors will relocate this summer, just a few feet away from their traditional home at Depot Beach.

The Lake Charlevoix Mariners is part of the 4-H Youth Sailing School stationed on Lake Charlevoix with hubs in both Charlevoix and Boyne City.

The Charlevoix program has operated since 1986 on the north end of the Chicago Club property adjoining Depot Beach. But with both the sailing program and the club expanding, the space they have traditionally operated out of will soon be unavailable.

Tom Barnes, a board member and treasurer for the Mariner group, attended the Charlevoix City Council meeting Jan. 2 hoping the city would accommodate the program's need for a new home.

He requested that city council allow the Mariners to return to their roots. The youth sailing program started in the 1970s and was operated in conjunction with the Charlevoix Yacht Club. At that time the operation was based at the north end of Depot Beach.

This is where Barnes asked for permission to host this summer's sailing school.

The move will include relocating a dock and two 8-foot-by-8-foot storage buildings and clearing some brush to make space for land side learning.

This request was unanimously granted by council for one year. The limited approval was given after first ward councilman Bill Haggard said he wants to make sure the operation doesn't interfere with beach activities.

If the new location works for the city and the sailors, the group will have to come back to council next year and make its request again.

Permission to use the property was given under the condition that the plan doesn't violate a grant agreement the city made with the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) when it was given a Trust Fund grant to do beach area improvements.

City manager Mike Wiesner plans to send a sketch of the plans along to the DNR.

"I don't see a problem, but I would rather ask and be OK," he said.

In 2003, the sailing program employed three student instructors and offered 430 students one week of instruction. The program focuses on both boater's safety and boat handling. They learn using 15 feet long, JY-15 sailboats.

Week-long sessions run from early June through August. For more information about the sailing program contact the Michigan State University Extension at 582-6232.

Chamber to bring ski tour to Charlevoix

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Women from all over will flock to Charlevoix this month to cross country ski and snowshoe as part of the nationally known Women's Ski Tour.

Amy Lalewicz

Amy Lalewicz, Charlevoix's downtown coordinator who is organizing the event, said it will be a lighthearted afternoon in the snow highlighted by delectable indulgences tucked into different turns in the trail.

"It's all about women and chocolate and fun," she said.

The day will start at 8:45 a.m., Feb. 29 with registration at the Charlevoix Country Club. Skiers and snowshoers can shove off any time between 9 a.m. and noon as long as you finish by 2:30 p.m.

The path will be five miles of groomed trails winding through breathtaking wooded and open natural areas at the country club. Lalewicz stressed it is not a competitive ski event, women can ski the whole loop as many times as they like or go three steps and head to the clubhouse for coffee.

She smiled as she described the three support stations along the way where ladies can sip water to quench their thirst and laughed as she said the recharge will also include Kilwin's fudge and bite size scones.

The sweet samplings along the way are a build-up to the afternoon treats skiers will warm up with when they finish the course and head into Mahogany's dining room at the club.

Inside, a soup lunch complemented by bread and veggie, fruit and cheese trays as well as bite size carrot cake, toffee and other chocolate delights will be offered. To wash down the flavors a Charlevoix Ladies Tour signature coffee roasted by Charlevoix's own Denise White or signature wine, will be served.

The idea to bring the tour to town was sparked in September as Lalewicz, who works with the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, set out to generate off-season business in town.

After meeting with hotel owners, ideas of a winter festival were bounced around, but Lalewicz said those are going on all around Charlevoix and we need something unique.

She went on-line and came across Kaye Krapohl, of Traverse City, who founded the Women's Ski Tour.

This year the event has been a big hit as far away as Colorado and at closer locations like Marquette where 400 women participated and in Traverse City where 1,200 skied.

While the event will likely bring many new faces to town, the focus of the tour is not only to drum up business for area retailers and restaurants. Proceeds from the event will support BASES, the local teen center.

BASES provides a drug-free environment for young people and substance abuse prevention, education and early intervention services.

Opportunities to support BASES will include the sale of coffee, wine, event T-shirts and posters, silent auction items and on-site massage.

Lalewicz expects a good turnout this year and an even better turnout in years to come. She thinks Charlevoix will become an established premier Women's Ski Tour destination and the event will be stretched to a full weekend of activities.

To sign up or to learn more about the event visit www.womensskitour.com or visit the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce located off Bridge Street in downtown Charlevoix. Call Lalewicz with questions at the chamber at 547-2101.

The Charlevoix Snow Times, a publication with information about the event is being printed. Inside participants will find discounts for participating businesses in town.

Those who would like to volunteer to help or are willing to donate bread, a cheese or vegetable tray can also call Lalewicz at the chamber.

Help the schools

Editor:

My name is Nichole Zawisza and I am the Home and School Chairperson (PTO President) at St. Mary's School.

I am writing because there is a great lack of knowledge in Charlevoix when it comes to small things our community could be doing to lessen some of the financial burden that our school faces on a regular basis and the one our public schools now face.

Box Tops for Education is a wonderful program. For every box top that is turned in our schools receive 10 cents. They are on more than 50 products and most people who do not have children in school do not know what they are. All they have to do is cut the box top off and give it to one of our local children. Ten cents adds up very quickly and it is one of the more lucrative programs out there for schools if people know about it.

I spend a great deal of time ripping them off at the recycle bin with my children. On any given day we have taken home as many as $2 worth. It may not seem like much, but it adds up. Here is a web site you can check my information by, www.boxtops4education.com/how/brands.asp.

There have also been occasions when the cashier at Glen's has asked the person in front of me what school they would like their accumulated money to go to. These people choose not to participate because they believe it will cost them extra. This is not the case. There is no extra amount added to a person's bill for this program. All you have to do is spend $25 or more and Glen's donates money to our schools.

Spartan labels offer 2 cents for every item turned in. On these you need to remove the computer scanning code and turn them in. Oleson's also offers cash for a percentage of sales receipts that are turned in.

There are others like Campbell Soup labels that most people are aware of. It does take a little time, but not much. If everyone in our community would just find a few of these a week the education of our children would be the very best it can be.

Charlevoix Public School estimates that it will cost over $6,000 per student to provide Charlevoix's children with a good education during this school year. With the cuts from our state government it will be hard on our schools. If we could all pitch in any of the ways I have suggested above we will be able to continue providing our kids with a great start to their future. What kind of education do you want our future leaders to have? Help support our local schools.

Firefighters to have annual ball

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The Fifth Annual Firefighter's Ball is this weekend at the Charlevoix Country Club.

The ball is scheduled to take place at 8 p.m. on Valentine's Day, Feb. 14, in the club's Mahogany's dining room.

According to Shari Kline, treasurer for the Charlevoix Volunteer Firefighters Association and co-chair of the firefighter's ball committee, this event is the association's major fund-raiser for the year.

Proceeds will benefit the city of Charlevoix Fire Department, and the city's emergency medical technicians and dive team.

Last year, 200 people attended and the association raised $3,600 for the department. The money was used to buy a utility trailer for the city dive team and paid for training for emergency medical technicians.

In past years, the money raised at the ball has paid for an automatic external defibrillator, radios for firefighters and a new snowmobile. All of this equipment is not in the city's budget and wouldn't be possible without the financial boost from the ball.

"The equipment we have been able to purchase over the past four years has really helped better equip and educate the people at the fire department which helps the community as a whole," Kline said.

The much anticipated event is a formal evening celebration that will also include a silent auction and door prizes. Those who attend will indulge in heavy hors d'oeuvres and will be entertained by DJ the DJ, Dr. Dennis Joy.

Tickets are $25 each and can be bought by calling Kline at 547-8495 or by calling the station at 547-3279.

Equalization Ratios, as shown, are the percentages of assessed valuations to true cash value as determined by a survey of individual assessments. The Multipliers are those necessary to bring the Ratios to the required 50% of estimated true cash value.

The Multipliers, as shown are tentative and subject to change as the result of possible adjustments by individual assessing officers. Assuming that no adjustments are made, the Multiplier may be applied to each individual valuation.

Note: THESE MULTIPLIERS REPLACE THOSE OF 2003 AND ARE NOT AN ADDITION TO OR SUBTRACTION FROM THEM.

An end to the spring musical?

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Since the 1970s the Charlevoix Elementary School Musical has been a spring rite of passage, but a recent decison by the school board could close the curtains on the show.

The Charlevoix Public School Board voted Monday night, Feb. 9, to remove the rolling bleachers in the middle school gym. These bleachers provide seating for many of the 1,000 people who attend the annual musical at that school.

The school district is currently in the bid process to replace the school's gym floor this summer. The floor is so hard it has been argued that prolonged use could do physical harm to students.

The project will cost the sinking fund about $100,000.

When the middle school staff caught wind that the floor was going to be redone, they started thinking of other needs in that gymnasium space.

Middle school principal Keith Haske sent a memo to the board's building and grounds committee recommending that the rolling bleachers be removed to make way for enhancements to the school's physical education program.

"There would be a variety of uses for the wall, which we can't use at this time because of the bleachers," he wrote.

These uses include paddle ball, a climbing wall and batting cages. He said the additional space would also be used for soccer and hockey.

"This will open up opportunities for our kids on a daily basis," Haske said.

Last year, the bleachers were used once and that was for the spring musical.

School board trustee Bill Trubilowicz, who is a member of the board's building and grounds committee, met with elementary school music teacher Marina LaBlance, who has directed the musical since its inception, and Mary Beth McGraw, the elementary art teacher who deals with set design for the show, to discuss the issue.

He said from those discussions he found LaBlance and McGraw aren't interested in moving the musical because it took years to work out the quirks at the middle school.

While those teachers aren't willing to make a move, Trubilowicz feels there are alternatives. He suggested the musical make its new home the high school off Marion Center Road.

"They don't want to compromise the program (by moving) but in the end they couldn't convince me that they would compromise the program. That (ending the program) would be a tragedy for all the kids," Trubilowicz said.

School board president Dennis Halverson who is also a member of the building and grounds committee, agreed that the tradition could continue at a new location and the challenges of making that change did not outweigh the likely benefits to students when those bleachers are removed.

Halverson said while the current location at the middle school has advantages for the program, so does the high school. He said the bathroom situation is better as is parking.

Elementary school principal Dick Swenor said LaBlance went to the high school to see if it would work and found the short side of the bleachers, where visiting fans sit, did not provide adequate seating for the students performing.

This year the elementary school has 443 students. High school principal Gary Grundman said that short side seats 330 people. If you sat two students in an aisle you could fit 370. With three to an aisle, you could seat 390.

However, students need those aisles to come down and perform. Plus, teachers also have to sit among the students.

Trubilowicz said, "It didn't seem to me it (the seating issue) was insurmountable. There are ways to overcome it."

And Swenor is hopeful.

"Marina is a child-centered teacher — I believe she will make something happen," Swenor said.

LaBlance could not be reached for comment by press time.

LaBlance is planning for this to be the final year of the program and in recognition of its 32 year history she is going to go back to the first theme, "Sing A Song." The show will kick off at 7 p.m., March 24 in the middle school gym.

Visitors, residents to get a 'Taste of Charlevoix'

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Who: Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce
What it is: A chance to taste some of the fine food and drink sold by area merchants.
When: June 26
Where: Charlevoix's East Park

The many flavors of Charlevoix will be showcased in East Park this spring at the inaugural event "A Taste of Charlevoix" sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce.

Jacqueline Merta, president of the chamber, attended the Jan. 2 city council meeting to set in motion official planning for the June 26 event.

She asked council for use of East Park as the taste event venue and also to allow people there to drink and buy wine and beer from local vendors like Scovies and Esperance.

In the alcohol request written by chamber of commerce board of directors President Maura Snabes, she stated that the vendors would sell the alcohol from a tent and that the chamber would get a one-day liquor license from the MLCC.

In a memo to council, city manager Mike Wiesner wrote that in the past, events have taken place there when alcohol was allowed for small, non-public groups, but alcohol was not sold or consumed by the public.

But council didn't have many questions.

All of the five members that were present gave their approval to the chamber for use of the park and also passed the alcohol request.

City police chief Dennis Halverson said he will take a look at how to handle law enforcement that day. Issues he plans to look into include the city's insurance, the capacity or size of the event and security.

Vienna Choir Boys to perform at arts center

The Crooked Tree Arts Center's Virginia McCune Performing Arts Series continues with a concert by the Vienna Choir Boys on Saturday, March 6.

The concert will be held at St. Francis Xavier Church in downtown Petoskey and is a collaboration between Crooked Tree Arts Center and St. Francis Xavier Parish. Tickets are $20 adults and $8 students for Crooked Tree Arts Center members; $25/$10 for nonmembers. Reserve seating is available for $50 Patron and $100 Sponsor.

Call the Crooked Tree Arts Center at 347-4337 or purchase online at www.crookedtree.org.

In 1498, half a millennium ago, Emperor Maximilian I of Austria moved his court and his court musicians from Innsbruck to Vienna. He gave specific instructions that there were to be six boys among his musicians.

For want of a foundation charter, historians have settled on 1498 as the official foundation date of the Vienna Hofmusikkapelle and — in consequence — the Vienna Choir Boys. Until 1918, the choir sang exclusively for the court, at mass, at private concerts and functions and on state occasions.

Musicians like Heinrich Isaac, Paul Hofhaimer, Heinrich Ignaz Franz Biber, Johann Joseph Fux, Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, Antonio Caldara, Antonio Salieri and Anton Bruckner worked with the choir. Some were choristers themselves, such as composers Jacobus Gallus, Franz Schubert and later the conductors Hans Richter, Felix Mottl and Clemens Krauss.

Today there are about 100 choristers between the ages of 10 and 14, divided into four touring choirs. The four choirs give about 300 concerts and performances each year in front of almost half a million people. Each group spends nine to 11 weeks of the school year on tour. They visit virtually all European countries, and they are frequent guests in Asia, Australia and the Americas.

Together with members of the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra and the Vienna State Opera Chorus, the Wiener Sängerknaben maintain the tradition of the imperial musicians: as Hofmusikkapelle they provide the music for the Sunday Mass in Vienna's Imperial Chapel, as they have done since 1498.

The choir's repertoire includes everything from Gregorian Chant to contemporary and experimental music. Motets and lieder for boys choir form the core of the touring repertoire, as do the choir's own arrangements of waltzes and polkas by Strauss.

A very important part of the repertoire are staged works. The Wiener Sängerknaben regularly produce their own children's operas; such as Benjamin Britten's "The Little Sweep," Engelbert Humperdinck's "Hänsel und Gretel," Joseph Rheinberger's "Das Zauberwort " and Gerald Wirth's "The Journey of the Little Prince" and "Die Schicksalstafel," based on the Babylonian myth of Anzu. Choirmaster Raoul Gehringer is currently writing a new opera based on Herman Melville's "Moby Dick."

Since the 1980s, the choir has sung a cappella arrangements of pop songs. In 2002, they recorded their first album of popular music; featuring songs by Madonna, Celine Dion and Robbie Willams among others, selected by the boys themselves. The best-selling CD created was nominated for the 2003 Amadeus, the Austrian music award.

Basketball team wins three straight last week

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The Charlevoix Rayders had a busy, but successful, week on the basketball court last week, winning all three games.

Charlevoix defeated Kalkaska, 73-55; beat Boyne City, 77-55; and topped Maple City Glen Lake, 91-75.

The victories put the Rayders record at 11-2 overall, 7-1 in the Lake Michigan Conference. Charlevoix is ranked no. 4 in Class C in this weeks Associated Press basketball poll.

"It was a good week for us," coach Keith Haske said. "I was really impressed with the Boyne City game. We played real well at their place and we've struggled there in the past."

Against Kalkaska, Jared Hunt led the way with 21 points, eight rebounds, six assists and six steals, playing what Haske termed a great game, probably his best all around this year.

Bryce Daly scored 15. Cody Crain dished out eight assists.

Scott Friske had 14 points, eight rebounds and four assists and reached a milestone by scoring his 1000th point as a Rayder.

The Rayders led 22-13 at the end of the first, 41-24 at the half and 53-38 after three quarters. Charlevoixs largest lead of the night was 26 midway through the fourth quarter.

Daly led the Rayders against Boyne City with 23 points and five assists. Kyle Kramer scored 13 points off the bench.

Friske had 11 points and 13 rebounds. John DiMartino provided a spark off the bench with nine points and four steals.

"We shot the ball real well," Haske said. "Bryce really played tremendous for us. He scored 11 in the first quarter mostly just taking the ball to the basket."

Charlevoix led 48-32 at the half.

The Rayders traveled to Glen Lake on Saturday after playing Boyne the night before and prevailed in a shootout.

"I thought we looked a little tired," Haske said. "We bad played the night before, but Glen Lakes game had been cancelled so they were a bit more rested maybe."

Daly again was high scorer witb 21 points. He also handed out five assists.

Friske scored 20 points and pulled down 10 rebounds. DiMartino had 12 points, four rebounds and four steals.

Hunt tallied 11 points while Crain chipped in with nine.

Charlevoix led 27-20 after the first quarter and 52-40 at the half.

The Rayders played at Elk Rapids on Tuesday, Feb. 10, but results were unavailable at press time. Charlevoix returns home this Friday, Feb. 13 for a contest against East Jordan.

Wrestling team does well at J.V. tournament Saturday

The Charlevoix Rayder wrestling team went to the Houghton Lake tournament Saturday, Feb. 7.

"We had a great day at this J.V. tournament," Coach Craig Golovich said. "Our guys were wrestling in their own caliber and most of them came out on top."

First place went to Matt Novotny, Shannon Gillespie, Chris Aepelbacher, Nathaniel Sotuyo, Zach Scharenbrach, Scott Sladek and Jed Daman.

Second place to Jacob Wimmer and Tony Kiernan.

Third place to Nick Gotshall, Brandon Johnstone, and Jamen Waha.

Fourth place to Patrick Russell.

Charlevoix traveled to Benzie Central on Monday and St. Ignace on Thursday, Feb 12.

Stingrays swim team competes at Pacer

On Saturday, Jan. 31, Kristen and Alex Gooch represented the Charlevoix Stingrays Swim Team at the Pacer Invitational held at Alma College.

The Charlevoix Stingrays Swim Team was one of 13 teams that competed. Kristen Gooch, 10, placed thirteenth in the 100 I.M., fifteenth in the 100 Freestyle, sixth in the 50 Butterfly and twelfth in the 50 Backstroke.

Alex Gooch, 9, placed eighth in the 100 I.M., third in the 50 Fly, fifteenth in the 50 Freestyle and second in the 50 Breaststroke.

The Charlevoix Stingrays Swim Team invites any swimmer that can swim the length of the pool to come try the team out. If you have any questions about the swim team, please contact the Charlevoix Area Community Pool at 547-0982.

Township shooting for April 21 meeting

WAL-MART

March.

As for the preliminary site plan given to township and city officials, Wal-Mart official Chris Danos said it is the plan that his company will be pursuing.

The plan shows little change from previous ones submitted by Wal-Mart for a supercenter located on US-31, near Marion Center and Stover roads. Two noticeable changes are the addition of two detention ponds near Marion Center Road and the addition of five parking spaces, bringing the total parking up to 779 spaces from 774.

The plan still shows 40,000 square feet of grocery space and over 100,000 square feet of retail space, for a total of 157,400 square feet.

There is also room for seasonal sales, such as Christmas trees and garden supplies, as well as an automotive department for tire, oil and lube changing.

The supercenter will have two main entrances, not including a truck entrance on US-31. One entrance will be on US-31 and the other will be on Marion Center Road. Plans also show the addition of a lighted signal at the US-31 entrance and the addition of deceleration and acceleration lanes and turn lanes on US-31.

In previous interviews, Wal-Mart officials said they would like to have the store open in 2005.

Sunnybank claims zoning should allow for it and R-2 single family residential districts.

This meant Sunnybank's plan to locate to a 2-acre parcel located in the R-2 district off Petoskey Avenue on Charlevoix's north side was foiled.

But Engstrom refused to give up and in December approached the planning commission with a new idea. He claimed that professional offices are allowed in the R-2. Because professional office is not defined in the ordinance, what is allowed in the professional office district, including nursing homes, are allowed in the R-2.

Central to this argument was his claim that nursing homes are akin to assisted living facilities.

The planning commission made the controversial majority vote to set a public hearing to listen to the special use permit request based on this rationale.

City manager Mike Wiesner appealed that decision and in late January the zoning board of appeals (ZBA) ruled that Engstrom's line of thinking did not follow the intent of the zoning ordinance.

This means the city council and the ZBA have said assisted living does not fit into the single family residential district.

Engstrom's lawsuit argues it's not just that the facility isn't accommodated in the single family residential district, the city has excluded this type of facility across the board.

He said his exclusionary zoning case is strong because according to state statute a municipality can't exclude a use when it is proven to be needed.

"And no one has argued it (assisted living) isn't needed here," Engstrom said.

Engstrom is anticipating the city arguing that assisted living facilities are allowed in the professional office district.

In a recent interview, city planner Gerry Harsh said assisted living facilities are not the same as nursing homes, which are permitted in the professional office district. He said he equates assisted living more with congregate living facilities that offer small apartments and common living areas.

But according to the definition in the zoning ordinance, Harsch said it could be argued that they are in the same realm as nursing homes and are thus allowed in the C-1 commercial district and the professional office district.

Harsch plans to review the nursing home definition and make a recommendation that the planning commission work on clarifying the wording.

He also said assisted living could conceivably be allowed in the R-4, multiple dwelling residential district, but not practically.

He said the unit size required in the R-4 is twice the size of units that would be put into an assisted living facility.

Harsch further explained that the R-4 requires 15 percent ground coverage. With the 49 unit, single level Sunnybank proposal, this would require a six acre lot. To fit Sunnybank on a two acre lot, like the one they are looking at on the north side, while meeting the R-4 ground coverage requirement, the building would have to be three stories high.

However, multiple stories are not desirable for a facility like this because of the nature of its residents, the elderly, who are often wheelchair bound and can't easily travel to different levels.

Aside from the fact that multiple levels are a challenge to residents, Harsch said a developer looking for a vacant 2-acre parcel in the R-4 district in the city isn't going to have any luck — it doesn't exist.

He said this Sunnybank development would not be possible unless an existing development in the R-4 is torn down.

"For all practical purposes, there is no district within our zoning ordinance which is available to accommodate this project," Harsch said.

Engstrom said this available land issue is his second strength in the lawsuit against the city. He said even if the city argues it does allow for assisted living in the ordinance, there isn't any land large enough for it.

"I don't think they'll be able to show they've allowed for it in that (professional office) district or anywhere else," he said.

The lawsuit may not have to go through a heated trial, Engstrom said he is willing to negotiate and hopes to reach a resolution. But any resolution he will agree to will have to allow the facility to be built on that R-2 lot on the north side.

"If not, I guess the judge will have to decide," he said.

If it comes down to the judge's decision, he is hoping Pajtas will rule in Sunnybank's favor, allowing construction at that site.

CHARLEVOIX BRIEFS

Area events

Trophy display

Charlevoix High School is in the process of finishing their new trophy display cases in the commons area outside the gymnasium. The trophy area is near completion, and now the school is asking for community assistance to complete the next phase.

A Hall of Fame for All-state athletes is being constructed along the North/South hallway, opposite the gymnasium. All athletes, who achieved all-state status in their sports at CHS, are asked to send a 2-inch-by-3-inch senior picture along with the year(s) All-state status was accomplished, the sport(s) and a correct spelling of their name. Additionally, if an athlete was a state champion, please send a 5-inch-by-7-inch picture. Only one picture is needed even if All-state status was achieved in more than one sport. Please include a contact person and phone number if there is a question about the information sent.

Library events

The Charlevoix Public Library story hour is 10:30 to 11:15 a.m., Thursdays and 12:30 to 1:15 p.m. on Saturdays. Children from the ages of 2 to 7 are invited.

The theme schedule is as follows:

- Feb. 12 and 14 — Kids choice!
- Feb. 26 and 28 — Oops! It was an accident! Come laugh and enjoy stories about mistakes that have been made!
- March 4 and 6 — Happy one-hundredth birthday Dr. Seuss!

Lapsit, for children ages 0-3 takes place on Thursday from 10:05 to 10:20 a.m. Lapsit is full of songs, stories and finger plays.

Story hour and Lapsit will coincide with the school schedule. If school is canceled due to weather, story hours will also be canceled.

The Charlevoix Public Library is located at 109 Clinton Street. Their hours are 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Friday and 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., Saturday. Contact the library at 547-2651 or online at www.charlevoixlibrary.org.

SCRAPBOOK

Part two in writer's series of survival on Lake Michigan's ice

Marilyn Boss

'Days gone by'

When I look out at Lake Michigan these winter days, I am reminded of the true story of Clayton Brown, and how treacherous and dangerous the lake can be. We are so blessed to live here, and enjoy the benefits of the lake, but it takes a story like this to remind us that the lake is also something to be respected and wary of, when it is violent.

In my last article, the men were losing the battle with the wind. They spent a wild night, and when dawn came, they had drifted on the ice toward Good Hart, fifteen miles from the place they started from. They didn't know it then, but they were 12 miles from land. They couldn't make it to solid ice. All along the edge of the ice field, there was a belt of slush. The fog and snow covered the lake, and they couldn't tell where they were. They were hoping that perhaps they might be drifting toward Beaver Island.

Shortly after daylight, they heard airplanes overhead, and knew a search was underway, but also knew they wouldn't be seen, as they couldn't see the planes. Shortly after dawn, Clayton realized that the Coastguardsman, Cunningham, had lost consciousness. Clayton had given him his warm mittens earlier, but the cold was too much. He slapped him and shook him for half an hour, and then realized the man was dead.

Clayton's father-in-law sat hunched in the stern of the skiff, not speaking. Then he announced that he was going to get out of the boat and try to walk to shore. He wouldn't listen to Clayton, and climbed out. The slush had hardened enough to hold a man's weight, and Clayton followed behind him, heading into the storm. He felt that though their chances were slim, he couldn't let Beardsley go alone.

They had gone about 150 feet when Beardsley broke through the crust of slush and fell into the icy water up to his armpits. He struggled for a minute, but the shock of the cold water killed him. Clayton finally managed to pull him out of the water and onto the ice. He knew he couldn't drag him all the way back to the skiff, so he went back for the canvas windbreak, and wrapped Beardsley in it, and left him on the ice. Then, Clayton struggled back to the skiff, and waited his own fate.

Around noon, on Sunday, Clayton had been adrift for more than 24 hours. The wind began to drop and the water calmed some, but the temperature was falling. He took the seats out of the boat and broke them up with his ax, but everything was water-soaked and nothing would burn. He chopped up his frozen trout and found it tasted pretty good. He took his coat off, pulled his cap down, and buttoned the coat, with his arms inside. He took an old blanket he had brought for a wind breaker, and wrapped up in it. He had got his feet wet pulling Beardsley out of the water and he knew his feet were freezing. The skiff was frozen in the ice. He couldn't risk walking on the frozen slush, so he sat there with Cunningham's body by him. Just before sundown, the fog lifted and the sky cleared. He could see land for the first time, and saw the sun sink, figuring that would be the last sunset he would ever see. He thought the search had been called off, for there were no more planes. He later learned that a friend of his wouldn't give up. He was a hunting and fishing partner. He told the searchers that Brown would come ashore, even if it was in Wisconsin, and still be alive. Clayton slept most of the night, exhausted from the cold and the long ordeal. Before sleeping, he ate some more of the frozen trout and then lay in the boat with a dead man and the body of his father-in-law 50 yards away on the ice.

When he awoke on Monday morning, the sun was up, and the mainland shore was in sight, across the miles of new ice which had frozen again in the windless night. He stood up, but found he couldn't walk. His feet were without feeling and the ice buildup on his clothes was too thick to break off. He took his knife and hacked at the outer clothing, cutting it off bit by bit.

The job was very difficult, as three fingers on his right hand were frozen and useless. He knew the high bluffs he saw along the shore were somewhere by Good Hart or Cross Village. It looked like there were about 5 miles of ice to traverse to reach the shore. It was actually 12 miles. He decided live or die, his only chance was to try to make it to shore. He stepped out of the boat and the frozen slush was safe, so he started out and made it to the new ice. He ate a little more of the fish and felt he could make it to land by noon. He decided not to take anything with him, as he was so weak.

When he was about two miles from the boat, a lone plane went over, but didn't see him. The ice was very rough, and he fell many times, trying to lift his legs over the ridges. When he was thirsty, the ice in places was so thin that he could break a hole in it, and drink. He crawled across the worst places on his stomach. He came to open cracks that had to be jumped, and had a very difficult time of it, as his feet felt like two wooden stumps. The weather stayed cold and clear. He knew he had no choice but to keep going and he wasn't ready to die.

At that time, most of the Lake Michigan shore from Harbor Springs to Sturgeon Bay was uninhabited. He knew he would be in trouble if he walked ashore where he couldn't get help. The ground was covered in deep snow, and he wouldn't be able to walk through it. He saw the spire of the St. Ignatius Church, an Indian Mission at Middle Village, a mile or two south of Good Hart. The spire rose above the tree covered dunes. A few Indian families lived there and he knew he would have a chance. Some of the families got their drinking water from the lake and there was a path they had made to get to the water. He followed the path about 100 yards and it led him to the mission and the houses, hoping to find someone who would help him.

The rest of Clayton's ordeal will be in next month's story, telling the end to his long ordeal.

THERE ARE GOOD REASONS WHY
PUBLIC NOTICE
APPEARS IN YOUR NEWSPAPER.

Currently, and historically, it is the responsibility of state and local government to publish public and legal notices here in Michigan's newspapers. This paper you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. And its pages hold your right to know what the government is doing in your community. In fact, it's law.

In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. That is why you have, and read, your newspaper, where public notices are published with accountable circulation and presented to you on these pages in clear black and white.

High school performing arts going to state finals

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

A Rayder bus loaded with excited Charlevoix High School performing arts students crashed the Valentine's Day Winterfest Dance at Charlevoix Elementary School.

They entered with news that hasn't hit the high school since 1995 — they qualified for the state finals competition.

That day they had been in Bay City at John Glenn High School competing with six other schools in the region for a chance to be one of two to go on to the state competition.

The 35 student performers dazzled the judges with a 45 minute excerpt from their winter show, "The Sound of Music."

"Their hearts are just in the show. They love this show and it shows when they are on stage," director Beth Sherman, said.

The judges look at costuming, sets, acting, music, the flow of the show and the performers' ability to capture the audience.

As they traveled back to Charlevoix from the regional competition, Sherman got a call confirming that the Rayder group had met the judges' expectations and made the final cut.

Sherman announced the win and the kids erupted.

"Right now we are within the top 12 theater productions in the state," she said.

Sherman is the daughter of Connie Ford who is the director of the program at the high school. She took the reigns for the latest show while Ford addresses an illness in the family.

Campbell, Bennett off commission

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

City mayor Gabe Campbell decided to make some changes to the planning commission membership.

At Monday night's city council meeting, Feb. 16, he opted to appoint two new planning commissioners to replace Steve Bennett and John Campbell. Campbell and Bennett's term was up on the commission.

"That's politics. He gets to do what he would like to do," John Campbell said.

The mayor said his decision was not related to the dismissal procedures he is currently embroiled in aimed at ousting both Bennett and Campbell, along with Dennis Kusina, Francis "Brownie" Flanders and Richard Hodgson, from the commission.

Those planning commissioners voted to set a public hearing for a special use permit request made by Diane Gillette and Ruth Bellisimo, owners of Sunnybank Retirement Community.

Gillette and Bellisimo wanted the commission to approve the permit so they could build an assisted living facility on property located in the R-2 single family residential zoning district on Charlevoix's north side.

Their decision to hear that request came after city council voted against setting a hearing to discuss amending the zoning ordinance to allow this type of facility in that district.

The mayor said their action was a violation of the commission's bylaws and opened the city up for a lawsuit.

The zoning board of appeals has since ruled this type of fa-

Volunteers needed in Charlevoix Senior Center's Meals on Wheels program

The Charlevoix Senior Center is in need of volunteer delivery drivers for its Meals on Wheels program.

The center is looking for about four drivers to deliver meals to homebound Charlevoix residents on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays.

Volunteers are asked to be at the center at 10:45 a.m. Delivery takes about 30 minutes with anywhere from two to 10 stops along the route. Most meal recipients are in town.

Those who are interested in volunteering are asked to call Debbie at the senior center 547-5361.

Clarification

In a story on page 8 of last week's edition of the Courier on the Lake Charlevoix Mariner's, it should be noted that the program has always been at Depot Beach. It is moving to a new location at Depot Beach though.

Township trail delayed, settlement discussed

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Settlement talk in the lawsuit facing Eveline Township has delayed a possible trial.

A final pre-trial conference was set for Feb. 9 in the case lodged against the township by Dawson and his son Mark "Barney" Way.

But this was postponed until April 12 to allow further settlement talk between the two.

According to township attorney Kevin Elsenheimer, they are still exploring some kind of resolution short of litigation. He said any solution that the township will agree to has to make sense for the property or litigation is inevitable.

Stephen Winter, an attorney from Detroit representing the Ways, declined to comment on the settlement.

Township supervisor Dan Skreczkoski is hoping the two sides can find common ground.

"If we can stay out of court, I think that's advantageous. You lose total control once it goes to court," he said.

The Ways filed suit against the township in September of 2003 alleging the board acted on an exclusionary zoning ordinance when it denied their rezoning request.

In March of 2003, the board turned down the Way's request to have their property rezoned from agricultural to R-4, a residential zone that accommodates mobile homes.

The request applied to two pieces of property spanning over 150 acres, located adjacent to one another, with frontage on M-66 and Brock and Ferry roads.

The Ways claim that the development planned for the property would include about 200 manufactured homes and would provide needed affordable housing.

The township's master plan supports this and states that there exists, "a lack of low cost housing or rental homes and apartments in the township."

In spite of the apparent need, the board acted on recommendations made by the planning commissions for both Charlevoix County and Eveline Township that it deny the request.

The township planning commission came to a unanimous decision, saying the rezone could bring on higher density development than is supported by the master plan. If fully developed, the Way property in the R-4 district could accommodate a 1,200 unit manufactured home community.

The county planning commission also recommended against the rezone for that reason. The change would allow eight units per acre which is higher density than the 3-6 units per acre the master plan encourages in that area.

However, county planner Larry Sullivan issued a six page letter as to why he feels it would be appropriate to rezone 77 acres that make up the north half of the property, but not the 78 acre south half.

He believes the property on the north would better support a number of homes because of its close proximity to M-66 and that by developing the property there, the township would be limiting sprawl.

The township board's decision to deny the request for rezoning the whole piece spurred this lawsuit.

The Ways claim the decision the board made constitutes exclusionary zoning which violates the Township Rural Zoning Act, the Mobile Home Commission Act and their constitutional rights.

Their lawsuit states, "The township zoning ordinance excludes the development of manufactured home communities from the township and from the Way property. The township's denial of the Ways' application for rezoning excludes the development of manufactured home communities from the township and the property. The township's exclusionary zoning has caused the Ways to suffer loss and damage and incur irreparable injury."

The Ways are asking Charlevoix County 33rd Circuit Court Judge Richard Pajtas to decree the township's zoning ordinance invalid and illegal and to recognize the township's denial of the rezoning request as exclusionary and to issue a permanent injunction against the township, restraining it from interfering with their proposed use of the property as a manufactured home community.

In Elsenheimer's response to the Ways' claims he states, "The township denies these allegations as untrue."

Elsenheimer requests that Pajtas dismiss the Way complaint and award the township its costs and attorney fees.

Both sides have submitted exhibit and witness lists for trial. If the case is not settled before the final pre-trial/settlement conference on April 12, a trial date will be set at the conference.

Charlevoix high school hires new J.V. cheerleading coach

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Charlevoix's Kelly Jones was recently named the junior varsity cheerleading coach at Charlevoix High School.

Jones, 37, joins varsity coach Erin Beemis in an effort to bring the high school's cheerleading program to the next level.

"Erin and I are really excited to bring the cheerleading full swing," Jones said.

Jones, a mother of three, has a long history with cheerleading. She was an East Jordan cheerleader under the well-respected coach Phylis Olszewski. At that time she was named most valuable for three of four years cheering.

Kelly Jones

After high school she went on to teach with the United States Cheerleading Association for a summer. The group put on clinics for high schools squads across the Midwest.

She has since made her home in Charlevoix with her husband Bob Jones and children.

Her current team of four girls at Charlevoix High School cheer for the boys basketball team. In the fall a new group cheers for the football team.

Part of the program strengthening plan includes reviving the mascot which made its return at the Homecoming game Feb. 13 and strengthening tumbling skills through weekly gymnastics classes.

Chamber comes up with great idea

EDITORIAL

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce has come up with a cool way to bring people to Charlevoix during the slower winter months — a woman's ski tour.

The nationally famous Women's Ski Tour will be coming on Feb. 29 to the snowy grounds of the Charlevoix Country Club. The idea for this came from downtown coordinator Amy Lalewiez, who is also organizing the event, as a way to bring more business to town in the winter.

When Lalewiez started looking at ways to pump up business in the cold months, she said she wanted something unique to the area. In her search, she discovered the Women's Ski Tour, which is usually something that has been hosted by just Traverse City.

The event has been very popular with women, bringing participants from all over. At the recent Traverse City tour, 1,200 women took part.

However, now, Charlevoix is going to benefit from this event along with Traverse City. And not only will local businesses capitalize from the addition of new faces to the area, proceeds from the event will support BASES, the local teen center.

The event is non-competitive and open to both female skiers and those on snowshoes. It will be through 5 miles of groomed trails at the country club. Along the way, participants can enjoy sweet treats, tasty drinks and wonderful friendship. Afterwards, they will all gather at the country club for a soup lunch.

The chamber has come up with a great idea with this Women's Ski Tour. It utilizes the beauty that we already have, the accommodations we already have and possibly brings in more revenue for local businesses.

Let's hope this ski tour is as successful as Traverse City's this year and in the years to come. Hopefully, the chamber will use its talents to create more business building events like this in the future.

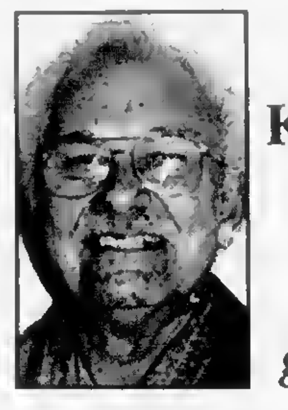
Our God is God of many religions



Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

I have had a religious revelation. It came from John Kearney by way of the New York Times.

Mr. Kearney is a graduate student in journalism at Columbia University who on Wednesday, Jan. 28, revealed a most widespread misunderstanding of fundamental concern. Some of our generals and many of our religious leaders seem to have concluded that the God of Islam is certainly not the God of Judaism and Christianity.

Mr. Kearney pointed out that Muslims pray to the God of Abraham and Isaac, as do Christians and Jews. People of any religious faith may misunderstand what God has had to say, but it was immensely comforting to me to be informed that Muslims, Christians and Jews worship, pray to and revere the same Old Testament God.

How is it that we can have come to the conclusion that THEIR God is not OUR God? According to Mr. Kearney, the problem is one of language and proper translation.

Allah, Jahweh, Jehovah, Allaha or any of several other names in various languages are merely different ways of spelling or presenting the name of God. The God for all three of these Middle-eastern based religious traditions is the same God.

The proper translation of a phrase we often read in our papers or hear on our other media is critical to worldwide understanding. When Christian Americans read that someone has spoken the phrase, "There is no God, but Allah," we are likely to feel an affront, as though OUR God has been ignored. The proper translation of, "There is no God, but Allah" is "There is no God, but God," which is the Muslim refutation of polytheism, not the claim of there being some other god.

As a person who values words and their clear understanding, this is a mighty important distinction. If we are in fact all praying to the SAME God, then he or she can hardly be on one side or the other in any kind of conflict.

From now on whenever some print or electronic medium says or writes Allah, just translate it for yourself. Where it says Allah, read or hear God. The world will be a better place for your efforts at proper translation.

If the clarification announced by Mr. Kearney could be made from every Christian pulpit in America over the next few weeks, we would be that much closer to world peace, and we could stand to be closer to world peace.

Are words important? People often die for want of clear understanding of simple words. We should at least clarify the question of whose God we are talking about.

Letter to the editor

Stop Wal-Mart

Editor:

Al Norman, the author of "Slam Dunking Wal-Mart" agreed to head up a 12 week campaign against building a Wal-Mart in his home town of Greenfield, Massachusetts, which they won. Six years later, he is still fighting for small town America and here are his reasons:

"Maybe it's because I'd rather support the Little Guy than the Big Guy.

Maybe it's because I like doing business with people I know.

Maybe it's because I think Americans deserve more than one store.

Maybe it's because I think communities should not all look the same.

Maybe it's because I don't think anyone deserves Wal-Mart as a night-light.

Maybe it's because Wal-Mart makes a union job look like heaven.

Maybe it's because I'm not ready to surrender my country to "Walmartians."

Maybe it's because I think land is a finite resource.

Maybe it's because I like buildings that have windows somewhere.

Maybe it's because I think Wal-Mart knows the price of everything and the value of nothing.

Maybe it's because my brother-in-law lost his job twice when Wal-Mart put smaller companies out of business.

Maybe it's because I like a fair fight."

Please tell the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission you don't want your community to look like every exit on every highway. They are Chairperson Nancy Rajewski, Dave Christiansen, Stan Martin, John Haggard and John Dixon. Please call or write them. Also, if you haven't already, please sign a petition.

Wal-Mart not a done deal

Editor:

Contrary to what many people believe, the opening of a Wal-Mart in Charlevoix is not a done deal. All we know for sure is that the property is zoned commercial and that Wal-Mart wants to build a 157,000 square foot store which will do several things.

It will dump many thousand gallons of untreated water into Stover Creek every time it rains, which could pollute the creek and threaten the Ferry Beach area where our children swim. It will create new low paying, part time, non-benefit jobs which will replace full time better paying jobs with benefits. It will change the small town character of Charlevoix and jeopardize the benefits of living in a small town environment. It will mean that local businesses will not have the funds available to support local school activities and charities to the extent they have in the past.

In exchange for what? Possible lower prices on groceries? A recent study in Petoskey shows that the difference between Wal-Mart, Glens and Oleson's was only a couple of dollars a week and that was before using double coupons which Wal-Mart does not accept. And this is before the competition goes out of business like Carter's. Higher demands on our local law enforcement and other agencies due to shop-lifting, lockout of autos and road maintenance from additional travel.

Think about the summer backups which now can extend to M-66 from the Bridge. Think about Marion Center Road and the High School. Think about turning south onto US-31 from Marion Center Road. Think about all the other negatives of having a Wal-Mart in Charlevoix when we have one available in Petoskey.

Think about your community and what you want it to be. This is our town and we have the right to determine what the future holds for it. Let the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission know that you are against the proposed Wal-Mart in Charlevoix.

There are the means to stop it, but we need to act now. Support the efforts of This Is Our Town, Inc.

A few years ago, my wife and I were shopping for a vacuum cleaner. We looked at an upright Hoover in the Cadillac Wal-Mart. The associates knowledge of vacuums was limited to knowing what aisle they were in. Then we went to a local appliance store, Pell's.

They had the same vacuum, so I thought. The owners son actually had product knowledge. Other than looks there were not alike at all. The Hoover at Pell's had a 30 percent longer cord, nearly twice the motor size, a light, a cushioned handle, all the attachments and an extra package of bags and who knows how many other internal differences. Yes, it was a little more money. In addition to the accessory differences, my bet is it will last many years longer.

My dad has always had the following saying on his office wall: "There has never been anything made that someone cannot make a little poorer and sell a little cheaper. The sweetness of low price never equals the bitterness of low quality."

Please help stop Wal-Mart in Charlevoix and prevent the devastating change in the prettiest little town in Northern Michigan.

Injustice in Norwood

Editor:

What's ahead for Norwood Township?

There has been an injustice and insult made against the citizens of Norwood Township by statements made by the supervisor, Wayne Boss.

At the January township board, while justifying his decision for nominating his relatives for positions on the planning commission and the Zoning Board of Appeals, he stated, "...the individuals who came out, came out because someone requested that they come out. Now, does that constitute all of a sudden a real concern for what is going on in the township?" Perhaps Mr. Boss doesn't give credit to the township residents that perhaps because of the clandestine actions or not announcing the intention not to reappoint current participants and to nominating his own choices that they, the residents, have a valid interest in the future of the township.

By virtue of statements like this, he also discourages others who may have been considering to volunteer to participate in local government, not only in Norwood Township, but other townships were residents need to be involved in their own local communities. Since I was one of the applicants who submitted my resumes to be considered for either of the openings that suddenly became apparent by the announcements just a couple of days before the board meeting wherein the nominations were to be proposed, I resent being labeled, "Does that constitute all of a sudden a real concern for what is going on in the township?" Records will show that my regular attendance to the township meetings over the past two years does not show "a sudden real concern" but an honest interest in the integral issues being formulated. These same records do not show township meeting attendance of any frequency by the proposed nominations.

Are the future ordinances and zoning of Norwood Township being shaped in the best interest of it's citizens and their heirs? Or perhaps the future of the township is destined to be subjected to the turmoil currently occurring in Marion Township where Mr. Boss and his relatives who constitute the Legacy Development Group, LLC are being closely scrutinized. Wonder if Mr. Boss's recommendation for township positions are also involved in or benefactors of the Legacy Development Group, LLC.

Supervisor comments not helpful

Editor:

As a resident of Norwood Township and an active participant in township affairs, I have been concerned about the recent public dispute in our township. At the Jan. 19 board meeting, I publicly suggested that all participants be civil, respect each others opinions and perhaps, learn how disputes can be amicably resolved. I had specifically suggested that the parties consider using the effective mediation services of Northern Michigan Community Mediation. My suggestions were directed at the township officials, as well as the parties having the dispute.

Thus, I was very disappointed to read in the Jan. 28 issue of the Charlevoix Courier that the township supervisor chose, in my opinion, to aggravate the situation by publicly detailing his opinion regarding the dispute and related issues. In my opinion, those types of comments will only serve to stiffen the resolve by all parties and divide our township.

Friends and neighbors, there are many critical social and economic problems in our world, let's appreciate all advantages we enjoy living here, and, in regards to the recent public disputes, request the Norwood Township and city of Charlevoix officials to demonstrate the leadership you were elected to fulfill.

What an amazing man, he takes time to see what others don't, is so aware of people and their problems, recognizes the need and gives from his spirit. (It does help to have a bunch of cash.)

His latest "Christmas Story," donation of a pink granite monuments for some 75 infants and children buried at Greenwood Cemetery, so they would be recognized — all their names and dates on the stone.

The city, township, schools, service clubs, societies and people from all walks of life have been the recipient of his kindness and generosity.

Bill and Ellen Schuiling, you both are truly in our hearts and minds for the generous sharing of yourselves. Thank you.

Equalization Ratios, as shown, are the percentages of assessed valuations to true cash value as determined by a survey of individual assessments. The Multipliers are those necessary to bring the Ratios to the required 50% of estimated true cash value. The Multipliers, as shown, are tentative and subject to change as the result of possible adjustments by individual assessing officers. Assuming that no adjustments are made, the Multiplier may be applied to each individual valuation.

Note: These multipliers replace those of 2003 and are not an addition to or subtraction from them.

Resident finds weight loss success with surgery

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Almost a year ago, Marell Staffel, a well-known Charlevoix woman and owner of Charlevoix Camera, went into surgery knowing when she woke up her life would never be the same.

In March of 2002 Staffel was pre-diabetic and suffering from high blood pressure. These life threatening realities made her stop and take a closer look at her lifestyle.

At that time, Staffel, who is now 57, had spent years battling her weight — trying "a zillion" different diets, losing 40 to 50 pounds only to gain it, plus extra pounds, back.

"I was afraid to go on diets. I didn't want to lose some weight and gain even more back," she said.

Her reflection in a mirror or window made her shudder and even though she owns and operates a camera shop, she has few pictures of herself because of her low self image.

After talking with a friend who had seen success with gastric bypass surgery she saw a light at the end of the dark tunnel of diets.

"You see it on the news all the time. Overweight is becoming a huge problem in this country. Obviously diets aren't working for a lot of people. This (gastric bypass surgery) is an option," Staffel said. "Why go through life overwhelmed with health problems if there is a way out?"

She took a year to research the surgery, attending support group meetings and reading everything she could get her hands on.

The surgery reduces the amount of food the stomach will hold and the digestive tract will absorb. A common approach is for a doctor to cut the small intestine and attach it to a tinier stomach they create. This bypasses about 30 percent of the intestines and reduces the amount of calories digested.

About 29 percent of patients who undergo the surgery have complications like pneumonia and wound infections with 2 to 5 percent having serious complications like blood clots or stomach bleeding.

Staffel weighed her options and decided to move forward with the surgery. The next step was to find a physician with a high success rate and low incidence of side effects. She settled on a doctor operating out of Spectrum Health Center in Grand Rapids.

While she knew she would have to leave her close friends, chocolate and ice cream, behind, she didn't know she would have to say goodbye to her companion of over 30 years — cigarettes.

Staffel had smoked two packs a day for 34 years. But her doctor said it was the smokes or the surgery. Staffel picked surgery.

On Feb. 8, 2003 she smoked her last cigarette followed by a ceremony when she disposed of a lighter and one remaining cigarette.

During that first week battling the strong hold of nicotine, a nicotine patch helped curb cravings but didn't loosen the tight grip the addiction had on her. Calls she received from friends and strangers encouraging her to stick with it got her through, as did her thirst for better physical health.

With one bad habit behind her she was ready to kick another — food. On March 11, 2003 a nervous Staffel checked into Spectrum.

"The last thing I thought before they knocked me out was nothing would ever be the same," she said.

After three days in the hospital, she was released and came back to Charlevoix. She spent two weeks on a high protein liquid diet, gradually introducing new foods.

She has not had any negative side effects.

Now, one year and 80 pounds later Staffel is still going strong. Her goal is to lose another 25 pounds. But she said the surgery itself isn't going to just melt the pounds away.

Staffel said the surgery is a tool to achieve long-term weight goals and diet and exercise are what get you there. She said she eats a lot less now and has joined a gym.

Because the surgery prevents the body from absorbing certain nutrients Staffel takes a multi-vitamin, calcium and iron supplements every day.

Aside from the changes in her appearance that have her smiling, Staffel has also lowered her risk of diabetes and her blood pressure. The overall change has been one for the better.

"When you are heavy everything is hard to do. Now, I feel really good," she said. "I can buy clothes at normal stores and that feels great."

She said she would encourage others who are experiencing health complications from being overweight to look into the surgery.

"I don't think anyone should jump into it," she said.

Staffel suggests that those interested in gastric bypass research doctors and look for good after-care programs and thorough prescreening.

Lasater announces run for eighth term

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater has announced he is running for his eighth term in office this year.

George T. Lasater

Lasater, 66, has been the Charlevoix County Sheriff since he was 38 years old. He said he decided to run again because he still enjoys what he is doing. A term is for four years.

"Hopefully, I am doing a good job for the citizens of Charlevoix. It is still exciting to go to work in the morning," he said. "I feel strongly about the office of sheriff and want to do some positive things for the community."

In a release announcing his candidacy, he says, "It is my feeling, a sheriff must respond to the needs of the citizens he or she serves and be proactive rather than reactive. A sheriff must be approachable, and I have made every effort in the last 27 years to be approachable both on duty and off."

Lasater said he loves the challenge of his job.

"You don't know what is facing you each day," he said.

He added he enjoys interacting with people and trying to make a positive difference in someone's life, "even if it is a tragedy."

In the release announcing his candidacy, Lasater outlined his goals if he is elected for this eighth term.

- Continue efforts to provide the citizens of Charlevoix county with professional and responsive law enforcement services the sheriff's office currently provides. Due to the financial problems faced by the state, Lasater said he will use tax money wisely.
- Promote continued rehabilitation efforts for inmates sentenced to the Charlevoix County Jail.
- Education for senior citizens about scams that target them.
- The creation of local citizen support groups for families involved in a crisis/tragic situation, where a family member or friend has been the victim of a tragedy.
- Create a "silent observer" program with the cooperation of chiefs of police throughout the county, the Michigan State Police and the prosecutor's office.
- Create a web site for the sheriff's office that will include wanted criminals in the area, crime prevention tips, guidance for seniors with crime related concerns and a list of programs at the sheriff's office.
- Get another tracking dog for the K-9 program to replace one that recently died.
- Continue to support sub-stations on Beaver Island and in Boyne Falls. Plus, Lasater wants to establish a permanent sub-station in the East Jordan area.

While he has established plenty of goals for another term in office, Lasater has had many years to compile a list of achievements that he is proud of.

The first of those is the ability to select a "great group of people to service the citizens of Charlevoix County." He said he is very proud of the men and women who work at the sheriff's office.

Lasater is also proud that he helped establish a K-9 unit in Charlevoix, school liaison officers in the county and sub-stations in Boyne Falls and on Beaver Island. He added he is also happy that he has the ability to have two detectives at the sheriff's office that are able to concentrate on major cases in the county.

According to the Charlevoix County Clerk's Office, no one has turned in any petitions for the sheriff's position. Petitions are not due until May.

The sheriff's position will be elected in November

Obituaries

Alice E. Tunison: April 28, 1909 - Feb. 7, 2004

Alice E. Tunison, 94, of Charlevoix, died Saturday, Feb. 7, 2004, at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

She was born April 28, 1909, in Albion, the daughter of Arthur and Lizzie (Daly) Baker. She graduated from Fordson High School in Dearborn in 1926. As a young girl, Alice ran errands for her father — a Detroit businessman — who encouraged her to register to vote as soon as she was old enough, and as a result, has remained active as an elections worker during her life.

Alice married Kenneth Tunison in 1932, and together they raised four children: Roberta, Richard, Jane and Mel.

After retiring Alice and Kenneth moved to their summer home in Ironton. Alice went to work at age 50, sharing her time as secretary to General Ely, (the Charlevoix County Civil Defense Director) and as secretary to Harvey Varnum, Prosecuting Attorney. She became acting Civil Defense Director upon the death of General Ely, retiring at age 72.

Alice was an avid weaver and a member of the Weaver's Guild. She was among the founders of The Brown Bag Craft Shop on Bridge Street in Charlevoix.

Alice is survived by her children, Roberta (Charles) Hosper, Richard (Carol) Tunison and Jane Lawson all of Charlevoix; 13 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her husband Kenneth and son Melville.

A memorial service will be at 11 a.m., Saturday, Feb. 28, at Greensky Hill United Methodist Church. The Rev. Geri Litchfield will officiate and interment will take place this spring at Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Memorial contributions may be made to Greensky Hill United Methodist Church. The family is being served by the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The family wishes to thank Dr. Gels, his staff, and those at Charlevoix Area Hospital who were so helpful during these last few days.

Chamber brings second request for old post office

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Charlevoix's City Council and Downtown Development Authority (DDA) will meet to discuss how the city should address contribution requests from both the Charlevoix Public Library and the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce.

These topics will be tackled at a joint DDA and council meeting scheduled to take place at 5:30 p.m., Feb. 23 in the Coast Guard training room located at 109 Bridge Park Drive in Charlevoix.

At the meeting, chamber representatives will make their second pitch to try and secure the city-owned former post office off Mason Street as their new headquarters.

The post office currently houses city staff while renovations are being done next-door at city hall. According to city treasurer Rick Brandi, an insurance appraisal done in 1998 found the building's value to be $208, 927. This figure does not include the $40,000 in renovations the city did to the building in 2003 to prep it for city staff.

In mid-January, chamber president Jacqueline Merta appealed to both council and the DDA to have ownership of the post office transferred to the chamber for $1 with a "reverter" clause that if the building is not being used for chamber functions, ownership would go back to the city.

She told the two bodies that in the not-so-distant future, the chamber will be homeless. During the East Park and marina renovation planning process community members made it clear that there was no place in the park for buildings like the chamber office, not directly related to supporting the park and marina.

And with those renovations likely starting in the fall of 2005 the chamber's time to plan for relocation is now.

After further discussion, it was found to be less viable for the chamber to buy the building because it is subject to property taxation and would also have to insure it.

According to Merta, money is tight and the chamber may not even be able to pay to maintain it and cover utilities.

Under the current arrangement the chamber pays the city $100 a month to rent the Bridge Street location and the city covers utilities and maintenance costs. Wiesner said this isn't even enough to maintain the building.

At that January meeting, a possible lease arrangement with the chamber handling maintenance and utility costs was supported by the majority of the DDA and council members who said they think the city maintaining ownership is important.

Chamber representatives have spent the last month working through kinks in the plan and will present their latest approach at the Feb. 23 special meeting.

After the special meeting is over, the DDA will meet to discuss the possibility of opening its pocket book to the library.

The library is currently raising money for its $7.3 million renovation and expansion of the old middle school, off Grant Street where it plans to relocate.

Sandi Frost-Parrish, a consultant with Monaghan Associates of Grand Rapids, was in charge of a feasibility study that looked at whether the money to fund the project was available in Charlevoix.

She suggested library volunteers shoot for around $1 million in donations. With that number set, they are now working to make up the remaining $6 million with a millage, the sale of the current Clinton Street building and possible participation by governmental entities.

In the study, Frost-Parrish said she sensed nervousness from some people interviewed about passing a millage on June 14 without support for the project from a government entity. She said the DDA came up frequently as a possible source of funding.

DDA member Jeff Porter said he is ready to look at whether the group plans to step up to the plate.

"I want to see what the DDA's role in it (the library project) is and look at possibly funding part of it. There are a lot of people on the DDA that are interested in the library who want to see that building (the old middle school) preserved," he said.

Library director Valerie Meyerson said she has not pinpointed a dollar amount she is hoping to get from the DDA.

"I'm hoping they can come up with a good figure," she said.

Meyerson said she will need a definite answer on what the DDA is willing to contribute by March when ballot language is due for the millage request.

The new library proposal looks to renovate and add on to the existing school. The proposed brick facility is about 24,000 square feet, with all its main functions on the first floor.

This primary floor will include small additions, totaling just under 4,000 square feet of space — one will house the program room and the other, a children's activity room. The facility will offer adult, children's and teen collections as well as a popular reading room, plenty of quiet reading areas, a self check out, a staffed circulation desk and outdoor landscaped plazas.

Planning commission has concerns on marina plan

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Charlevoix County Planning Commission is sending a letter listing three concerns about the Charlevoix Marina project to the United States Army Core of Engineers.

The core of engineers requested comment from the commission based on an application it received for the project. But, commissioners expressed concerns about the design saying it did not have enough shoppers docks and the shoppers docks were too small, the boat docks looked further out into the lake than was previously thought and the size and impact of the project is great.

Commissioners were upset because there was only one small area for a shoppers dock on the northern part of the plan. Piers in the plan would extend 240 feet into the lake.

Nancy Ferguson, commission member, said the plan did not look like the same one that was agreed upon by the citizens after several public forums on the subject. In addition to the concerns, Ferguson said she would like the core of engineers to host a public hearing in the marina plan — that idea was ultimately voted down by the commission.

"I just don't think this is the consensus that people have reached," she said. "There needs to be a public hearing to make sure we are going the right way."

Ferguson said she believes there has never been a public hearing on the marina plan.

In response to having a public hearing, Charlevoix City Manager Michael Wiesner said the city has already had nine public meetings, which were all advertised in local news media. As of Tuesday, he was still researching differences between the plan in the core application and the public consensus plan.

As for the shopper's docks, Weisner said any dock could become a shoppers dock if needed.

The commission had to submitt a response to the core by Feb. 19.

It's a pretty bold statement, considering we don't even know the question yet. Northwestern Bank is locally owned and each office is locally staffed and managed. Decisions are made right here by people with the answers, who are empowered to do what needs to be done. The person you ask is the person who'll make sure it happens.

You'll never get answers like, "That's not my department." Or, "You'll have to call this 800 number." When you ask anyone at Northwestern Bank, big things happen right away.

If your bank "can't do that," maybe it's time you found one that can.

Safety a concern if you are getting inked

By B. JON GOHS
Special to the Courier

The health issues surrounding tattooing don't seem to be enough of a concern for the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency (NMCHA) to act.

From food temperatures and storage protocol to the sanitation of flatware and hand washing procedures, the NMCHA regulates restaurants to safeguard the public. But, there are no safety regulations in the many tattoo shops in the area.

Anyone within NMCHA's jurisdiction can operate a tattoo shop without so much as a sanitation class or health inspection. While other occupations, some with much lower risks of blood borne illness, are prime targets for such regulation.

According to Registered Sanitarian Larry Levengood of NMCHA, "There doesn't seem to be a need for any regulation. If we had 20 reports of hepatitis or some other bloodborne illness from tattooing the health department might decide to adopt some regulations."

He said, "Until it was brought to our attention we weren't aware their were so many tattoo shops operating in the area."

Levengood added, until there is enough of a proven health issue there probably won't be any regulation.

Tattooed Charlevoix residents Joel and Jessica Clark are concerned with the lack of safety regulations in tattoo shops in the area.

"If doctors dispose of dirty needles properly then so should tattoo shops," Joel said. "And what happens to the people who pick up the trash? What happens if they get stuck with an infected needle?"

Jessica echoes her husbands sentiments, "That's nice of them to wait until an outbreak of some deadly disease before they do anything about it. I don't understand why there aren't any safety regulations in tattoo shops around here; there are downstate."

Dean Mikulski, director of environmental health services at NMCHA said, "Most of the regulations we enforce are patterned after state law. Since there is no state law governing safety standards of the tattoo industry we don't feel there is a need for regulation."

Cynthia Lawrence, owner of Outcast Tattoo in Mancelona, has had her fair share of health concerns. From losing several inches of bone on her leg due to staphylococcus infection, to her brother's battle with hepatitis C, a bloodborne illness, is a worrisome prospect.

As a result Lawrence spares no expense to keep her shop clean, despite the lack of regulations.

According to Lawrence, "Just because your tattoo artist pulls the needle out of a new package doesn't mean it's clean. Anyone can stick a dirty needle into a plastic bag and tell you it's safe. How would you know the difference?"

She said, "We sample our sterilization equipment once a month for pathogens and send the specimen to North Bay Bioscience lab. We're the only shop in the area which does so."

Lawrence's artist seems to share her concern for the safety of the customer.

According to Jason Doan, sole artist of Outcast Tattoo, "I've been tattooing for nine years. Tattooing give me tranquility."

But Jason's tranquility was broken when he learned there are no safety regulations for local tattoo shops.

Doan added he spoke with Mikulski about possibly implementing safety regulations.

"He seemed interested. He told me he would get back to me, but I waited three months for a phone call or letter and he never responded," Doan said.

Doan added, "I called him and tried to restart the fire. He saw Outcast was the only tattoo shop listed and told me he didn't need to adapt any regulations at that time. His response was scary and shocking."

There are many tattoo artists in the area and they do a lot of business, but few shops are as clean as Outcast.

According to Doan, "Most people walk into the shop and say, 'Wow, this looks like a dentist office.'"

But there are many shops in this area without even minimal safety standards.

He added, "At least 20 shops operate in the area covered by the Charlevoix Health Department. I hear a new name every week of someone who does tattoos."

The risk of bloodborne illness for sanitation workers may be as great as the tattoo artists and customers.

Tom Horton, government affairs manager for Waste Management of Michigan said, "The disposal of potentially hazardous waste is a concern for us. Until there is some type of uniform regulation for the disposal of biohazardous material people will have to find a way to dispose of it on their own."

According to Horton, "People who don't have a local disposal option can put used needles into some type of unbreakable container such as a milk jug."

Horton added, while not the optimal means of disposal, a milk jug will afford more safety to those working in sanitation.

The Sharps Compliant company offers disposal service of used needles. They can be reached at 1(877)927-8363.

Charlevoix county jail brings in $235,505

According to Sheriff George T. Lasater, the Charlevoix County Jail has received $235,505 this year from surrounding counties for housing their prisoners.

Lasater said Grand Traverse County spent $181,695 and Emmet County spent $51,810.

Because of this, Lasater added the sheriff's office was able to place $200,505 back into the Charlevoix County General Fund. This takes into account about 10 percent, or $23,000, for food.

Construction starts on new US-31 hotel

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

A new hotel is under construction in Hayes Township on Charlevoix's north side.

Dorian Lange, an Eaton Rapids developer, broke ground on AmericInn Motel and Suites in early January at a site located northeast of Bethany Lutheran Church, fronting on US-31.

Hayes Township Clerk Ethel Knepp said construction started just in the nick of time, as permits the township had approved were about to expire for a second time.

The first steps in the development process took place in March of 2002 when the Hayes Township Planning Commission rezoned the hotel property from A-1, agricultural to C-1 commercial. At that time the plan was to break ground on the hotel project during the summer of 2002.

Lange said that construction was delayed while he and his development team waited for Charlevoix Township to undertake the Pine Point sewer extension which will run down Boyne City-Charlevoix Road.

Charlevoix Township supervisor Dale Glass said the township is hoping to start construction of the sewer extension this spring.

If the new sewer line is not ready when the hotel needs to hook up, Lange plans to tie into the force main at the Charlevoix Country Club and hook into the Pine Point system at a later date.

He is hoping to have the hotel open for business in July.

So far, the land has been cleared for the hotel and the footings have been poured. Lange said the next step will be to put the walls up.

When construction is complete, the hotel will be a two-story, 54 unit structure with an indoor swimming pool and on-site parking, spanning almost 4 acres. The entrance and exit to the hotel will be located across from the Charlevoix Country Club entrance.

The hotel is part of a larger proposed development which may extend into both Hayes and Charlevoix townships. The whole plan includes AmericInn, office space, assisted living, a restaurant, retail space, apartments and self-storage buildings.

The proposed development will cover 73 acres total, with 44 acres in Hayes Township and 29 acres in Charlevoix Township. The Charlevoix Township portion of the project will be used for retail stores, affordable apartments and condominiums.

Each proposed site has to be approved by the township it's planned for and the Hayes Township hotel is currently the only approved site.

Lange's next move is to request site plan approval for the senior housing and assisted living complex. This development is planned for property behind the church in Hayes Township. His latest master plan concept shows this assisted living area as having about 40 units.

Work has been progressing on a new hotel set to open in July. AmericInn and Suites is the first big project in a major development planned for this property along US-31 and Boyne City-Charlevoix Road in Charlevoix and Hayes townships.

Participants needed for two cancer trials

Residents of Northern Michigan have an opportunity to make medical history by participating in one of two cancer prevention trials of Northern Michigan Hospital's Clinical Oncology Program.

One is for Breast Cancer and the other is for Prostate Cancer.

The Breast Cancer Prevention Trial is called "STAR." A dozen participants by April are sought for both trials.

In STAR, two drugs, tamoxifen and raloxifene, will be compared for their effectiveness in reducing the occurrence of breast cancer in postmenopausal women age 35 or older who are at increased risk for the disease. The Prostate Cancer Prevention Trial is called "SELECT," Selenium and Vitamin E Cancer Prevention Trial. SELECT is trying to find out if taking selenium and/or vitamin E supplements can prevent prostate cancer.

"The trials will close at the end of this year," said Betsy Johnson, RN, CRA, of NMH Cancer Research and Registration. "This is an opportunity to be a part of medical history through our affiliation with Grand Rapids Clinical Oncology Program."

To learn more about the trials and the criteria for participation call the Clinical Oncology Program at (231) 487-7966.

Volleyball team tied for first in conference

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The Charlevoix Rayders continued their successful volleyball campaign with an impressive third place finish in the 16-team Suttons Bay Invitational last weekend.

The Rayders are now 23-9-12 overall and 7-0 and tied for first place in the Lake Michigan Conference.

"We're gearing up for our run for a conference championship and the districts," coach Elizabeth Grunch said. "This week was a good evaluation on where we are and in what areas we need to improve."

In pool play Charlevoix defeated BR Crossroads 15-11, 15-6; split with Buckley, 11-15, 15-13; and split with Frankfort, 4-15, 16-14.

After finishing second in pool play, the Rayders won their power pool with victories over Traverse City Christian, 15-10, 15-12; Mason County Eastern, 15-12, 15-11; and Mesick, 15-11, 15-6.

In single elimination play, Charlevoix bested Buckley, 22-20, 21-15, but fell to Pellston in the tournament semifinals, 8-21, 19-21.

"Shayna Drost did a tremendous job for us in the tournament," Grunch commented. "She led the defense, reading the opponents hits well and showed great hustle."

Andrea Ruhlmann made the all-tournament team and Drost was named powerpool team most valuable player.

Statistically, Ruhlmann led the Rayders with 34 kills, 15 blocks and 10 aces. Kari Way had 25 kills.

Betsy Dennis had 22 kills and 20 digs. Drost added 14 digs.

Becca Kanine was 38 for 40 serving, with four aces and had 68 assists.

"Andrea Ruhlmann was really a force for us on the attack and has done real well both passing and attacking," Grunch said. Kari Way has also really stepped up on her power and on her attacks.

The Rayders face a pivotal week in the league playing conference co-leader Harhor Springs on Wednesday, Feb. 18 away before returning next week on Monday, Feb. 23 to host Harbor and Grayling in a tri-match.

Basketball team chalks up two more victories

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

It was two more easy conference wins last week for the Charlevoix Rayders as they rolled over Elk Rapids, 75-52 and East Jordan, 86-50 in Lake Michigan Conference action..

The Rayders are still undefeated on the hardwood in 15 contests and moved up to no. 3 in Class C according to the Associated Press.

Before the home game against East Jordan, senior forward Scott Friske was honored for scoring his one-thousandth point as a Rayder. Friske, who played varsity basketball as an eighth grader at Harhor Light before coming to Charlevoix, has scored over 1500 points overall and is closing in on 1000 rebounds with 927 for his varsity career.

The Red Devils led 2-0 and 4-2 before the Rayders took the game over. Charlevoix led by as many as ten in the first quarter at 16-6 and 20-10. The Rayders led 22-15 at the end of the first period.

In the second quarter, East Jordan cut the lead to five briefly at 24-19 but a 16-0 Charlevoix torrent put the game out of reach. The Rayders took a 51-27 lead into the locker room at the half.

Charlevoix outscored the Red Devils, 28-8 in the third quarter to push the lead to 79-35. The forty-point advantage made for a brisk fourth quarter as the Michigan High School Athletic Association mercy rule went into effect mandating a running clock for the remainder of the contest.

Friske, a 6-6 all-stater, led the Rayders with 27 points and 10 rebounds.

Jared Hunt and Kyle Kramer each had 13 points. Bryce Daly added 12 points, five assists and five steals. Hunt also had five assists.

Friske also led Charlevoix against Elk Rapids with 26 points and 13 rebounds. Hunt scored 15 and John DiMartino added 10. Daly dished out eight assists, swiped five steals and grabbed five rebounds.

The Rayders (13-2 overall, 9-1 conference) travel to Harhor Springs on Friday, Feb. 20.

Midget hockey team does well in tournament

The District 7 Midget BB tournament was on Feb. 13, 14 and 15 at the Polar Bear Ice Arena and was hosted by Boyne Area Hockey.

Nine area teams vied for a berth in the state playoffs.

Boyne opened the tournament with their draw with Mackinaw City. The first period went scoreless as the teams felt each other out.

At 8:45 in the second, Troy Scarbrough fed an across the net pass to Cody Webster to open the scoring, and it was all Boyne after that. Ryan Fields hit from the top of the circle with an assist from Stephen Cahoon. Justin Conklin snaked one in from a Fields' feed; Fields hit the net again with a pass from Josh Aown, and Eli Barsy capped off the 5-0 win with assists from Conklin and Will Brown. Bobby Courtright made 19 saves in goal to earn the shutout.

On Saturday the team took on St. Ignace. With Courtright between the pipes behind them, Conklin opened the scoring just into the second period with a pass from Russell Williams. Williams hit the net five minutes later with assists from Aown and Conklin.

St Ignace scored in the third, but Scarhrough put one under the goalie with an across the net feed from Evan Keller, and Boyne took the game 3-1, winning their division and advancing to the semi final round.

On Sunday morning the team played the "blue" division winner Alpena. A goal from Williams, assisted by Conklin and Fields, was Boyne's only tally in their hard fought 1-5 loss.

Courtright was in net.

St. Ignace was the winner of the tournament after earning a semi final wildcard berth and beat Gaylord to go the final round, where they beat Alpena 6-4.

Gooch to be paid for all hours over 20

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Charlevoix's City Council finally took steps to sweep up a messy debate.

The issue of how current clerk Liz Gooch should be compensated has been a controversial topic since early January. Some have argued the position doesn't merit full-time status and others have said they want the clerk, an elected official, at city hall full-time.

Council ultimately did not opt to make the position full-time, which is what third ward council member Shirley Gibson had pushed for. But Gooch will be paid for the time she is working beyond 20 hours.

Gibson made the motion at the Feb. 16 council meeting to recommend that Gooch be compensated $15 an hour for any time she works beyond her salaried 20 hours a week, retroactive to Feb. 2.

The other three council members present, third ward councilman Sherm Chamberlain, second ward council member Karen Campbell and first ward councilman Bob Timms, all supported this recommendation.

Gooch, who was reelected in November of 2003, is currently compensated $16,416 a year for 20 hours a week of work. But she has said she can't fulfill all the duties of the clerk in that time. And any time she works over 20 hours is not paid for. She said she frequently puts in 40 hours and has never asked for anything in return.

Gooch said most of her current responsibilities include keeping records like city council minutes, compiling voter registration information, running elections, coordinating Freedom of Information Act requests and acting as clerk for both council and the Board of Review.

She said she is happy with council's recommendation.

Now, the city compensation commission will revisit this issue and make its recommendation at a future meeting that has not been scheduled.

In late January, the compensation commission recommended that if council makes the clerk's position full-time, the full-time deputy clerk's position should be eliminated and the clerk's salary set at $34,000.

At that time they said if council decides to keep the position at its current part-time status, the job should continue at the present salary.

How to get your event news into the Courier

If you have a news item you think would be perfect for the Charlevoix Courier, feel free to call 547-6558, e-mail charlevoixcourier@charlevoix-courier.com or visit the Courier office located at 112 Mason Street in downtown Charlevoix.

News items include events sponsored by non-profit organizations. Please inform us of your event at least two weeks in advance.

Our coverage area is the city of Charlevoix and its immediately surrounding areas, including Beaver Island.

Because of space limitations in the newspaper, we generally try to avoid publishing "check-handing" pictures or "ribbon-cutting" pictures. However, we will work with your organization to get a picture that reflects the event and is visually interesting to our readers.

Due to time constraints on the staff, we cannot attend every event we are notified of. If you have a picture of your event, we will gladly consider it for publication. But, please, contact us before your event.

It should be noted, each story and picture is dealt with on its individual merits. Any policies outlined above may be suspended by the editor or general manager of the Charlevoix Courier if necessary.

Outlast your battery.

CHARLEVOIX BRIEFS

Area events

Honors wanted

Charlevoix High School is in the process of finishing their new trophy display cases in the commons area outside the gymnasium. The trophy area is near completion, and now the school is asking for community assistance to complete the next phase.

A Hall of Fame for All-state athletes is being constructed along the North/South hallway, opposite the gymnasium. All athletes, who achieved all-state status in their sports at Charlevoix High School, are asked to send a 2-inch-by-3-inch senior picture along with the year(s) All-state status was accomplished, the sport(s) and a correct spelling of their name. Additionally, if an athlete was a state champion, please send a 5-inch-by-7-inch picture. Only one picture is needed even if All-state status was achieved in more than one sport. Please include a contact person and phone number if there is a question about the information sent.

Library events

The Charlevoix Public Library story hour is 10:30 to 11:15 a.m., Thursdays and 12:30 to 1:15 p.m. on Saturdays. Children from the ages of 2 to 7 are invited.

The theme schedule is as follows:

- Feb. 26 and 28 — Oops! It was an accident! Come laugh and enjoy stories about mistakes that have been made!

'Sound of Music' sends students to state finals

Sherman, along with Ford who took on the assistant's position, and a group of volunteers, including Steve Kantola and Don Niedert, took the kids all the way.

But Sherman stressed it wasn't the directing that bolstered the students to the next level, it was their dedication.

Over the past two months the students have used every snow day and day off as their opportunity to practice. Sherman is awe struck by the young team's drive to succeed.

With district and regional wins under their belt Sherman is looking to the state finals where she is expecting great things from the group.

"They've become a team. They've become a unit," she said.

They will compete against 13 other schools at the state competition this Friday and Saturday in Auburn Hills.

Those who can't make it to Auburn Hills but are interested in seeing the award winning performance of "The Sound of Music" can attend the group's winter show scheduled to take place at 7 p.m., Feb. 28 and 2:30 p.m., Feb. 29 at Charlevoix High School.

Mayor does not reappoint commissioners

cility is not an allowable use in the R-2 district and Mayor Campbell said the whole dismissal mess will disappear if the commission rescinds its motion to set that public hearing. And even though John Campbell is no longer a commissioner he plans to continue to fight the dismissal charges.

"It's still not taken care of," he said.

While this dismissal issue is pending, Mayor Campbell said the city has planning to do and there are qualified people who want to serve.

In appointing third ward council member Shirley Gibson to the commission, the mayor said he is following state law which requires a member of the legislative body to serve on the planning commission. Gibson served on the commission for five years in the 1990s.

The mayor made the council seat on the commission an annual appointment.

Then he picked former Charlevoix County Planner John Hess to fill the other commission seat. Hess has extensive experience with municipal planning serving as the local county planner, the assistant county planner for Marquette County and as a consultant for townships.

Hess also has had a hand in writing zoning ordinances which the mayor said will be useful as the city sets out to revise its master plan and zoning ordinance.

Three of the four council members present supported the Mayor Campbell's decision to appoint Hess, with third ward councilman Sherm Chamberlain voting against it.

Chamberlain said he felt this decision should be made with all council members present. Second ward councilman Bill Bellows and first ward councilman Bill Haggard were absent.

> "That's politics. He gets to do what he would like to do."
> John Campbell,
> Former planning commissioner on the mayor's decision

While Mayor Campbell's new commissioners won't take their new positions until April 1, when Bennett and Campbell's terms expire, he wanted to make his appointments now so the new commission members can take part in a March training session for the ZBA, council and the planning commission.

At Monday's meeting the mayor also reappointed Gina Whitney to the planning commission and Fred DiMartino and Jeannine Wallace to the Downtown Development Authority. Howard Horton was appointed to replace A.J. Witthoeft on the ZBA, following Witthoeft's resignation, and Mary Everly will replace Horton as an alternate on the ZBA.

Students planning skate park

Charlevoix area students of all ages met at Charlevoix Middle School last week to brainstorm ideas for a skate park in town using model quarter pipes, stairs and ramps.

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

A 13-year-old boy's thirst for the rush of a quarter pipe beneath his skateboard has transformed into a group drive to build a skate park in Charlevoix.

Hayes Township resident Zeke Daman wrote a letter to Charlevoix Courier editor Jeremy McBain in the fall of 2003 upset that there is no place in town for him to ride his skateboard.

"Skateboarding is the fastest growing sport in the country," he said. "There is nowhere to skateboard in Charlevoix. You get your board taken away or yelled at."

Zeke and others often travel all around to enjoy the sport, frequently ending up at Traverse City's seasonal, outdoor park.

Vinnie Klooster, mother of a Charlevoix skater, said, "I make so many trips back and forth to Traverse City in the summer. I would love to see something in our community."

Zeke's letter sparked interest from Klooster and others which prompted the start of a planning effort to bring the Charlevoix Community Skate Park to town.

Last week, a group of about 20 interested Charlevoix students from 13 to 18 met at Charlevoix Middle School to hash out how to make their skating dreams a reality.

They maneuvered a model, furnished by Charlevoix resident and Skatewave representative Dave Bean, equipped with mini quarter pipes, stairs and ramps.

While they crafted their ideal indoor park, they brainstormed possible locations for it including Shanahan Field, the lot next to the Sleep Inn and the former Charlevoix Middle School.

Local law enforcement agencies are being asked what impact a proposed Wal-Mart supercenter will have on their operations.

The Charlevoix Township Planning Commission will meet April 21 to review a site plan presented by Wal-Mart representatives. They are looking to locate a 157,000 square foot store on Charlevoix Township's south side off US-31, near the city limits.

The location prompted third ward council member Shirley Gibson to question how the store will impact city services and infrastructure.

"This is going to be right on the city, township line and I don't think the city should be paying for services," she said.

Council member wants to redo city manager's contract

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

> "I don't think that was reasonable and I think it was done by people who have a conflict of interest."
> Bob Timms,
> Charlevoix City Council Member

Charlevoix city manager Mike Wiesner's contract came under fire recently.

At the Feb. 16 city council meeting, first ward councilman Bob Timms inquired about revoking Wiesner's "golden parachute."

The parachute he explained is the revised contract that council adopted last January which increased Wiesner's salary 9 percent and approved a 12 month severance pay package.

"I don't think that was reasonable and I think it was done by people who have a conflict of interest," Timms said at the council meeting.

Timms believes that the support for the change from first ward councilman Bill Haggard, former first ward councilman Norm Carlson and third ward councilman Sherm Chamberlain was inappropriate given some work they do for the city.

All three voted in favor of the change.

Third ward council member Shirley Gibson who also voted in favor of the change said she wishes she hadn't.

"I've taken a lot of heat for the way I voted on that. In hindsight I wish I had voted no," she said.

Before the motion to increase Wiesner's pay and put in place the severance package passed, Gibson motioned to table the issue for two weeks while she compared the proposed contract against those of other communities.

This motion wasn't supported by the majority of council.

Timms was at that meeting last January and wasn't happy with the way things went down.

So now that he is a councilman he said he wants to make it right by taking away the severance package.

At the Feb. 16 meeting, he asked city attorney Jim Young what it would take to rescind that contract.

Young said to amend any contract both sides have to agree.

Wiesner said he is satisfied with his contract the way it is.

Timms said he expected this response and won't push the issue any further unless he has more support from other council members.

Gibson said she wants to revisit the contract and is willing to compromise leaving the 9 percent raise in place and revoking the year severance package with full benefits and full salary.

"I don't think that's legitimate," she said. "Let's look at other communities and do it right."

But Timms' effort to change the contract won't be supported by Chamberlain who said, "We've already discussed that. It was a unanimous vote, 6 to nothing to approve the contract. I see no reason to reopen it."

Accident

Slippery roads were partly the cause of this crash around 1 p.m., Feb. 20 near the intersection of Petoskey Avenue and Prospect Street. Shirley Knop, 53, of Charlevoix, was traveling west on Petoskey Avenue when she lost control of her vehicle and struck a tree. Knop received minor injuries from the accident.

Performing arts makes us proud

EDITORIAL

Charlevoix High School is known for its successes on the sports fields.

The Rayders are feared throughout northern Michigan, and even the state, when it comes to track, basketball and many other competitive sports. Charlevoix is the team to beat to be the champion.

But, there is more to the competitive spirit at the high school than just sports events. Charlevoix High School students are also putting the Rayders on the map using their abilities to think, create and perform.

Take for example the recent second place state finish by Charlevoix High School Performing Arts students. Many people would not realize that these students are competing against other schools just like the volleyball team. Many people would not realize these students are making a fantastic name for the school just like the basketball team.

These students do not get to hear the cheering of the fans, have pep rallies in their honor or get much recognition in the media. These students do it for the love of performing and competition.

The Charlevoix High School performing arts students should be proud of their success this year in competition. You have made the students, staff and faculty of your school, as well as the citizens of Charlevoix, proud with your abilities on the stage.

We encourage residents to see these students in action during their annual winter show, "The Sound of Music." This was the very performance that sent these students to the state finals.

Tickets are $6.50 for adults and $4 for students and seniors. They are available at the high school office from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m., now through Friday or at the door the day of the show.

Shows will take place at 7 p.m., Feb. 28 and 2:30 p.m., Feb. 29 at Charlevoix High School located off Marion Center Road.

Writer taking some time off to create a new edition

Edith Gilbert

'Behind the news'

As always, there is good news and had news.

The good news is that the fourth edition of my book, "The Complete Wedding Planner" will be out in spring. I am thrilled that it has been reviewed by Publisher's Weekly and that I have already been invited to do several book signings and radio interviews. (Please check my new Web site www.edithgilbert.com)

In addition my publisher wants me to write a companion book on entertaining for weddings, rehearsal dinners, showers, teas and brunches! This will take time!

Which leads us into the bad news. I have asked Jeremy for time off from writing this column for the Courier for a while — something really I love to do.

For example, I will miss the e-mails from readers like Homer Jones, whose reminiscences go hack further than mine. He recalls that Walter Hagen loved the Belvedere Golf Course, "best east of Pebble Beach," and when the Maitre d' at the fomer Belvedere Hotel would not allow a guest in for lunch because he was wearing knickers!

He continues, "Glad I saw Helen Wills play tennis on the Inn Courts," and climbing the tower of branches on top of Mt. McSauha. He remembers the news item in the Chicago Tribune in the early 1920s, when beloved Dr. Armstrong made a daring emergency flight to Beaver Island. He recalls arriving in Charlevoix on the Manitou and seeing the 16 cylinder chauffeur-driven Cadillacs on Bridge Street. He remembers ordering those delicious, thick, malted milk shakes called Jeffs, that were made at Fessenden's Drug Store, where they also sold the new tennis rackets.

"The wonderful Charlevoix Hospital removed my tonsils, which made it possible for me to get into the Navy. As a Lieutenant, I was censoring mail in the wardroom when Air Officer Commander Shanahan threw some envelopes for me to initial and I saw the postmark "Charlevoix! We became friends and he said, 'I used to deliver groceries to your back door!' The next day he had me launch the planes over the loud speaker, 'Start your engines!' From then on my two years on the WASP were a delight. Mentally and spiritually we're in Charlevoix year-round. Charlevoix is Camelot!"

I'm flattered by his conclusion. "We reach for the Courier before Time and Newsweek! There's no way to thank you except keep loving you more and more."

In turn, I thank my faithful readers for your kind messages and support. Arrivederci!

Letters to the editor

Wal-Mart could be good

Editor:

Please do not list Peggy and/or me as in opposition to a Wal-Mart Store in Charlevoix; we are not!

Change is eternal!

There are those who wish to keep Charlevoix "Just as it is." But I ask just as it is, when? I remember with nostalgia, Fessenden's Drug Store and "Jeffs," Boothe Fishery, Brown's Garage, South Point without a cement plant and Hooker's Stables with a daily string of riders two by two, heading north on Bridge Street. I miss the ice man with his pair of bay horses that brought us ice, cut from the lake and stored in saw dust in the ruins of the old Sugar Beet factory. But time goes on!

I am on record in favor of the free market system and I think Wal-Mart will be good for the full-time residents of Charlevoix County. As a matter of fact, it will bring shoppers into Charlevoix who would otherwise drive to Traverse City, and while buying staples at Wal-Mart, they may take the opportunity to visit some of the high quality shops whose owners have had the wisdom to hire and train knowledgeable employees who can be of service to customers rather than turning valuable businesses over to teenagers who could not care less about the future of merchandising in Charlevoix. I could go on about marketing and niche marketing, but I'll stop here.

No Wal-Mart

Editor:

Please, please, please do not allow Wal-Mart to locate in Charlevoix. Jim Berlage said it "all" in his recent letter to the editor Feb. 11. He is absolutely correct.

Charlevoix is a unique town with its many stores, two beautiful supermarkets and other business serving Charlevoix well. Kmart is there so why in the world do you need a Wal-Mart?

As Berlage stated the future of Charlevoix is in the hands of five planning commissioners. Those very people have enjoyed "Charlevoix the Beautiful" for many, many years. Why would they even consider bringing in the likes of Wal-Mart? It certainly isn't needed and the small town atmosphere will be gone. Eventually it will be a ghost town like a lot of other small towns.

Please reconsider.

Help stop Wal-Mart

Editor:

There seems to be conflicting thinking about the ultimate outcome of the addition of a Wal-Mart store in Charlevoix. Developers I know say that there really is no way to stop the Wal-Mart people from ultimately building in Charlevoix. But over and over again letters to the editor refer to the author Al Norman and factual information of his to the effect that a Wal-Mart in Charlevoix is avoidable.

Is this then assured favorable outcome not enough to put the wheels in motion to do whatever it takes to bring an end to this issue? It appears that the choice of the people of Charlevoix is one of unanimous opposition. It seems, though, like the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission's hands are tied.

Therefore, I would hope that the group involved in the effort to reject Wal-Mart, This Is Our Town, Inc., would enlist the assistance of Mr. Norman and help the planning commission do whatever it takes to bring this matter to a close. And, when available, I would ask the publisher of this wonderful newspaper to put in print just what it is that needs to be done in order to stop the Wal-Mart intrusion.

Wal-Mart will hurt

Editor:

For the past four years, I have been involved in efforts to stop a number of poorly thought out development plans for Otsego County. These included a nearly 900,000 square foot shopping mall, an illegal township downtown development authority, a sewage treatment plant to service a new commercial district, a casino and attempts to gut the Otsego County Zoning Ordinance. A critical ingredient of this overall pattern of development has been the wooing of big box developers such as Wal-Mart.

Charlevoix, Petoskey, Gaylord and Traverse City are tourist destinations precisely because they have interesting local businesses, open, natural areas and beautiful lakes. Big box and chain stores such as Wal-Mart represent the homogenization of the entire United States, so that when one stands on Main Street in any given town, it is impossible to tell whether you are in Charlevoix, Oakland County, or Little Rock, Arkansas. The proliferation of these stores causes, and is designed to cause, the destruction of local businesses by underpricing them, due to their competitive advantage resulting from uniformity and volume. Vast areas of open land are destroyed to huild one story warehouse type stores with gargantuan parking lots that are abandoned after 10 or 15 years for better locations.

There is a price to pay for such rigid uniformity and somewhat cheaper prices. They include: (1) urban sprawl and the associated destruction of open space; (2) removal of millions of dollars from the local economy; (3) the rapid deterioration of downtown areas, even in small towns; (4) pressure on housing as individuals move into the area to work at the low paying jobs created by the big box stores; (5) increased local taxes resulting from the need for additional infrastructure such as sewage treatment plants, roads, jails and schools; and (6) the end of the very rationale that caused you to move to Charlevoix, since it will end up looking exactly like the place you left.

To take the position that I have described is not to be against progress — it only stands against stupid, wasteful sprawl which has already destroyed the very essence of hundreds of communities across this country. Local businesses, providing good jobs, should always be encouraged so long as the character and environment of the community is preserved.

James F. Pagles

Wal-Mart impacts many local businesses

Editor:

I have heard people say that Wal-Mart will hurt the downtown businesses, but in reality, Wal-Mart will hurt ALL of the local businesses.

Please don't think Wal-Mart will only affect our three blocks of downtown merchants.

Wal-Mart dominates clothing, shoes, groceries, toys, hikes, auto repair (oil changes, tire rotation and others), prescriptions, optometry, photo finishing, flowers, books and magazines, hair care, photography, general merchandise, hardware, auto parts and lawn and garden.

These products are not restricted to the downtown area. Even if you don't shop downtown, do you know someone that owns one of these local businesses or someone who works for one of them? Downtown businesses are not the only ones affected, businesses throughout the town will suffer.

Or do you or someone you know do husiness with local merchants? Like washing windows, cleaning carpets, painting or doing remodeling, printing, providing insurance, accounting, banking, on and on?

On and on and round and round go the dollars within our community. In all or most of the above activities, Wal-Mart does not use local merchants, therefore, Wal-Mart won't put dollars back into the community, instead, our money will go to corporate America.

If Wal-Mart comes to Charlevoix, our local businesses won't be here much longer anyway!

This is Our Town

Editor:

To Charlevoix businesses and service organizations:

Ronald Reagan in 1964, nominating Barry Goldwater in a speech entitled, "A Time For Choosing," said these words: "If some among you fear taking a stand because you are afraid of reprisals from your customers, clients or even the government, recognize that you are just feeding the crocodile hoping he will eat you last." "This Is Our Town".... not Wal-Mart's.

Thank you

Editor:

We wish to thank the Charlevoix area emergency staff, leaders and volunteers for their help during our home emergency.

Their teamwork, professionalism, state-of-the-art knowledge and empathy resulted in a positive outcome for a situation, which could have been disastrous.

As a community, we can be proud of the services provided by the city, township and county, knowing that they take pride in the job they do.

Thank you

Editor:

We would like to offer a public thanks to our very own Mt. McSauba, for letting us celebrate after MEAP testing. We would greatly appreciate it if you would publish this in your newspaper.

On behalf of the students at Charlevoix Middle School, we would like to graciously thank the staff at Mt. McSauba for letting us use their facilities.

It was nice to have something to look forward to after a long week of MEAP testing.

While some students enjoyed outdoor activities, others stayed inside and played games.

Many students had never skied or gone snowboarding before and it was a great experience for all who tried. Once again we thank you for letting us use the hill and we hope that this opportunity will be available for others in the future.

Traffic fix

Editor:

I want to belatedly thank all the city and state officials that agreed to improve the traffic and safety problems adjacent to the Olesons Shopping Center. Specifically they eliminated the south pedestrian crosswalk of the Bridge Street/Antrim Street intersection.

This change improved the traffic flow for the Antrim Street vehicles turning south onto Bridge Street as well as the northbound Bridge Street vehicles turning onto Antrim Street. Safety was improved because it eliminated the interference between pedestrians and vehicles.

This has been a win, win, and win situation in that the pedestrians are not complaining, the motorists like it and all the husiness owners in the Olesons Shopping Complex have not reported any loss of customers.

P.S. — To improve the public safety and increase traffic flow, I recommend that the city council vote to eliminate the north crosswalk of the Bridge/Clinton streets intersection for a one-year trial period. Having some pedestrians/shoppers walk an additional 80 feet is minor compared to the hundreds of shoppers that are now avoiding Charlevoix in the summer.

Work to Witness

The Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene Youth International (NYI) are going on a Work and Witness trip to the Bahamas July 17-27. They will join other Nazarene Youth International groups from northern Michigan. The Charlevoix group consist of: (front) Dianna Shull, Samantha Shull, Rachel Gilmore, Veronica Shull, Nathanael Gilmore, (back) Isaac Gilmore, Ashley DeVries, Danae Drebenstedt, Regan Drebenstedt and Jim Shull. The Charlevoix group is seeking both prayer and financial support.

Linda Yaroch named new deputy health officer for area

Linda Yaroch has been appointed deputy health officer for the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, the local health department that serves Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego Counties. According to Gerry Chase, Health Officer, this title more accurately reflects Yaroch's day-to-day responsibilities.

"Linda's been actively involved in developing regional programs to increase access to health care, particularly dental health care," he said.

"Now that Dental Clinics North are fully operational across a 21-county region of northern Michigan, she can focus on developing other regional partnerships to meet communities' health care needs."

Yaroch, a public health nurse, has worked for the agency for over 27 years in a variety of roles. Most recently she served as Director of Planning and Regional Health, a position which will not be replaced by the health department. Prior to that, from 1996 to 1998, she served as health officer on a contractual basis for the Benzie-Leelanau District Health Department. She earned a Master of Public Health degree in public health policy and administration from the University of Michigan in 1992.

Yaroch has received many awards and honors across the state, including Public Advocacy Award from the Michigan Department of Community Health, Outstanding Alumni Award from the MSU School of Nursing, and Outstanding Achievement Award from the Michigan Council for Maternal & Child Health.

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is the local health department serving Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego Counties. Its staff is dedicated to preventing disease and injury and promoting healthy communities.

For more information about the health department, call toll-free (800) 432-4121.

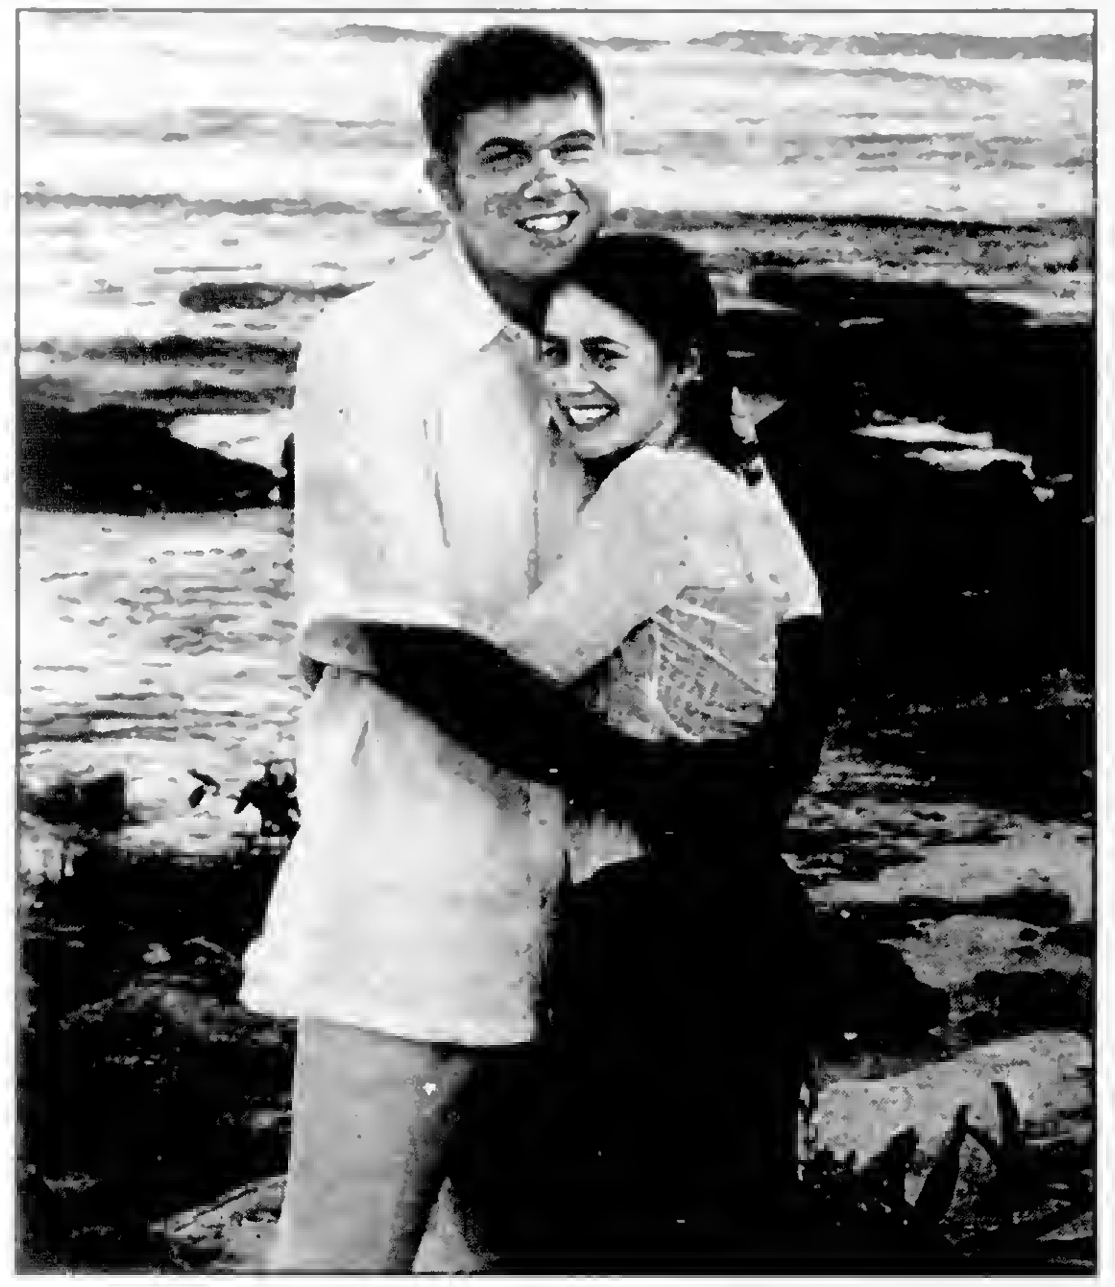
Engagement



Vandergriff — Wiers

Candice Marie Vandergriff, of Charlevoix, and Aaron William Wiers, of Chicago, Ill., are engaged to be married.

Candice is the daughter of Kraag and Cyndie Lieberman. Aaron is the son of Roger and Sheryl Wiers of Chicago, Ill.

A wedding is being planned for Saturday, May 29, 2004 at the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix.

The bride-to-be has a bachelor of arts from Calvin College in Grand Rapids in Exercise Science. She will begin the physical therapy program at the University of Illinois in Chicago, Ill. this fall.

The groom-to-be has a bachelor of science from Calvin College in accounting. He is employed as a loan analyst at LaSalle Bank in Chicago, Ill.

Non-profits invited to apply for grants through foundation

Once again, its time to put local charitable dollars to work to enhance the community.

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation invites local nonprofit organizations, educational institutions, and municipalities who are in need of funding to submit grant requests to support their projects.

During the next few months, the community foundation and the Youth Advisory Committees will review grant proposals to help fund health initiatives, community development projects, education, the arts and cultural events, environmental efforts, and human service programs. The Youth Advisory Committee is made up of teen representatives throughout Charlevoix County. They will recommend awards to programs that address children and teen issues.

Programs chosen for funding must serve residents of Charlevoix County and have a nonprofit tax status. The proposals must meet a community need, or provide life enrichment programs, projects, or services for area residents. Grants are not normally given for general operations. The deadline for grant requests is April 1, 2004.

Grant dollars become available for distribution June 1, 2004.

Applications are available by calling the community foundation office. All applicants must call and discuss their proposals in advance. Foundation staffs are available to offer advice and assistance to organizations interested in applying for funds.

The community foundation is a grassroots charitable organization made up of various funds — all of them established by local donors. Some funds are earmarked for specific causes, and others are open-ended to meet changing needs.

The funds are held in permanent endowment, so they can continue to grow and generate income to enhance the quality of life in Charlevoix County, now and for generations to come. The community foundation grantmaking total amounts to nearly $4.5 million dollars.

For more information about the local community foundation grantmaking process, establishing a fund or making a gift, please contact the Charlevoix County Community Foundation at P.O. Box 718, East Jordan, MI, 49727, or by phone at (231) 536-2440.

Dawson dives into stunts on game show

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Nicole Dawson has faced her fears and in front of a national television audience.

Dawson, 22, was seen dangling from a helicopter, jumping across a ravine and munching on cow's intestines on Feb. 17 with four other contestants as part of the reality television game show, Fear Factor. Dawson is a summer resident of Charlevoix, known as the captain of Sunshine Charters, docked at the Charlevoix Municipal Marina.

"The experience was great. I thought it was something I really wanted to do...to try the stunts. But television is not my thing," Dawson said.

Fear Factor is seen on NBC each week. In it, contestants must perform all sorts of grueling or disgusting stunts, such as being covered with spiders or eating horrid-looking foods. Contestants are eliminated based on their ability to do these stunts.

Dawson's appearance on the show started when she noticed an open audition for it while attending school at the University of Michigan.

During the audition, groups of possible contestants where brought in 10 at a time and to give their names. Oh her way out, Dawson was taken aside and asked to make a video tape for the producers.

After making a video of herself "skating around in a bikini," and several interviews later, Dawson was informed she was accepted to be a contestant on the show. She said the producers were very interested in the fact that she was a ship captain and sailed in the Caribbean.

Filming was in November in and around Los Angeles, Calif. The television show flew her out there and put her up in a hotel for a week.

She said she got along well with the other contestants and the show's host, Joe Rogan. Other contestants were: Luis Ordonez (the winner), April Davis, Melissa Mower, Garret Anderson and Michael Klein. She still talks to one of the contestants, Mower, on the telephone.

Dawson started off the hour-and-a-half show by dangling outside of a helicopter as it hovered above the ocean. While there, she had to climb through a cargo net and remove various flags from it. After this, she had to slide down a rope toward the water and also remove flags.

Dawson cruised through most of the stunt, but ended up sliding too far on the rope and dropping into the water without getting the last flag.

"It was kind of freaky," Dawson said about the stunt. She was the first of the four contestants to take part in this test.

In the next stunt, Dawson and her four contestants had to jump from a platform over a ravine to another platform a few feet across from it. While doing this, they had to remove flags from one side and put them on the other. Plus, contestants had 45 seconds to do this stunt, before the floors of the platform dropped out from under them — the contestants were secured to a safety line.

"That sucked," Dawson said. "It just wasn't fun."

She said it was really cold outside that day and the platform was soaked with rain, making it slippery. Dawson added it hurt when you landed after jumping from one platform to the other.

In the final stunt, before Dawson was eliminated, she had to sit in a glass case as she was covered in raw cow intestines. After being covered in the foul mess, she had to bite into the intestines, suck out the juices inside, spit it into a cup to a certain level and then drink the chunky liquid.

The person that did this in the fastest time won.

Dawson said she really didn't mind eating the intestines and even professed her excitement for this stunt. However, she did say it was disgusting to be covered with the innards because they were warm and "waxy."

She added it smelled like a cross between kitty litter and cooking meat.

Despite her enthusiasm for this event, she was eliminated because she was just a bit slower than the others. Dawson said she knows Mower was very shaken up by the event beforehand, and believes that she just wanted it over so bad that she completed it very fast.

While she had a good time doing the stunts, Dawson said she was left with reminders of it. She has a scar on the back of her leg from the helicopter stunt and had many other bruises and scrapes.

Because the filming was in November and the actual show was not until February, Dawson said she was under contract to keep quiet about the whole ordeal.

"My parents knew nothing. No one knew anything," she said. "It is just more fun to have everybody not know."

But, Dawson said this will be a one time event for her.

"I would not do it again. Everyday you are nervous so much; you don't know if you should eat lunch because you don't know if they will make you eat something," she said. "It was great to do once."

Dawson has since graduated from the University of Michigan and is living in Los Angeles, Calif. where she is looking for a job. She is planning on returning to Charlevoix in June to continue sailing for Sunshine Charters.

Lent has ancient roots for Christians

By Father Tom Neis
of St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix

Beacons of Blessing

With the promulgation of the Edict of Constantine in the year 313 AD, the Romans granted freedom of religion to all its people. The persecution of Christians ended. People were now free to seek entry into the church without fear of being martyred.

But this presented a new challenge to the church: How could it best offer spiritual formation to so great a number of prospective converts to Christianity? Its response was to develop a whole series of ascetical disciplines (such as, "Take up your cross daily and follow me...") as well as ritual and catechetical education (such as, "Take and eat, this is my body") for full initiation and committed membership.

The Sunday assembly expanded to weekdays to help form the faith of those to be baptized. The entire local assembly gathered to help in the formation of the prospective converts; to renew their own faith; and to seek reconciliation for not living the Christian life as well as they could have for their personal sin against God or neighbor.

Public and/or private penances of wearing sackcloth and ashes became a common occurrence during the 40 days prior to the Easter baptisms.

From the very beginning then, Baptism has been at the heart of the Lenten lectionary of Scripture readings; for instruction in the Christian way of life for converts, and for a renewal of the long ago baptism commitment of veteran Christians. All of us who claim to be Christian need to spend this Lenten season in reflecting on our own Baptism: What can I do to make it more effective in our relationship with our God, our neighbors and our community?

Jesus Christ tells us of the need for prayer, fasting and almsgiving for those would be his disciples. Why not "kick it up another notch" as Emeril says? It can lead one to gentleness of heart, poverty of spirit and simplicity of life.

Obituaries

Betty Jane McCoy McKeown: June 6, 1918 - Feb. 10, 2004

Betty Jane McCoy McKeown, 85, of Zanesville, Ohio, died Tuesday, Feb. 10, 2004, at Genesis Extended Care Rehab Center, after a lengthy illness.

She was born Thursday, June 6, 1918, in Zanesville, Ohio, the daughter of the late Daisy Debolt Howard McCoy and James Gradan McCoy. She was married to Donald Glenn McKeown, who died on Oct. 3, 1999.

She was a member of Grace United Methodist Church, a graduate of Lash High School and the Good Samaritan School of Nursing, class of 1939. She retired from Good Samaritan Hospital in 1980, after 41 years of service as night superintendent and nurse in charge of surgery.

She was a member of the Good Samaritan Nurses Alumni Association.

She is survived by a son and daughter-in-law, Patrick J. Sr. and Barbara Jane McKeown of Charlevoix; a granddaughter, Kerry Bridgett (Peter) Zahner of Charlevoix; two grandsons, Patrick John McKeown Jr. of Charlevoix and Donald Roarke McKeown of St. Clair Shores; and four great grandchildren.

In addition to her parents and husband, she was preceded in death by a son, Sean McKeown; and a sister, Margaret Schneider.

Services were on Feb. 13, 2004, at Grace United Methodist Church, with the Rev. Jim Sands officiating. Burial will be at Memorial Park Cemetery.

Arrangements were handled by the Hillis & Hardwick Funeral Home. Send a personal condolence note or sign the on line register book at www.hillishardwickfh.com.

Richard C. "Big" Bergmann, 85, of Charlevoix, died Sunday, Feb. 22, 2004, at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

He was born August 9, 1918, in Charlevoix, the son of Fred and Sybel (Cook) Bergmann. He was a 1938 graduate of Charlevoix High School where he was all-state in track and held the school's high jump record for over 30 years and was a starting guard for the 1938 Charlevoix state runner-up basketball team. He served in the U.S. Air Force during World War II, with the photography corps in India.

After the war he spent some time in Florida, captaining a luxury fishing boat. He attended Detroit Barber College and then returned home where he was a barber for over 50 years.

Big was an avid hunter and fisherman. He also enjoyed golfing, bowling and was an avid Rayder basketball and football fan.

He married Mary Lucina Richardson Dec. 31, 1940, in Charlevoix and she preceded him in death on August 17, 2000.

Big was a loving father and grandfather and is survived by his son Bob of Charlevoix; grandchildren, Andrea and Ryan of Charlevoix, and Aimée of Boyne City; great-grandson, Jayden; brothers, Wilhelm, Alfred, and Charles all of Charlevoix; sisters-in-law, Rose and Maxine of Charlevoix; and several nieces and nephews. Big was also preceded in death by an infant daughter, Katherine, and his brothers, George, Frederick "Ted," Robert "Bud," and Eugene.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to the Charlevoix Area Hospital. Friends may meet the family at the Winchester Funeral Home from 7 until 9 p.m., Thursday, Feb. 26.

How to get your event news into the Courier

If you have a news item you think would be perfect for the Charlevoix Courier, feel free to call 547-6558, e-mail charlevoixcourier@charlevoixcourier.com or visit the Courier office located at 112 Mason Street in downtown Charlevoix.

News items include events sponsored by non-profit organizations. Please inform us of your event at least two weeks in advance.

Our coverage area is the city of Charlevoix and its immediately surrounding areas, including Beaver Island. Because of space limitations in the newspaper, we generally try to avoid publishing "check-handing" pictures or "ribbon-cutting" pictures. However, we will work with your organization to get a picture that reflects the event and is visually interesting to our readers.

Due to time constraints on the staff, we cannot attend every event we are notified of. If you have a picture of your event, we will gladly consider it for publication. But, please, contact us before your event.

Each story and picture is dealt with on its individual merits. Any policies outlined above may be suspended by the editor or general manager of the Charlevoix Courier if necessary.

Performing arts take second

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Charlevoix High School performing arts students took second place at the state finals competition and are now gearing up to perform this weekend.

"They are disappointed they didn't get first, but being second place in the state (for Class C and D schools) is great," director Beth Sherman, said.

The 35 students, including actors and technicians, competed against 13 other schools Feb. 20 and 21 in Auburn Hills after almost a decade long dry spell without an appearance at that competition.

"This was the best performance the kids have done with this show to date. There were no glitches whatsoever," Sherman said. "I couldn't have been more proud."

The show they did at the competition was a 45 minute excerpt from their winter musical, "The Sound of Music."

In making their decision, the judges looked at costuming, sets, acting, music, the flow of the show and the performers' ability to capture the audience.

Aside from the second place seal of approval from the judges, individual awards were also given. These went to Adam Wager, Amanda Locke and Cody Bradley for excellence in acting and to Adam Richards and Locke for excellence in program.

Sherman said she was proud to see the students overcome the challenge of learning from a new director. She is the daughter of Connie Ford, who is the director of the program at the high school. Ford stepped down to an assistant role in order to address an illness in the family.

Leadership for the group also came from volunteers, including Steve Kantola and Don Niedert.

With the state competition behind them, Sherman said the students, who have been practicing nonstop for two months, are taking a short breather before they head back into the auditorium to practice for this weekend's community shows.

The performance is a two hour musical centered around the Von Trapp family which includes six children and their father, a captain in the Navy. A caretaker, Maria Rainer joins the family of seven and brings music, life and love back into the home.

The students will tell the story with about 15 songs intermixed with dialog.

Sherman said the audience is in for a treat.

"I think they'll like how they feel when they leave the auditorium. I think they'll be amazed at the kids," Sherman said.

Tickets are $6.50 for adults and $4 for students and seniors. They are available at the high school office from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m., now through Friday or at the door the day of the show.

Shows will take place at 7 p.m., Feb. 28 and 2:30 p.m., Feb. 29 at Charlevoix High School located off Marion Center Road.

The trip to Auburn Hills and costume and set expenses for this show pushed the program over budget.

On March 8 the students plan to serve pizzas at Mancino's in Petoskey to help make up the shortfall. Donations to the program are also being requested.

To donate call the school at 547-3222.

Coast Guard gives ice rescue and safety tips

Crew members at the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station gave an ice rescue demonstration Thursday on Lake Charlevoix. While they advise people should just stay off of the ice, they gave tips on what to do if you go through the ice. (Above) A coastguardman shows a homemade ice pick that can be used to pull yourself out if you fall through. (Right) People on the ice should also bring along a pole to test ice stregth and to use as a support if they are in the water. (Below right) Coastguardsman Joe Knox falls through the ice in a simulation.

Developer has dealt with Wal-Mart before

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Dorian Lange knows first-hand what discount retailers like Wal-Mart can do to a community.

Dorian Lange

Lange, a Charlevoix developer currently working on a major combined use project near the Charlevoix Country Club, said he used to own a chain of 21 pharmacies around the midwest. But, they couldn't survive the onslaught of Wal-Mart.

"When they came to town, business dropped 50 percent in 30 days. Eventually we went out of business," he said. "Wal-Mart is not a good friend of small business."

Lange said he was forced to close some of them and sell the others to larger chain pharmacies that could take on Wal-Mart. He said it took about two years for all of his pharmacies to close.

"They (Wal-Mart) even tried to buy my store; to shut the competition down," he said. "I would describe them at best as a predator."

Because of this, Lange said he is fearful for Charlevoix's future.

"You look at the type of small business Charlevoix has. I think it is immensely problematic for those types of business," he said. "I think it will impact the small grocery stores. I don't think they will be able to compete and they will probably shut down."

Lange added there will also be more empty store fronts in downtown Charlevoix as a result.

As for his own development project, Lange said he is unsure what Wal-Mart's plans will do to it.

While he said it will probably have some impact on his future business, plus businesses that are planning locating in the development have expressed their concerns to him, Lange said he does not plan on making any changes to it.

Lange's development is over 7 acres in Charlevoix and Hayes townships and will have a hotel, assisted living, retail space and condominiums. Work has already started on the hotel.

He added he is also confused as to why Wal-Mart would even be interested in Charlevoix.

"I don't understand the logic. If people in Charlevoix want to go to Wal-Mart, it is a half-hour drive. It seems like Wal-Mart will be pirating from themselves," he said.

As for that Petoskey store, Roy Pulaski, owner/pharmacist at The Chemist Shop in Petoskey — a business that has been in town since 1968 — said the Wal-Mart supercenter has eroded the front-end of his business, but not the pharmacy itself.

He said he still has customers coming in. Pulaski added it may be the service he gives them that may make the difference.

In Charlevoix, John Ochs, owner/pharmacist at Central Drugs — a business that has been in Charlevoix since 1897, said he believes Wal-Mart will have a major impact on his business, as well as the rest of Charlevoix.

"I would rather not see it. I don't think it's going to be good for Charlevoix," he said.

Ochs said according to information he has read in trade journals, Wal-Mart sometimes sells drugs for less than cost to get some of the business away from other pharmacies.

Ochs said his price is already pretty competitive and he offers customers personal service.

As for the future, Ochs said, "I am hoping pretty much we will maintain our customer base. I haven't heard much about Wal-Mart from customers, but what I have heard is they don't think it's good."

Wal-Mart is proposing to build a 157,400 square foot supercenter on US-31, near Marion Center and Stover roads.

In contrast, the Charlevoix High School on Marion Center Road is about 132,000 square feet.

In previous interviews, Wal-Mart officials said they would like to have the store open in 2005.

A formal site plan review for the Wal-Mart supercenter is being scheduled for April 21 before the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission.

DDA discusses giving public library money

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Charlevoix's Downtown Development Authority (DDA) has said it will fund part of the new Charlevoix Public Library project, but didn't pin down a dollar amount to pledge.

Library director Valerie Meyerson presented the library's plan and made a request for funding to the DDA Feb. 23.

The new library proposal looks to renovate and add on to the former Charlevoix Middle School off Grant Street. The proposed brick facility is about 24,000 square feet, with all its main functions on the first floor.

This primary floor will include small additions, totaling just under 4,000 square feet of space — one will house the program room and the other, a children's activity room.

The facility will offer adult, children's and teen collections as well as a popular reading room, quiet reading areas, a self check out, a staffed circulation desk and outdoor landscaped plazas.

Meyerson told the DDA that the library is currently in the fundraising stage of this $7.3 million renovation and expansion project. She said their aim is to establish a broad base of funding including grants, donations, a millage and ideally a DDA pledge.

In a funding feasibility study the library did in conjunction with consultants from Monaghan Associates of Grand Rapids, it was established that the library group should shoot for around $1 million in donations.

This leaves a little over $6 million to be made up from the other three potential funding sources.

Monaghan representatives reported nervousness from some of the 43 people interviewed for the study about passing a millage without support for the project from a government entity. In those discussions, the DDA came up frequently as a possible source of funding.

At Monday night's meeting, everyone on the DDA supported helping the library out, but how much and when were major questions that weren't answered.

Mayor Gabe Campbell, who is also a member of the DDA, said the authority's support of the project is a natural fit.

In 2002 the DDA expanded its boundaries to include the old middle school property. It did this in order to buy the property and save it from sale to developers. The purchase of the property bought the library some time and secured three of the 13 lots for possible use by the city for marina parking.

The plan is for the library to buy 10 of those lots from the city for $488,460 if voters pass a bond issue on June 14. If that bond doesn't pass, the DDA has discussed having to sell the property which would likely end up in the hands of a private developer.

Meyerson recognized their efforts so far.

"We would certainly not be where we are today if not for you," she said.

Meyerson said the DDA's continued support is crucial in solidifying the public's trust in this project and getting that bond passed this spring.

DDA member Jeff Porter agreed and said that a contribution in the neighborhood of $500,000 coupled with grants and a successful $1 million fundraising effort could reduce the bond request by about 35 percent.

"We are interested in saving this building and having the library downtown. It's to our benefit to help the library," he said

There was support from members of the DDA to give the library somewhere in the neighborhood of $500,000 for the project. But major questions like when and how that money could be given loom.

City manger Mike Wiesner prepared information with two hypothetical situations. In option one, the DDA sells the library the building and doesn't help out. This left the DDA with about $600,000 in 2008-2009 doing no other projects except the marina and East Park renovation.

The Michigan Waterways Commission has committed to fund 75 percent, or $6.8 million, of the city of Charlevoix's marina renovation project. This leaves 25 percent, or $3.8 million, for the community to come up with.

Wiesner has said the DDA could, in conjunction with proceeds from the marina, fund the project. He anticipates the marina bringing in about $100,000 a year and the debt will cost between $242,000 and $310,000 a year for 15 to 20 years.

But if the DDA were to hand the school over to the library it would have about $6,000 in its account in 2008-2009 and doing no other projects beyond the marina and park.

The numbers didn't derail Porter who said now is the time to support the library.

"Those are important (East Park and marina projects) but I don't see them being funded by the state of Michigan this year or next year. This project is at our doorstep right now," he said.

But DDA chairman Hugh Mason had a more conservative outlook.

"We would like to help them, it's just a question of how," he said.

Ideas that were batted around included supporting the library with about $500,000 given over time.

Meyerson plans to get with the library's financial consultant to see what extended help from the DDA would do to the bond request. The highest bond request voters may have to decide would be for .75 mills for 20 years for construction of the facility and .65 mills to cover operational expenses for that same period.

> "We are interested in saving this building and having the library downtown. It's to our benefit to help the library."

> Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority member

The DDA plans to review its options and meet again to decide its direction.

Meyerson said she hopes that meeting is some time soon. Grants the library is applying for are being held up pending that decision and ballot language is due in March for the millage request.

"I'm hoping they'll come up with a big chunk now and do something long term," she said.

Historical industries

The Charlevoix Historical Society will present a program on Charlevoix's Historic Industries" with an emphasis on those that at one time made Charlevoix a major economic force in northern Michigan at 7 p.m., Tuesday, March 2 at the Depot Museum located at Depot Beach at the end of Dixon Avenue. The speaker will be David L. Miles who will cover fishing, lumbering, ice cutting, the Sugar Beet factory, the Ferry Seed Company, Foster Boat Works, Charlevoix's first cement plant (not at South Point) and the construction of the Big Rock nuclear power plant. He will present photos of businesses that have never been shown before.

Charlevoix was perfectly situated for the exploitation of fishing, lumbering, ice cutting and Miles will show how the first depended upon the others to make Charlevoix, in the early Twentieth century, the largest fish exporter on the Great Lakes. This presentation is open to the puhlic, there is no admission charge and light refreshments will be served. For more information, call 547-0373.

French food

Members of Charlevoix High School's French III and IV classes were guests of Suzanne and Pram Acharya at L'Esperance in Charlevoix, where the students were treated to French cheeses and other delights. Recently, several Charelvoix High School French students were invited to taste and learn about a variety of foods made in France or in the style of the French at their market and café. The Acharyas offered their extensive knowledge of food in general and French foods in particular, while the students tried various cheeses, an example of regional sausage and other wonderful "amuse-bouches."

Castle to host small venue musical acts

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Concerts will make their comeback at Castle Farms this year, but acts like rocker Ozzy Osbourne — who shook the facility's stone walls in the 1980s — will have to look for another venue.

Inspectors with the Charlevoix County Building Department were at Castle Farms Feb. 12 meeting with renovation designers and builder Larry Shawn. They looked at fire separation and electrical issues associated with the $3 million renovation currently underway.

According to Nelson Fletcher, an inspector with building department, there was discussion of a temporary stage being accommodated with the project.

He said the electrical service at the site, located off M-66, is large enough to handle a performance.

Marion Township Zoning Administrator Bob Drebenstedt said the service is enough to power the whole Charlevoix County Building and he questions the caliber of concert they'll host with that kind of capability.

Drebenstedt lives close to the Castle and said he remembers a summer afternoon when former Castle owner Art Reibel was running the operation and rock legend Ted Nugent was playing. He said he was hlasted back inside his house and the windows shook.

"I don't want that again. I know the whole neighborhood would come unglued (if rock concerts came back)," he said. "I hope they (Castle owners Linda and Richard Mueller) keep thinking of the neighbors."

Drebenstedt discussed the revival of concerts at the Castle with the township board and neighbors. From the township's standpoint he found there was nothing that can be done if the crowd is kept under 2,000 people.

While Drebenstedt is getting his ducks in a row to fight the concert comehack, general manager of the Castle, Richard Mueller, said there isn't anything to worry about.

Mueller explained that the design being pursued in the latest renovation has pavilion wings that stretch out around the property's central courtyard area. He said these wings make it impossible to accommodate more than 1,500 people at any concert.

"That's why Art Reibel ripped down those wings," Mueller said.

He added that not only is there not enough room, hut he and his wife Linda plan to continue their neighborly approach by limiting musical events to early start times.

The acts they are planning on using the portahle stage for, include this summer's Symphony on the Green featuring the Jimmy Dorsey Orchestra. The symphony event will be July 9.

"They are talking ahout Ozzy Osbourne and we are talking about Jimmy Dorsey," Mueller said.

While Drebenstedt would prefer to not be blasted by screeching guitars he said he is also concerned with the volume of any performance.

Mueller said he doesn't expect people off the Castle grounds to hear the shows.

Drebenstedt said he'll believe it when he doesn't hear it.

The Muellers are currently planning shows in conjunction with the Venetian Festival and are considering hosting acts that include the Newsboys and the Young Americans.

The Castle has also booked 30 weddings for 2004 and numerous summer events including an antique show and craft fair.

They are planning an open house at the end of May to celebrate the improvements they have made over the past year.

The renovation will expand their event space to accommodate 900 people year-round in one covered area and will offer families a unique destination.

To do this they are adding 29,000 square feet of space by renovating the old cattle barn, the large building facing M-66 that used to have a concert stage attached to it. The full restoration of this "barn" will include heating and cooling, the addition of restrooms and two elevators.

The additional square footage also includes the wings Mueller described which are newly constructed pavilions. These wings, along with the courtyard area in between them, will be home to a family activities center.

The major expansion also includes the addition of three gazebo style chapels and a landscaping makeover.

Students raising money for indoor skate park

shifting the model and discussing everything from a skate shop to a snack bar and pay phones they were satisfied.

Now, they have to find a way to fund the over $200,000 project.

Vickie Daman, Zeke's mom, who is the parent coordinator for the group, said each quarter pipe costs over $6,000 and stairs about $1,500. She estimated equipment for rentals at $58,000.

"I know this sounds like a lot of money, but we can do it," she said.

Vickie said they are looking to start construction of the facility this summer and are hoping someone will donate the building or property as a tax write off. She estimated the project requiring about an acre of land.

"There are a lot of empty buildings downtown. Wouldn't this be a wonderful donation to the children of Charlevoix," she said.

The group has applied for a $10,000 grant from the retail store American Eagle Outfitters and could possibly get another $1,400 for equipment. They will hear back in April.

Interested skaters aim to raise about $16,000 at an upcoming skate-a-thon where the kids will take pledges to skate. They are currently looking for a hig empty building with a concrete floor to host the event.

So far, the skate park effort has been supported by Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce president Jacqueline Merta and Charlevoix City Police Chief Dennis Halverson.

Vickie said both Merta and Halverson feel the supervised facility would be safer and she agrees.

"I would rather have my son in a well-built facility than down by the docks or by the street," she said.

Charlevoix's pursuit of a safe, appropriate place for skateboarding is the same aim that four years ago prompted Traverse City to build a skate park at the Grand Traverse County Civic Center.

According to Tim Schreiner, director of the Grand Traverse County Parks and Recreation Department, the project cost about $400,000.

The Traverse City park is outdoors and required about $150,000 in landscaping, benches and excavation. The remaining $250,000 was the cost of the concrete.

It includes 25,000 square feet of space with about 15,000 square feet of concrete skating area.

They did not charge for use in the first two years, but found problems with people hanging out and not skating. They changed their policy in 2002 charging for entry, requiring helmets and hiring a supervisor.

Plans for the Charlevoix park include an admission fee, a helmet requirement and staffing.

In Traverse City user fees bring in about $13,000 which goes back into the program.

Schreiner said the facility is well-used.

"This little gem cost a few dollars to build and it's held up well," he said.

For information on the Charlevoix group's drive to bring a skate park to town or to donate, visit www.planner.eskal8.org.

Volunteers are needed to continue the skate park effort. To sign up or to offer a space for the skate-a-thon call Vickie at 547-8063.

A Tiger fan's fantasy

Midget team faces Traverse, Mackinaw

Boyne Area Hockey's Paul Bunyan Lanes Midget team went 1-1-1 this past weekend.

On Feb. 20 they played in Traverse City and glided to a 5-0 win. Goalie Nick Ferree earned the shutout. Assists were credited to Eli Barsy, JP Fiedorek, Stephen Cahoon, Josh Aown, Bobby Courtright and Ryan Fields.

Goals were scored by Cody Webster, Fields, Fiedorek, Aown, and William Brown.

On Feb. 22 they hosted Mackinaw City. Boyne jumped to an early 2-0 lead in the first period, scored by Barsy, assisted by Britt King and Fields; and Justin Conklin from a pass from Russell Williams.

Mackinaw owned the scoring in the next two periods and took the game 2-6. Ferree was between the pipes.

In their second game, Boyne took the lead again. Barsy hit the net with assists from Conklin and King, and Conklin scored from Barsy's pass.

Mackinaw scored the lone goal in the second period, and with 50 seconds left, scored after pulling their goalie to give a 6-5 man advantage, to tie 2-2. Both teams put 22 shots on net. Ferree was in goal for Boyne.

Rayders take part in state ski finals at Boyne Monday

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Three Charlevoix High School students made some impressive runs at the state ski finals Monday on Boyne Mountain.

Margaux Rowley, Taylor Fisher and York Smith all went to the state finals as individual competitors for the school. Rowley and Smith ended the day with medals in both the giant slalom and the slalom.

"I was very pleased with the results out of all three kids," Coach Sue Miller said. "It was a good way for them to finish off their high school skiing career."

All three students are seniors this year.

Miller added the conditions on Monday were challenging due to a winter storm.

"At a state meet you want it to be fair and perfect for all the kids," she said.

However, Mother Nature had something else in mind as she dumped several inches of wet, heavy snow onto the course.

Rowley places fifth in the girls' slalom, with a time of 1 minute, 7.74 seconds. She also finished eight in the giant slalom with a time of 1 minute. 56 seconds.

Smith finished seventh in the boys' slalom with a time of 1 minute, 3.58 seconds. He also finished sixth in the giant slalom with a time of 1 minute.

Fisher finished thirteenth in the boys' slalom, with a time of 1 minute, 6.30 seconds.

Basketball team hangs on for win against tough Harbor Springs team

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports Writer

The Rayder nation survived another scare last Friday as Jared Hunts three-pointer with less than a minute to go in the game gave Charlevoix the lead for good in a 74-70 win at Harbor Springs.

"Jared really stepped up and hit a big shot for us," coach Keith Haske said. "For a while there we were tentative and it didn't look like anyone wanted to shoot it."

The Rayders, ranked third in the state in Class C by the Associated Press, upped their record to 14-2 overall and 10-1 in the Lake Michigan Conference.

"I told the team after the game that to be not at their best, on the road and still find a way to win was the mark of a good team," Haske said. "I felt real good about that."

Charlevoix led 24-19 after the first quarter and 43-32 at the half before Harbor Springs rallied.

"Harbor played real well in the second half," Haske added. "Their track record has been that anytime they hit a bunch of threes they'll be in any game. And they made quite a few against us."

The Rams cut the lead to 60-55 headed into the final stanza. They held a 70-69 advantage before Hunts clutch basket.

"We really struggled to put the ball in the hole there for about 5 minutes down the stretch and let them stay in it," Haske said.

Hunt led the Rayders with 22 points. Ryan DeYoung scored 18. Scott Friske had 15 points, 15 rebounds and four assists Kyle Kramer grabbed six rebounds.

Charlevoix faced a tough Grayling squad at home on Tuesday, Feb. 24 but results were unavailable at press time.

Wins by Charlevoix and Traverse City St. Francis on Feb. 24 would set up a showdown Friday night in Charlevoix as the Rayders and Gladiators meet in a game that will likely decide the conference title as both teams have lost only once in the conference.

Charlevoix's loss was by forfeit to Boyne City while St. Francis lost to Charlevoix in Traverse City in the teams other meeting this season.

Stingrays compete against Harbor Springs

'What we once enjoyed and deeply loved
we can never lose, for all that we love deeply becomes part of us.'

~ Helen Keller ~

Topper Carey

LEGAL NOTICE 210

MORTGAGE SALE

THIS FIRM IS A DEBT COLLECTOR ATTEMPTING TO COLLECT A DEBT. ANY INFORMATION OBTAINED WILL BE USED FOR THAT PURPOSE.

Notice is hereby given that Default has occurred in a Mortgage given by Robert R. Graves and Linda T. Graves, husband and wife, mortgagors, to Independent Mortgage Co. Central MI, mortgagee. The Mortgage is dated October 3, 2000, and was recorded on October 6, 2000, in Liber 398 on pages 393 through 399 of the Charlevoix County records. The balance owing on the Mortgage as of the date of this Notice is $9,437.09, including interest at 9% per year variable. The Mortgage contains a power sale clause and no proceedings have been instituted to recover any part of the debt owing.

The Mortgage will be foreclosed by selling the property described below at a public auction to the highest bidder. The sale will be held on Friday, March 26, 2004, at 11:00 a.m. local time at the main entrance to the Charlevoix County Court Facility, 301 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720, that being the place of holding Circuit Court for Charlevoix County, Michigan. The property will be sold to pay the amount then due on the Mortgage, including interest, legal costs, attorney fees and any taxes or insurance which may be paid by the mortgagee before the sale.

The property to be sold is located in the Township of Peaine, County of Charlevoix, Michigan and is described as:

The East 1/2 of the West 1/2 of the Southeast 1/4, Section 4, Town 38 North, Range 10 West.

The redemption period will expire twelve (12) months from the date of sale.

Dated: February 17, 2004

Area events

Travel soccer

There is a new 4-H Travel Soccer for grades 5-8 (U-11 to U14) boys and girls information meeting and sign-up at 7 p.m., Feb. 19 in the cafeteria at the Charlevoix Middle School. This meeting is for parents and players. The cost is $45. Please bring a copy of player's birth certificate. Commitment to traveling Saturday (girls) and Sundays (boys) is a must. Formation of a team is dependent on having enough players and a coach. For more information, please call Sherry at 881-2456 or Ron at 547-6592.

Bake sale

The Charlevoix Area Hospital employee staff will have a bake sale from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., on Thursday, Feb. 26, in administration. Proceeds from this sale are to be donated to Carol Heeres, nurse assistant, who has recently been stricken with a serious illness.

Library meeting

The Charlevoix Public Library Board of Trustees scheduled a special meeting at 4 p.m., on Thursday, Feb. 26, in the library basement at 109 Clinton Street. Discussion topic is the general financing of the new facility.

Senator Jason Allen will be in Charlevoix from 3 to 4 p.m., on Friday, Feb. 27, at the City of Charlevoix temporary offices (the old post office building) at 109 Mason Street. This time is open to the public for residents to speak personally with Allen on issues they feel are important. For more information call Allen's office at (866) 525-5637.

Land use discussion

The Bay Township Planning Commission is in the process of rewriting and updating its Land Use Plan. As part of this process, Dr. Chris Grobbel, Land Program Director of Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council will be reviewing recent population trends for Bay Township at the March 2 meeting. The meeting will take place at 7 p.m. in the Bay Township Hall. The public is encouraged to attend to learn with the Planning Commission information regarding trends based on the 2000 federal census on population changes, economic, employment, permanent and seasonal housing for Bay and surrounding townships. This presentation is part of a year long process and public input and understanding is important to the process.

Sensational Sessions

The Charlevoix Area Zonta Club is presenting Sensational Sessions for 2004 with registration from 8 to 8:45 a.m. Saturday, March 6, at the First Congregation Church of Charlevoix located at 101 State Street. The workshops are from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Topics available touch on crafts, growth, health and relaxation. There is aromatherapy with kitchen witches, making your own earrings, glass painting, hand quilting, soap making, how to make greeting cards, pine cone wreaths, dying, trigger point massage, wire wrapping, yo yo's and more. Sign up early for $18 or the cost is $20 on the day of the workshops. For registration or additional information please call Helen at 547-2955 or Linda 547-4109.

Music grants

The Northern Michigan Chorale is announcing the availability of vocal music grants for summer music study. These grants are for anyone of high school age or older in Emmet and Charlevoix counties.

Letters of application are due by Friday, April 2 and should include name, address and telephone number. Also, specify the planned use for the grant, such as vocal lessons or music camp assistance. High school applicants should provide a letter of recommendation from their music instructor.

Auditions will take place on Monday, April 26. Applicants will be notified of time and place. Successful applicants will be invited to perform in the Northern Michigan Chorale fall or spring concerts.

Send letter of application to the Northern Michigan Chorale, P.O. Box 51, Petoskey, MI 49770.

Scholarship

Michigan Association of Retired School Personnel (MARSP) is again offering two $500 scholarships to any accredited trade or vocation education school or program.

Students need to obtain information from their High School Counselor and apply by April 15.

The recipients will be selected by the MARSP Scholarship Committee by May 1. This Committee includes a representative from each of the four Charlevoix County High Schools. Students will be informed by May 15.

The Early Family Memorial Scholarship will contribute additional funds.

Trophy case

Charlevoix High School is in the process of finishing their new trophy display cases in the commons area outside the gymnasium. The trophy area is near completion, and now the school is asking for community assistance to complete the next phase.

A Hall of Fame for All-state athletes is being constructed along the North/South hallway, opposite the gymnasium. All athletes, who achieved all-state status in their sports at Charlevoix High School, are asked to send a 2-inch-by-3-inch senior picture along with the year(s) All-state status was accomplished, the sport(s) and a correct spelling of their name. Additionally, if an athlete was a state champion, please send a 5-inch-by-7-inch picture. Only one picture is needed even if All-state status was achieved in more than one sport. Please include a contact person and phone number if there is a question about the information sent.

'Hawk' Sustains Severe Damage

Clair Webster, Owner, and Son Escape Injury

The "Hawk", 40-foot boat, owned by Clair Webster, was severely damaged and Mr. Webster and son, Bud, narrowly escaped serious injury when the boat was caught in the ice in Lake Charlevoix, off the Belvedere club about noon Saturday, Mr. Webster was taking the boat from its winter mooring, in Old River, to the Foster Boat dock through a large opening in the ice when the wind came up suddenly out of the east, crowding the ice fields together and pinning the boat in the crevice about 500 feet off shore.

Mr. Webster and Bud left the boat after it had been pushed toward shore and crawled to safety over 300 feet of porous ice. The ice field sheared the pilot house off the boat and covered it completely. The Coast Guard crew, which had been called to the scene, circled the boat, breaking up the ice and allowing the boat, made buoyant by a 165-gallon gas tank, only partially filled with gas, to come to the surface. It was then towed to the Foster Boat company Marine dock. The hull of the boat, made of Orford cedar, suffered little damage.

Meeting on School plan

The Charlevoix Board of Education called a mass meeting last Friday evening and presented to those present the question of resubmitting the matter of constructing a new school building under the unit system, the construction to include a grade school and gymnasium. After the program was generally presented by H.A. Craig and other members of the School Board and Citizens' Committee, a general discussion was entered into by a great many of citizens present.

Mr. Holmes, of the Warren Holmes, Powers Company, of Lansing, was present at the meeting to inform the people of the methods used in school construction and school furnishings.

It was the desire of the School Board and the Citizens' Committee to lay before the people their proposition without reservations and the vote taken near the close of the meeting showed conclusively that the matter was at this time acceptable to the great majority of those present.

The proposition as presented was a bond issue of $125,000. To be paid serially over a period of fifteen years, and it appears quite probable that this issue can be carried out without a raise over the 1926 taxes.

That is, it is the opinion of the Board and Committee that the surplus at hand together with the said bond issue of $125,000 will construct and maintain the new unit as well as to meet the expense of ordinary cost of repairing the High School and Central building.

The gymnasium, which is included in this program, will be 60 x 122 feet over all, giving us a stage with a depth of twenty feet at the west end and ticket office and entrance lobby at the east end of 12 feet. The inside measurement of the gymnasium will be 60 x 90 feet which will seat approximately twelve hundred people for basketball play and eighteen hundred for conventions. The stage will be utilized for games by construction bleachers and a three row balcony will be included.

The program as outlined contemplates the use of the new grade unit as a consolidated school. We feel that this consolidation together with the saving of monies now being out for the present gym will aid us materially in the maintenance of the new unit.

Many residents of both the north and south sides have expressed themselves as being in favor of the consolidation because of the advantages the new grade unit will have over the ward schools, such as each teacher having a single grade to teach, modern equipment, heating and ventilation as well as improved sanitary conditions. Access to the new gym for gymnastics, dramatics and physical training will also be a feature.

The committee has received opinions and have heard discussion in favor of a larger gymnasium than has been recommended by the Board and Committee, but the matter will be submitted as presented by the Board and Committee at the meeting last Friday night, and as outlined in this article, believing that the program as recommended provides sufficient room for every school need as well as practically every civic need that may arise.

The new grade unit will include 12 grade rooms and a kindergarten.

This unit will represent every modern idea of education used in primary schools such as proper lighting, heating and ventilation. The class rooms will be large and well equipped with modern school furniture such as display cabinets, well ventilated cloak rooms, bulletin boards, recessed book cases and supply cabinets.

The kindergarten room will be extra large and warm for floor games and will be so constructed as to represent a large home living room with fireplace, window seats and special play and study equipment. Separate toilets adjacent to this room will be provided for these little tots.

The School Board will present this problem to the taxpayers as soon as necessary legal steps can be taken; the date to be early in April.

The construction program has been discussed and thoroughly investigated by the School Board and Citizens' Committee and believe that it represents Charlevoix's need of a new fireproof school building - Member Citizens Committee

Golf Course Plan Divided Council Operation As 18-Hole Lay-Out To Be Continued

Mayor Robert Bridge Cast Deciding Vote on Proposal at Monday Night Council Session

The Charlevoix municipal golf course, the former Charlevoix Golf Club course deeded to the city by the Chicago Club of Charlevoix, will continue to be operated as an 18-hole lay-out during the coming summer as the result of action taken Monday night by the city council.

Due to an annual operating deficit resulting from lack of player support by both local and summer residents, a proposal to cut the course to 9 holes was under consideration.

Lacking a recommendation from the golf committee composed of Charles Hamlin, H.A. Craig and Oakley Hammond, the matter of operating policy came to a council vote Monday night after considerable discussion.

Council members split evenly on the motion to continue operating the entire 18 holes, Mayor Robert Bridge voting with Aldermen Harry Hooker, M.A. Levinson and Clarence Wood in the affirmative.

Opposing the proposal were Aldermen Charles Heise, Charles Bellinger and Charles Lamphear.

Action was taken to provide landscaping of the grounds surrounding the new city hall with authorization given the mayor and clerk to enter into a contract with the Charlevoix County Nursery to do the work.

A regular pay roll aggregating $2,857.18 was authorized by the council.

Wal-Mart traffic impact study released

While the proposed store would be located in the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department's jurisdiction, Gibson is concerned that the city police department will often have a car in closer proximity and be called on to address Wal-Mart issues.

She said from keys locked in cars, to bad checks, to shop lifting she is anticipating a burden on the city police and on taxpayers who will pay for the service.

Last week, city manager Mike Wiesner sent a memo to city police chief Dennis Halverson asking him to investigate the issue.

In trying to predict the impact Wal-Mart could have on the city department, Halverson looked at the current situation at Kmart which is located off M-66 in Charlevoix Township, just on the outskirts of the city line.

Halverson said each year the city is called to Kmart about 25 times.

"Our role is more of a support role than a primary role," he said.

In most cases his officers are called there to respond to emergency situations like crimes in progress, occasional medical emergencies and occasional assistance to the sheriff's department with accidents.

He said the city is not involved in investigations like bad checks.

This current approach to Kmart is what Halverson anticipates his department having if Wal-Mart comes to town.

"I don't see it as an overwhelming issue for us," Halverson said. "It will increase in one area our likelihood of getting involved, but I don't think it will be dramatic. But to say the impact will be zero isn't true either."

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater isn't anticipating an overwhelming change in what is required of his department either. And he said the increased calls would not merit the addition of another officer.

Currently, at Kmart, his officers respond to parking lot accidents, a few shoplifting calls, keys locked in vehicles and false burglar alarms after hours.

After checking with Emmet County Sheriff Peter Wallin, Lasater found Petoskey is facing similar issues with its Wal-Mart as Charlevoix has seen with Kmart.

Wallin told Lasater on the plus side Wal-Mart is also supportive of the DARE program.

The only other problem Lasater is anticipating is traffic related. He thinks some changes need to be made to US-31 where Wal-Mart is proposing its main entrance.

When Kmart came to town he suggested to the Michigan Department of Transportation that passing lanes be built. His request was not granted and he said since then there have been traffic problems in that area.

The city is also concerned with traffic issues that may further impact the seasonal congestion problem.

They have hired traffic engineer Rick Lyles of Williamston to study the potential impact of Wal-Mart.

"We have a proposed development that will effect intersections at Marion Center Road and US-31. We are doing our best to make traffic flow the best," Wiesner said.

According to a traffic study conducted for the proposed Wal-Mart supercenter, the business will create 290 new trips during the peak morning hour and 498 total new trips during the peak evening hour.

The plan suggests enterances on Marion Center Road, Stover Road and two enterances on US-31. To alleviate traffic congestion, the plan states a traffic signal should be constructed at the US-31 and main Wal-Mart drive intersection and left and right turn lanes constructed on US-31 and Marion Center Road.

Chamber against Wal-Mart

City may also join fight against Wal-Mart

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor
and by JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce has come out in support of the anti-Wal-Mart group This Is Our Town, Inc. and its fight against the mega-retailer's Charlevoix plans.

On Monday, Charlevoix Chamber President Jacqueline Merta and the chamber board released a statement saying, "...the chamber supports the efforts of chamber members This Is Our Town, Inc. which, in its opposition to the opening of a Wal-Mart in Charlevoix because of the substantial negative impact its research has shown, is acting in what it believes to be the best interest of individual business owners, the community at large and the future of Charlevoix."

In the statement, the chamber explains that it is a non-profit organization formed to act as an "energizing and vitalizing force in the community" and to "service and protect the interests of its members." The statement further says the chamber supports not only the downtown businesses, but all of its members and the community as a whole.

This is part of the reason the chamber decided to take this stand, the statement says.

"It is the hope of the chamber that the chamber, its members and the community work together to keep Charlevoix a safe, viable and beautiful place in which to live, work and visit, knowing that change is inevitable. We also want to reiterate that the best way to assist our members and the community at large is to support them — shop in the stores, purchase locally — support your local businesses and keep the money in the community," the statement says.

Bob Hoffman, president of This Is Our Town, Inc. said he was very happy with the chamber's statement.

"We think that it's wonderful news. It is an appropriate move on their part," he said. "The chamber is responsible to its members and the community."

Hoffman said the group met with the chamber board about two weeks ago and asked them to take a position.

"I wish more organizations would take a stance," he said.

Merta added the chamber board

Library's plan has setback

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

If the Charlevoix Public Library sticks to its plan and relocates to the former Charlevoix Middle School it will lose its current building.

The library has been planning to use money from the sale of its current Clinton Street building to help pay for the new $7.6 million library project.

They had the building appraised at $595,000. This sale along with a successful $1 million fund-raising campaign, a possible donation from Charlevoix's Downtown Development Authority (DDA) and voters passing .75 mills for construction of the facility, would make the project a reality.

But recently the library learned if they leave their current site, ownership of the building reverts to Charlevoix Public Schools.

According to Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools Dr. John Sturock, this issue dates back to 1995 when Proposal A was passed in Michigan. At that time libraries were under the control of school boards. But that proposal mandated that public libraries be their own entity with their own board.

Charlevoix followed suit, established a library board of trustees and began collecting .5 mill for

City discussing new signs for events

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The search for everything from events to public bathrooms may soon be easier in Charlevoix.

At a joint downtown development authority (DDA) and city council meeting Feb. 23 the groups discussed signs announcing off-street businesses, government offices, historic sites and support facilities like restrooms. They also bounced ideas around about banners affixed to light poles to announce events.

Events in town are currently announced by staked banners at the municipal golf course near Mercer Boulevard on the north side of town and at the intersection of M-66 and US-31 on the south side.

City planner Gerry Harsch said changing the announcement method to a banner attached to a light pole with the capability of advertising multiple events would clean up the current situation.

DDA member Jeannine Wallace agreed something needs to be done.

"It's kind of a hodge-podge now, they droop and drape; there's just no rhyme or reason," she said.

The proposed hanners would be attached to a 22 foot light pole, like the green poles that currently exist downtown. They would be located at the golf course and intersection of the highways where the current banners are and on a third site, at Clinton and Bridge streets.

The size of the banner and its location on the pole will be decided after a few trial runs the city plans to do this spring.

The city will also look into the cost of the banners to see whether it would be prohibitive for event groups.

The event banners weren't met with resistance from council and the DDA but the issue of putting in signs to announce businesses off Bridge Street was met with mixed reviews.

City manager Mike Wiesner said that when the recent Belvedere Avenue reconstruction project was underway Cross Fisheries saw increased business because of the sign the city posted at the street's intersection with Bridge Street .

Cross Fisheries has since inquired about the possibility of locating a sign at that intersection. Representatives of the historical museum the Harsha House have also asked about a possible sign posting on Bridge Street to announce their State Street location.

After further investigation by city staff, is was found that installing street signs on Bridge Street was tricky. Bridge Street is a state highway controlled by the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) and under the department's current billboard regulations these business signs are illegal in cities.

Michigan Senator for the 37th District Jason Allen is currently working on legislation to legalize the signs in cities. But regardless of his efforts Charlevoix won't likely implement them here.

Most members of the DDA and council made it clear that they are not interested in advertising private businesses.

"I don't want to see us become a sign city," DDA member Jeff Porter, said. "If people want to be on Bridge Street, rent something on Bridge Street. I think having another 60 signs downtown would be ridiculous."

DDA member Fred DiMartino agreed.

"I would hate to get too much 'signage' taking away from all this beauty," he said.

While DDA member John Taylor made an argument in favor of the signs, claiming they would help vitalize the downtown, the consensus was to stick with civic directional signs.

Signs that were supported by the group were those that direct people to places like city hall, parking lots, the Charlevoix County building, public restrooms, schools, The Harsha House and Charlevoix Public Library.

Bill Pierce a landscape architect based in Lansing designed a Charlevoix logo that could be used on these signs. Harsch said MDOT has signs that are traditionally used in this capacity and he will look into whether or not a custom made sign would fit the department's guidelines. How may signs could be included in the effort and where they will be located has not heen discussed.

To address the business issue off the main drag there was talk of the city and the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce working together to create a business map highlighting locations around town and possibly installing a fixed business map similar to mall guides in Hoop Skirt and Van Pelt alleys.

Be a real fan for March Madness

EDITORIAL

The month of March is upon us.

With March comes the climax of cabin fever, the start of spring and weather that can go from warm to freezing in the snap of a finger. But, March is the month for sports fans, especially those in Charlevoix, as it is time for the annual basketball tournament which ends with the state finals.

It is this time of year when normally reserved Charlevoix residents are seen walking around with maroon and white all over their clothing, with large painted words on their car windows screaming, "Rayder pride," and sometimes with maroon face paint to top off the look. It is no wonder this time of year is called March Madness.

This year's basketball tournament has all the potential of being one of the best yet. The basketball team — just like every other sports team in Charlevoix — is very talented and could go a long way. With this added excitement during a time of year known for snowstorms, mud and thunderstorms, people can go a little over-board every so often.

Therefore, while we wish the Charlevoix Rayders varsity basketball team all the best in the tournaments this year, we want to take a moment to remind the fans to remain calm.

Please remember these words that are spoken at the start of each high school sporting event. "The athletes in the Lake Michigan Conference would like to show their support and commitment to sportsmanship. We understand this to include respect, responsibility and restraint...it is citizenship in action. We ask you as parents, fans and officials to join us in making this a positive experience for all involved."

To keep it positive, remember, just because it is tournament time does not mean you have license to act like a jerk as you cheer on your time. Remember to be humble, but proud. Cheer, but don't insult. And have fun, don't spoil it for others.

Most of all remember that win or loose, this is just a high school sports game, and these student athletes should be proud of their achievements no matter what.

That wonderful liquid that surrounds us daily

'Ear to the ground'

When our home was rebuilt almost 10 years ago a brand-new water meter was installed. Its initial reading was zero and I have noted over the years how much water we use for our household and yard.

The meter is rapidly creeping up on a half million gallons, and will reach that figure before summer. It has been kind of like watching the odometer on an older automobile approach that place where all the numbers return to zero as the vehicle crosses 100,000 miles. The idea that we have used a half-million gallons of Charlevoix water is pretty startling to me and caused me to think about the place of water in our lives.

This is clearly the season for deep thoughts about water. Snow is not like summer rain that is with us for at most a few minutes before it disappears into the earth or down the storm sewer. In winter the water stays around to be admired. Snow is after all just water that has not yet run downhill.

All that hard-to-move snow will finally dribble into the ground and much will eventually find its way into our nearby lakes. We can all look forward to swimming and fishing in the snow that now crowds our drives and walks. The water molecules now trapped in lace-like crystals covering our yards will soon be free to fit themselves into us and all the animals and plants around us.

Water is coincident with life on earth and presumably elsewhere. Today there are two remarkable robotic machines wandering the surface of the planet Mars looking for direct evidence that water once flowed over that surface. If they find water or evidence of its presence there is good reason to suppose that some sort of life was there as well.

We are in a remarkable place to appreciate the significance of water and it persists because of the ready availability of water in all its summer and winter forms.

I wondered exactly how much water the half-million gallons we have used is. If as the saying goes, "A pint is a pound, the world around," then that half-million gallons is 4 million pounds of water.

By my calculations that amount of water would cover our house lot with 4.6 feet of water when evenly spread. It would make a pretty good pool for swimming laps. It is also a very small fraction of the water that has fallen as rain or snow on that lot in the years since our water meter was installed. As long as we are receiving as rain and snow, more water than we are using, we will continue to live in a place of beauty.

It is impossible to study the world of nature for long without developing some degree of reverence for life, and for the things around us that make life possible. Water is the preeminent condition for beginning and continuing life.

If we worship at the altar of life to some degree, then water is one of the sacraments. That does not mean we don't use it, drink it, water our lawns, or manufacture things with its use. But maybe we should approach any use with the sort of reverence we normally accord things sacred.

What comes around...

Editor:

I have read with interest all the "Wal-Mart Wants My Job" ads in the Charlevoix Courier as well as in the Petoskey News-Review. This has opened old wounds.

Greed, outsiders and changing times have ruined the old Charlevoix. The attitude of keeping the money in town was customary in old Charlevoix especially if one came from a Charlevoix business family. Shop Charlevoix first. Shop Charlevoix second. Do without, if possible, to keep the money in the Charlevoix community.

In 2004, Wal-Mart is simply working to come to where their market has been coming from in Petoskey and that market includes Charlevoix business people and their employees shopping Wal-Mart. Never mind that gas is now $1.50 per gallon plus.

If my father, Gordon Neff were here today, he could have a photo in the newspaper that would say "Oleson's wanted Neff Brothers jobs." This is true of other hardworking Charlevoix business owners who also went to the wayside with broken dreams for various reasons before they could enjoy the fruits of their labors and reap the benefits of high dollars for their buildings such as the City of Charlevoix paid for the "Warfside" (Neff Brothers) building not too long ago. Neff Brothers was in business 25 years plus.

I stood downtown in front of what was Dahlquist Dime Store, now Clothing Company when the newer name Warfside Building was torn down for East Park. I saw the Neff Brothers advertisement on the park side of the building which had been covered up by the newer owners. It was a very sad day to see the building go. All I could think of was all the foot steps of all of us growing up learning, working years in our family's Spartan Store grocery business, all the fine customers — winter and summer. What wonderful first class training many of us in town had working there and endless memories of a wonderful time in our lives. All was very special. Youngsters who worked at Neff Brothers did well in life. Years later, Neff Brothers' trained worker writes for the Courier.

In the 1950s, the Neff Brothers gave two docks behind the store on Round Lake to the City of Charlevoix as a gift. Gordon Neff ingrained in me, "The city then charged Neff Brothers taxes on the two docks for 17 years." When the error was discovered, "The City of Charlevoix declined reimbursement to the Neff Brothers for the overpaid taxes on the docks." It seems, now that East Park is being completed, the City should furnish a bronze engraved plaque at the foot of Mason Street on the harbor in honor of the Neff Brothers. Bob Neff was also a Charlevoix City Councilman for many years. Neff Brothers contributed community/area wide including always free delivery for groceries.

The pain of Oleson's of Traverse City slipping into Charlevoix and all that happened never left my father, Gordon Neff who later became a well known wood carver of shore birds, collection on display at Charlevoix's Harsha House. In regards to groceries, Glen's arrived later to Charlevoix, Don's IGA.

From what I've observed in recent years, shopping loyalties are not ingrained. It remains to be seen how many of the newer local stores will be closing due to the fallout from Wal-Mart. What goes around, comes around.

The proposed building plans of Wal-Mart will have long lasting effects, Charlevoix. Maybe Wal-Mart can be convinced to build a smaller store to begin and then there will be room for everybody. Thanks.

C. Marilyn Neff Gibbons

Drain Commissioner duties

Editor:

Elected county drain commissioners in Michigan have had written rules for drainage since the late 1960s. The Drain Code of 1956 did not require drain commissioners to write down their rules. The exodus from the cities to rural areas necessitated clearer guidelines for development.

The Land Division Act (Act 288 of 1967 as amended) provided for the establishment of written drainage rules by drain commissioners.

The act required that drainage rules be available in order to provide developers with clear guidelines and to ensure that requirements were the same for everyone. It is the drain commissioner's responsibility to update these rules as law and technologies change. The Charlevoix County Drain Commissioner's rules had not been updated since the 1970s. The Stormwater Runoff Control Design Guidelines of the Charlevoix County Drain Commissioner today reflect mainstream, best management practices that protect Charlevoix County's natural resources, the quality of life and the economy of Charlevoix County.

As the Charlevoix County Drain Commissioner, I have responsibility for two county drains, three historic county drains, 12 subdivision drains, lake levels, hundreds of plats and other duties. My greatest responsibility is to be informed on the best practices that will protect our water resources and to share that information with our citizens. The quality of our lives is dependent on clean beaches, clear lakes and healthy fisheries. The old ways of drainage, which ran the water from the land to the sea as quickly as possible, were expensive and are now beginning to fail. Beach closings, eroded stream banks, loss of fisheries, pollution of groundwater and failed infrastructure have pointed drain commissioners in new directions.

Ultimately, the protection of our resources is dependent on citizens being informed and involved in watershed stewardship.

Joanne Bier Beemon
Charlevoix County Drain Commissioner

Thank you

Editor:

Our four month old German Shepherd was hit in the evening of Thursday, Feb. 26 on a back-country road. Although we did not get a name, my husband and I would like to thank the person who hit him for stopping! There are so many horror stories of hit and runs! It was not this gentleman's fault, but he still stopped.

After a thorough look over at Jensen's Animal Hospital, he had a dislocated elbow which is now in place; he also had some minor cuts and abrasions. He was released Friday afternoon and is doing well.

A sincere Thank you!

Library seeking teens for new advisory group

The Charlevoix Public Library is looking for teens to share their ideas about library services.

The goal of the Teen Advisory Group (TAG) is to include area teens in planning for the current and future library. The library staff wants to know how to make the current library friendlier for teens and help plan the services of the proposed new library.

The library is looking for ideas on books, music and technology.

Two advisory groups will be forming.

The first will involve students in grades 6-8. This group will meet regularly throughout the year. They will be asked to help plan activities like the summer reading program and give suggestions for materials in the collection. Each meeting will highlight a different library service. This group may also be involved in volunteer and social activities.

The second group will involve students in grades 9-12. This will be an electronic advisory group. In lieu of meetings, this group will be sent information on library issues and will be asked to respond via e-mail with their suggestions. Questions about the library collection, the teen space and technology will be asked.

Both groups are an opportunity for local teens to make their voices heard.

"It is a wonderful opportunity to volunteer and take an active part in the future of the public library," Valerie Meyerson, library director, said.

Interested teens should call Meyerson at the library at 547-2651 or Linda Adams at 348-5966 for more information.

Teens can also talk to Mrs. Henne at Charlevoix High School, Mrs. Klinger at Charlevoix Middle School or Mr. Cochran at Northwest Academy. All interested teens will be invited to an orientation meeting in mid-March.

The advisory groups will begin in April.

Area health department passes accreditation criteria

Officials from the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency recently received an unannounced visit from the Community Health Accreditation Program (CHAP), which certifies home health and hospice agencies on a national basis that meet their rigorous quality standards.

"We're delighted with the results of our survey," said Nancy Bottomley, who directs home health and hospice services for the Agency. "Our home care and hospice teams work hard to provide the highest quality of care and it feels great for all of us to continue our CHAP accreditation; their survey is like a big test and we passed with flying colors."

CHAP has certified the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency's home health services since 1967. "Certification" means that the skilled home care services provided in conjunction with physician's orders will be paid by insurers such as Medicare, Medicaid and Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan, according to individual's policies.

Unlike other Medicare health care providers, surveys for certification of home care agencies are unannounced and usually take place every one to three years. The surveys are an intensive process involving review and scrutiny of all aspects of a home care agency, including organizational structure, management ability, policies and procedures, long-term viability, quality control measures and even joint home visits with agency staff.

According to Bottomley, accreditation and certification site visits are only one way of measuring the quality of the health department's home health and hospice programs. For example, surveys completed by clients and family members consistently indicate 95 percent are "very satisfied" or "satisfied."

Home health care brings quality health services to individuals in the privacy of their home and helps them to remain in familiar surroundings. Services including skilled nursing care, speech, physical or occupational therapy and personal care services can be provided to individuals of all ages. The professionals at home health agencies work with the client, his/her family, and the physician to improve health in the quickest and safest way.

A good home health agency will always provide: Evaluation of the patient's health needs by a registered nurse or therapist; development of a plan of care by the nurse or therapist; care provided by qualified health care personnel and assurance that care is treated confidentially.

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is the local health department serving Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego Counties. Its staff are dedicated to preventing disease and injury and promoting healthy communities.

For additional information about home health and hospice services, contact your local health department office toll-free at (800) 551-4140 or (231) 547-6092.

Obituaries

Gordon L. Isaac: Feb. 26, 1940 - Feb. 27, 2004

Gordon L. Isaac, 64, of East Jordan, died Friday, Feb. 27, 2004 at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

He was born February 26, 1940 in Flint, the son of Gordon B. and Angeline (Slama) Isaac.

On Sept. 29, 1962, he married Bonnie Johnson in Flint. They made their home in Millington. Mr. Isaac was employed for 30 years at GM Truck and Bus Flint Assembly and retired in 1995. He moved to East Jordan in 1998.

He was a member of UAW Local 598 in Flint. He enjoyed snowmobiling, fishing, hunting, riding his golf cart through the Jordan Valley and making people laugh.

Surviving are his wife of many years, Bonnie; children, Christine (Donald) Springsteen of Hale, Julie (Philip) Galloway of Mt. Morris, Gunner (Kimberly) Isaac of Charlevoix; six grandchildren, Aaron, Lauryn, Lindsay, Krista, Shelby and Hunter; sisters and brothers, Frances Winslow of Flint, Mary (Dutch) Konoski of Mt. Morris, Frank (Pauline) Isaac of Flushing; sister-in-law Bonnie Isaac of Durand, several nieces and nephews, and many friends, especially Don Peck and his faithful dog Mickey.

He was preceded in death by his daughter Lisa Isaac, his parents, his brother Thomas, and brothers-in-law Larry Winslow and David Johnson.

Cremation has taken place. Memorial services will be at 11 a.m., Thursday, March 4, at Millington Church of God with Pastor Mike Cotrell officiating, and at 11 a.m., Friday, March 5, at First Baptist Church of Charlevoix with Pastor Michael Dennis officiating.

Memorial contributions may be made to Charlevoix Area Hospital for the wonderful care they provided. Arrangements were made by Hastings Funeral Home in Ellsworth.

Students to present bill ideas to lawmakers

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Students from Charlevoix Public Schools are learning that even though they are young they can make a difference in the state of Michigan.

Students in Annmarie Conway's global studies class at the high school, will join students from John Haan's fourth grade class at the elementary school and Doug Drenth's eighth grade social studies class at the middle school for a Michigan Youth Caucus hearing March 5.

Over the past four months the scholars have chosen topics, done research, anticipated questions and built logical arguments to present to state legislators, including 73rd District Representative Doug Hart of Rockford.

"I think it's a great opportunity for the kids to get feedback from legislators who are elected officials. If their ideas take off they could be passed by the House and Senate," Conway said.

Legislators are currently considering a proposal from a Traverse City student to make Yooper an official language and a proposal from elementary students in this area to designate a backpack awareness month.

"A lot of great ideas are coming out of this. They are engaging kids in government and politics and it's a neat thing," Conway said.

Hart is co-chair of the House Civics Commission, which is made up of 24 legislators who hold hearings across the state to better engage kids, to help them understand the legislature and to search out real bill ideas.

Last year, just high school students participated in the hearings, but Conway said this type of exercise is important for all students.

"You have to get anything that is real world like this in there (the curriculum)," she said.

The public is invited to attend the afternoon event which will take place from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., March 5. A small reception will be hosted at 10:30 a.m. to meet the legislators.

For more information about the commission hearings visit, www.civicscommission.com.

Any questions or comments about the event can be directed to Conway at 547-3222, extension 2044.

Rehearsals underway for dinner theater

Rehearsals are well underway for beaver Island's first dinner theater event, "An Evening with Stephen Sondheim," which is scheduled for Saturday, May 8 at Holly Cross Hall on Beaver Island.

The audience will first be treated to a gourmet buffet prepared by island chef Deborah Harwood. The buffet menu will include: Two main courses, salads, potatoes and rice and seasonal vegetables. Beer and wine will be available for an additional cost.

The buffet will begin at 6:30 p.m., the production will start at 8 and at 9 p.m. all will enjoy making their selections at Harwood's special "Venetian Dessert Table."

Co-directors for "An Evening with Stephen Sondheim" are Brenda LeFevre and Elaine West.

The Beaver Island dinner theater production is being financed in part by the Beaver Island Music Fund.

Opera singer Martha Guth and Harwood established the fund last summer with proceeds from the "Summer Solstice Concert and High Tea" at Deerwood Lodge.

The Beaver Island Music Fund is designed to promote musical activities on Beaver Island and proceeds from the dinner theater event will be donated to the Music Fund.

The cast of "An Evening With Stephen Sondheim" includes Jayne Bailey, Melissa Bailey, Phil Becker, Bill Detwiler, Shirley Detwiler, Susie Fisher, Bob Hamel, Brenda LeFevre, Chris McMullen and Elaine West. Pinky Harmon will provide the narration.

Accompanists are Judi Meister and Mike Scripps. The production crew includes: Krys Lyle - artistic coordinator; Bob Hamel- lighting, sound and stage design; and Shirley Detwiler- stage manager.

Seating is limited and reservations a must. Tickets for the dinner theater are $30 per person.

Checks may be made out to: Brenda LeFevre Dinner Theater, and mailed to Brenda LeFevre, P.O. Box 26, Beaver Island, MI 49782.

Arts center Sunday series to continue

The first Sunday Gallery Series continues at 4 p.m. March 7 at the Crooked Tree Arts Center's Edith Gilbert Gallery with a performance of Songs and Madrigals.

Peter Sims leads the "Motley Madrigalists" in a set of English madrigals from the Elizabethan era. The contemporaries of Shakespeare copied Italian madrigals and created an entirely English tradition.

The ensemble will sing "To Shorten Winter's Sadness" and of the plights of poor Phyllis and her [illegible]. The madrigalists will finish with Thomas Morley's famous "Sing We and Chant It."

Eleanor Hill, Greg Hill and Steve Spencer will sing varied selections ranging from Donizetti, Faure and Vaughan Williams, to Sondheim and Broadway favorites, including "Sweeney Todd," the "Beauty and the Beast," and "The Phantom of the Opera."

The concert is free and a reception will follow.

The concert concludes a busy day at the center with the Annual Youth Art Show opening which will be from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m.

For further information contact the Crooked Tree Arts Center at 347-4337 or visit the Web site www.crookedtree.org. The Crooked Tree Arts Center is located at the corner of Mitchell Street and Division in Petoskey.

They are (from left) Joan Nowak, president; Barb Claggett, second vice-president; Anne Marie Barnes, corresponding secretary; Margaret Heath, first vice-president; and Jan Hand, treasurer. Recording Secretary Mary Chavez was not available at the time of the photo. The club has many activities planned for this year including a plant sale on May 29, a garden walk and flower show on July 14, and a bulb sale during AppleFest in the fall. In addition to these special events, members plant and maintain 11 gardens in the area as well as work on many special community projects. Please visit the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce Web site to learn more about the garden club. For more information call 547-1388.

Sheriff: Make sure your house numbers are visible to the road

Sheriff George T. Lasater and Jay Peck of East Jordan E.M.S. advise the law enforcement and emergency medical services need for citizens to make every effort to make sure their numbering signs are visible and clear of snow.

Due to the larger snow banks we currently are experiencing in Charlevoix County, many numbered house signs are covered with snow hindering emergency vehicles from locating a specific residence.

Sheriff Lasater requests homeowners make every effort to clean away snow from their house numbering signs.

City, groups looking at ways to help downtown

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

A planning effort to boost Charlevoix's economic climate started last week.

On Feb. 23 representatives of the city of Charlevoix's staff, city council, downtown development authority, historical preservation group, Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce and local professionals met with two people from the Michigan Economic Development Corporation.

Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce President Jacqueline Merta said the chamber's number one priority is revitalizing the downtown and this meeting was aimed at looking at what options are out there to meet that goal.

Laura Bower, a team specialist with the state development group representing this area, and Steven Willibee, a research analyst, came here from their headquarters in Lansing to talk about what programs they offer communities like Charlevoix.

Bower discussed five ways the corporation can help revitalize the downtown. Interest from those who attended focused on three programs — the Community Development Block Grant Program, the Main Street Program and the Blueprint Program.

Under the Community Development Block Grant Program the corporation gives a community up to $10,000 for each new full-time job that is created when a new business is being developed. This financial assistance is earmarked for infrastructure improvements, like parking lots, in and around the area where a new business is being built.

Through this block grant the corporation will also fund a downtown market study.

However, unlike the Main Street Program and the Blueprint Program, the block grant program doesn't include interaction with other state agencies the Michigan Historical Preservation Office and the Michigan State Housing Development Authority.

Currently Charlevoix is getting a first hand look at the Main Street Program which is underway in Boyne City. In 2003 the development group received 17 applications from communities across the state wanting to sign on for this program. They accepted four of those including Boyne City, Calumet, Portland and Marshall.

With Main Street, the development group pays for about $100,000 in technical assistance which among other things funds market studies and visits from a resource team, the state preservation office and the state housing authority. From this in-depth look at a community's inner workings the development group helps a community form four teams of volunteers to deal with economic restructuring, design, promotions and organization.

Bower said implementing the Main Street Program successfully requires a lot of community involvement.

Maura Snabes, chairman of the Charlevoix Chamber Board, said in discussions she has had with people working on Boyne City's Main Street project the program is a lot of work but the benefits are just around the corner.

"All of them have said it's going to be worth it. They can see the big picture," Snabes said.

The Blueprint Program, which also drew interest from Charlevoix representatives who attended the informational meeting last week, is less intensive than Main Street.

Under this program, a consultant does a week-long market study of the downtown, including visits from the state preservation group and the housing authority. From the results of the study, goals are established and an action plan is developed to meet those goals. About 11 of these programs are done throughout the year in Michigan.

Bower said funding for the Blueprint Program depends on the community's population but is generally a match with the development corporation footing the bill for half and the community paying the other half.

Merta said Cheboygan went the Blueprint route and has been very pleased with the results.

Bower said that in evaluating Blueprint applications the development group is looking for someone in the community who will implement the action plan.

"We won't fund just a study for it to sit on a shelf," she said.

Those who attended last week's meeting did not discuss a final direction to take. City manager Mike Wiesner said he plans to meet with Merta and city planner Gerry Harsch to see if any of the development corporation's programs are a good fit for Charlevoix.

Merta said the city and chamber have both pursued studies in the past two years. These have included one that looked at a conference center locating in town, another aimed at solving the seasonal traffic problem and a third to develop a strategic plan for the chamber.

With these studies under the town's belt Merta said she isn't sure another study is what we need and Charlevoix's best approach may be to incorporate elements of these programs into the business community's plan of attack to revitalize the downtown.

Sensational Sessions to be this weekend

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The Fourth Annual Charlevoix Area Zonta Club Sensational Sessions program will take place this weekend in Charlevoix.

"We are trying to help women improve themselves in many areas — knowledge, self-esteem and well-being." Linda DeGrow, event chair, said.

The sessions will include 23 different interactive presentations including everything from making soaps at home to learning some easy, relaxing body moves with Ti Chi or Yoga.

DeGrow said 60 participants have pre-registered for the afternoon event and their goal is to have 150 participate.

Those who haven't pre-registered are asked to arrive during the registration time, 8 a.m. to 8:45 p.m., March 6 at the First Congregational Church, located at 101 State Street in Charlevoix.

The first session March 6 is scheduled to run from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m., the second from 10:10 a.m. to 11:10 a.m., the third from 11:20 a.m. to 12:20 p.m. and the fourth from 1:30 p.m. to 2:30 p.m.

During the one hour break between the third and fourth sessions lunch will be served. The meal will be provided by the Zontians through the $20 registration fee.

The afternoon will also include raffles with opportunities to win prizes.

Sensational Sessions is one of three fund-raisers the professional women's club has each year. It brought in just under $1,500 last year and the club is looking to exceed that number this year.

Proceeds from the sessions will benefit local women and women across the globe. One third of the club's annual proceeds go to international endeavors.

Some of the local projects the Charlevoix Area Zonta Club is involved in include scholarship opportunities for women and sponsorship of the Women's Resource Center.

Zonta is a worldwide organization of professional and executive women that work to improve the status of women worldwide.

Zonta Clubs were started internationally in 1919 and the Charlevoix chapter was formed in 1989. The club currently has 30 members.

Club members meet from 11:45 a.m. to 12:45 p.m. the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month at Grey Gables.

For more information about the sessions or the club contact DeGrow at 547-4109. An overview of the event, including descriptions of the sessions, is available at locations around Charlevoix. Call Helen Emmons at 547-2955 to register.

PUBLIC NOTICE

If it's not in the newspaper, how will the public notice?

Zoning changes. Tax increases. Legislative proposals. These are just a few topics where government actions can affect your life and community. Imagine if government no longer had the legal obligation to publish this information in your newspaper. How would public notices get noticed? In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. It should not be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, when to look or even to know what you're looking for to be informed. It is government's responsibility to publish and deliver public notice information as it becomes available. So take notice. Your right to know is being served... right here in your newspaper.

City Clerk may get $34,000 a year salary

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Charlevoix's Compensation Commission set the city clerk's salary at $34,000 a year and now city council has until March 25 to decide whether this decision will be the final call on this issue.

Liz Gooch

The issue of how current clerk Liz Gooch should be compensated has been a controversial topic since early January. Some have argued the position doesn't merit full-time status and others have said they want the clerk, an elected official, at city hall full-time.

Gooch, who was reelected in November of 2003, is currently compensated $16,416 a year for 20 hours a week of work. But she has said she can't fulfill all the duties of the clerk in that time. And any time she works over 20 hours is not paid for. She said she frequently puts in 40 hours and has never asked for anything in return.

Gooch said most of her current responsibilities include keeping records like city council minutes, compiling voter registration information, running elections, coordinating Freedom of Information Act requests and acting as clerk for both council and the Board of Review.

At its Feb. 16 meeting council voted to recommend to the commission that Gooch be compensated $15 an hour for any time she works beyond her salaried 20 hours a week, retroactive to Feb. 2.

The recommendation went to the compensation commission for consideration at its Feb. 24 meeting. But commission members didn't follow council's motion and instead set the clerk's compensation at $34,000 a year.

In making the salary determination Compensation Commission Chairman Ed Johnson said the commission members compared the clerk, a department head according to the city charter, with salaries of other department heads including the city manager, the police and fire chiefs and the city attorney.

Compensation commission member Ken Staley told council, "There is a job to do that is variable and we want it done. What you are trying to do is micro-manage a position that is clearly described in the charter. The hourly thing is not there (in the charter), the job is there."

In late January, the compensation commission recommended that if council makes the clerk's position full-time, the full-time deputy clerk's position should be eliminated and the clerk's salary set at $34,000. But council couldn't agree on the job's status.

Compensation commission chairman Ed Johnson attended Monday night's meeting and stressed that the commission's decision to set Gooch's salary at $34,000 did not look at full or part-time work for the job.

"The work is not being completed. Now the burden falls on the clerk. If it takes 100 hours a week, that's what it takes," Johnson said.

Gooch said for $34,000 she will work at least 40 hours a week.

Third ward council member Shirley Gibson said, "Their (the commission's) aim was to pay her according to the job description and the state statutes. If you don't want to call it full-time that's fine but Liz will be working full-time."

While the commission voted on this salary some members of council questioned it. Third ward councilman Sherm Chamberlain reviewed the history of the position saying in 2000 the clerk was paid $8,000 a year and the pay is currently double that. He said now the recommendation is to double the current pay and since 2000 the job description hasn't change that much.

First ward councilman Bob Timms agreed that the proposed salary is too much for the current work load.

"This seems to be a little excessive in my book from what is being expected right now," he said.

Chamberlain and Timms both recommended that duties that were once assigned to the clerk that have been given to other employees be restored and that the full set of duties be clearly spelled out.

In a previous interview City Manager Mike Wiesner said duties assigned to the clerk in the city code that have been carried out by other city staff members include transferring deeds for Brookside Cemetery, signing checks and collection of civil infraction fines.

Wiesner maintained his stance against expanding the clerk's duties claiming there is no oversight for the position.

"It is my understanding you are going to have an elected official under management supervision. I don't know how I can manage an elected person," he said.

Council can reject the commission's decision. This rejection will take a vote of council and has to be done by March 25.

Chamberlain who had expressed concern with the commission's decision said council is now stuck between a rock and a hard place on this issue. If council rejects the $34,000 salary, Gooch's pay goes back to its current status of $16,416.

"Which I don't think is fair," he said.

Gibson is happy with the outcome and hopes council will accept the commission's decision.

"This is an elected official; in order to do her job she needs to be down there as long as it takes and she needs to be compensated for it. This has been going on way too long," she said.

Boating safety classes to be given

Even though we are still shoveling snow and bundling up whenever we are outside, spring and boating season is right around the corner.

Now is the time to think about getting that Boating Safety Course under the belt. Anyone born after Dec. 31, 1978, must have a Boating Safety Certificate to operate a PWC or jet ski.

The United States Power Squadrons have been giving Boating Safety Courses for 90 years. This year we celebrate our 90th anniversary.

In 2002 there were 226 boating accidents in Michigan, of which 85 involved collisions with another vessel. These accidents included 37 fatalities and 152 other injuries.

Seventy-five percent of the total number of accidents involve errors or inattention on the part of the operator, including "rules of the road" (Navigation Rules) violations.

The Public Boating Safety Course provides the basis for becoming a responsible and knowledgeable boat operator. Family members that also attend these classes provide additional margins of safety and confidence, as they become aware of the responsibilities of the operator and the environmental conditions that must be dealt with. Members of the Tip of the Mitt Power Squadron have access to more advanced courses that provide additional knowledge and know-how to become an even safer boat operator.

Made up of avid boaters, the Tip of the Mitt Power Squadron is committed to providing instruction, vessel safety checks, and information to reduce the number of boating accidents.

Tip of the Mitt Power Squadron is giving Boat Smart, Chart Smart and Global Positioning Classes in several nearby communities over the next four months.

In March, a Boating Safety Course will be at Sunburst Marine in Boyne City. The class is eight hours long and runs from 6 to 10 p.m. on March 16 and March 18. A four hour charting class will be at the same place on March 23.

Because of the increase in use of GPS units for navigation, a four hour Global Positioning System class will be from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. on March 25 again at Sunburst Marine in Boyne City.

Registration information and information concerning classes in April, May and June call (231) 536-9391, (989) 939-8446 or (231) 237-9414.

Help your spirit or learn a new talent

Tonya Mann shows off some of her clients creations in her "Lasting Impressions workshop."

Art is a tool for Tonya Mann with her business Creative Explorations.

Mann, who has a degree in psychology and in art therapy, uses various forms of art in her classes to help people deal with issues in their lives. From a divorce to the death of a loved one, she uses the process of art to help her clients — both children and adults — heal.

"I just did a recent workshop where all of the women were going through divorces," she said.

However, Creative Explorations does not have to be for people dealing with issues in their lives.

"It can be fun too," she said. "It could be someone wanting to learn a new skill."

For example, Mann is currently offering a workshop where families can have their children's footprints or handprints cast in clay for a "Lasting Impression."

"As a parent, I realize that our children are growing up so fast, that it is hard to remember how small they really used to be. This is why it is important to capture memories of your child's hand and foot prints forever in a clay plaque," she said.

The clay plaque is fire and glazed to the color of your choice. And Lasting Impressions is not limited to just your baby — Mann can make an impression of your whole family.

"It is great or play groups, birthdays, baby showers, home parties and holiday gifts," she said.

Mann can give workshops in your home or business, as well as her studio. Her studio is located at 06090 Maple Grove Road in Charlevoix.

Creative Explorations opened for business in February 2004. Mann can be contacted by calling (213) 237-0360. Hours vary.

Area midget hockey team impressive

Boyne Area Hockey hosted a five team round robin invitational at the Polar Bear Ice Arena.

Boyne's Paul Bunyan Lanes team played four games and were the only team to go undefeated.

Saturday, February 28, they played Royal Oak number one.

Russell Williams opened the scoring with passes from Justin Conklin and Ryan Fields just 1:13 in. Eli Barsy and Cody Wester scored next with assists from Will Brown, Webster and Josh Aown.

Royal Oak managed two past goalie Bobby Courtright, but Fields, Evan Keller, and Barsy all found the net for Boyne, with assists from Williams, Darren Looze, Webster and Barsy to win 6-2.

In their second game, with Midland number two, Boyne controlled the tempo and the game from start to finish, taking it 6-1. Gabe Korthase and Williams scored. Fields netted a hat trick with three goals. Assists were credited to playmaker Looze with three, Webster, Aown, Brown, Fields, Conklin and two from Barsy.

Nick Ferree was between the pipes.

On Sunday, Feb 29 the team took on Midland number four "Michigan Brand" team. Boyne put in eight straight goals in the 8-1 victory. Fields netted four goals, earning his second hat trick in two days. Looze scored two, Stephen Cahoon and Korthase one each.

Assists were led by playmaker Williams with four. Brown, Conklin and Webster gave two each, and JP Fiedorek, Looze and Aown each added one. Courtright and Ferree shared net minding duties.

On Sunday afternoon Boyne took Royal Oak's Firehouse team to school. Royal Oak took the first goal of the game, but it was all Boyne's never say die attitude after that.

Great team passing and individual effort pummeled the Royal Oak goalie with 36 shots.

Aown tied the game with assists from Korthase and Webster. JP Fiedorek put one past the goalie with a beautifully timed pass from Webster, Eli Barsy snuck one under the goalie with assists from Williams and Brown.

Fiedorek batted one in as he was falling with assists from Fields and Barsy. Williams hit from Fields and Dylan Clark, and Conklin capped the 6-1 win with a pass from Britt King.

Courtright was in goal.

Volleyball team clinches share of title

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The Charlevoix Rayders have clinched a share of the Lake Michigan Conference title in volleyball with their play in recent matches.

The Rayders defeated Grayling 16-14, 12-15, 15-10 and Harbor Springs 9-15, 15-7, 15-9 to pull into the lead all alone in the conference. Charlevoix lost to Traverse City St. Francis on Monday, March 1 but still remain in first place.

"It was a great all-around effort (against Grayling and Harbor)," coach Liz Grunch said. "We lost another starter to injury (Betsy Dennis) but the bench really stepped up and did their part to contribute to the victory."

Grunch added, "The girls didn't give up when they lost the first game to Harbor. They fought back and didn't even let them reach double digits in the last two games."

The Rams' only two conference losses were both to the Rayders.

The leading attacker for the Rayders in the tri-match was Kari Way with 39 kills. Andrea Ruhlmann had 27 kills, nine blocks and was 24 for 25 serving with three aces. Way also led Charlevoix with 13 digs.

"Kari Way had an outstanding night for us both passing and attacking," said Grunch.

Becca Kanine had 49 assists and "did a great job getting the ball to who she needed to" according to Grunch.

Sonia Plude was the Rayders' top server, going 24 for 25 with six aces.

The Rayders fell to Traverse City St. Francis, 15-11, 8-15, 9-15.

Kanine was 14 for 14 serving and had 25 assists. Ruhlmann had five blocks and 11 kills. Way added eight kills.

"It was disappointing," Grunch said. "But we still have a big match coming up with Kalkaska, if we win, we'll win the league outright, if we lose, we'll share first place with Harbor Springs."

Charlevoix (12-1 conference, 28-10-12 overall) closes out the regular season at home against Kalkaska on Thursday, March 4.

HOW TO KILL A BUSINESS
... in ten easy steps

1. Don't Advertise
Just pretend everybody knows what you have to offer.
2. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself you just don't have time to spend thinking about promoting your business.
3. Don't Advertise
Just assume everybody knows what you sell.
4. Don't Advertise
Convince yourself that you've been in business so long customers will automatically come to you.
5. Don't Advertise
Forget that there are ~~new~~-potential customers who would do business with you if they were reminded.
6. Don't Advertise
Forget that you have competition trying to attract your customers away from you.
7. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself it costs too much to advertise and that you don't get enough out of it.
8. Don't Advertise
Overlook the fact that advertising is an investment in selling ... not an expense.
9. Don't Advertise
Be sure not to provide an adequate advertising budget for your business.
10. Don't Advertise
Forget that you have to keep reminding your established customers that you appreciate their business.

Rayders perfect season ended by Gladiators

A Rayder drives past a defender in Friday's game against Traverse City St. Francis.

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The Charlevoix Rayders' perfect season on the basketball court this winter came to an end last Friday night as Traverse City St. Francis overcame a 12 point halftime deficit to beat the Rayders, 67-63.

Charlevoix played without Scott Friske, who missed the game with an ankle injury.

"They changed things up a bit defensively at the end, we tired a bit," said coach Keith Haske. "But they couldn't miss a shot in the fourth quarter. They were 12 for 14 shooting."

Earlier in the week, Charlevoix defeated a pesky Grayling squad, 80-64.

The Rayders trailed 10-8 after the first quarter against St. Francis but an 8-0 run to start the second quarter gave Charlevoix a lead they would hold until late in the fourth quarter.

Jared Hunt's putback at the buzzer put the Rayders up 30-18 at the half. The 12 point advantage was Charlevoix's largest in the half.

"I thought that the pace was right where we wanted it in the first half," Haske said. "They were taking quick shots. In the second half, though, they started to slow the game down and take their time offensively."

In the third quarter, the Gladiators scored eight straight points to cut Charlevoix's lead from 34-23 to 34-31 with 4:58 to play in the period. A steal and layup by John DiMartino finally ended the nearly three minute Rayder scoring drought.

Bryce Daly took over late in the quarter, driving past and shooting over Gladiator would-be defenders. Daly scored six points in just over a minute to put Charlevoix's lead back up to 45-34. He then scored the final five points of the period in the final minute and a half of the period to give the Rayders a 50-40 lead.

The Rayders extended the lead back to 12 at 52-40 on another Daly basket. The Gladiators chipped away, however, and cut the lead to five at 57-52 with 4:29 to go on a Josh Jorkasky jumper.

Charlevoix called timeout and Kyle Kramer scored the next basket to extend the lead back to seven with 4:10 remaining. The Gladiators then scored the next eight points, taking the lead, 60-59 on two free throws with 1:56 to go.

Ryan DeYoung answered with a Rayder putback but St. Francis nailed a three-pointer followed by a steal and layup to put the game away for all intents and purposes.

Daly led the Rayders with 21 points. Kramer scored 16 points and had eight rebounds starting in place of Charlevoix's injured all-stater Scott Friske. Hunt had 10 points and seven rebounds. DeYoung pulled down six boards.

"I thought Kramer played a heck of a game for us," Haske said. "And Bryce was unstoppable there for a while and we just rode him."

Earlier in the week, the Rayders rushed out to a 9-0 lead and led from start to finish against Grayling. The team featured five players scoring double figures for the first time this season.

Charlevoix led 23-13 after the first quarter, 41-28 at the half and 61-47 after three.

Cody Crain scored a career-high 19 points to lead Charlevoix. DeYoung had 14 points and six rebounds. Friske had 13 points, 10 rebounds and four assists.

Hunt added 12 points and pilfered six steals. Daly had 10 points, five rebounds and six assists.

The Rayders (15-3 overall, 11-2 conference) played at Kalkaska on Tues., March 2 but results were unavailable. They finish the regular season with a non-conference game Friday at Petoskey.

Charlevoix opens the state tournament at 6 p.m. Tuesday, March 9 at Harbor Springs High School against the Rams.

Area farmers take part in legislative seminar

Hundreds of farmers-turned-lobbyists from across Michigan met with lawmakers this week by taking part in Michigan Farm Bureau's annual Lansing Legislative Seminar, Feb. 24.

The annual event provides an opportunity for one-on-one contact between legislators and working members of their districts' agricultural community.

Representing the Charlevoix County Farm Bureau this year were Timothy Matchett, Thomas Wieland, Ronald Reinhardt and Kim Korthase.

Alongside counterparts representing every facet of Michigan's diverse agricultural economy, these local farmers discussed current agriculture-related issues with their Lansing lawmakers. Particular emphasis this year was placed on water use issues and pending reforms to the state drain code, property taxes and the potential for continued state-level cuts to ag-related budgetary items.

During a brief luncheon program, MFB President Wayne H. Wood presented the organization's Silver Plow award to four Michigan lawmakers who over the past year have fought for the interests of the state's food and fiber producers. Silver Plows this year went to Rep. Larry Julian (R-Lennon), Rep. Dale Sheltrown, (D-West Branch), Rep. John Moolenaar (R-Midland), and Sen. Patricia Birkholz (R-Saugatuck).

The luncheon also featured the presentation of the Michigan Harness Horsemen's Award. Larry Mallar, the group's general manager, presented the honor to MFB President Wood in recognition of the organization's work championing Agriculture Enhancement, a package of legislation aiming to bolster the state's horse-racing industry in the face of competition from casinos and to help support underfunded ag programs.

The luncheon's keynote speaker was Michigan Environmental Policy Advisor Dana Debel. Speaking on behalf of Governor Jennifer Granholm's office, Debel briefed Farm Bureau members on the status of the state budget as it pertains to agriculture.

Four afternoon sessions brought participating Farm Bureau members up to speed on ag-related legislative issues before they met with state senators and representatives during the late afternoon reception.

Michigan Farm Bureau is the state's largest general farming organization, representing more than 46,000 farm families statewide.

Hopping to help

The Charlevoix K-Kids, a division of Kiwanis had a Hop-a-Thon for Muscular Dystrophy Feb. 25 in the Charlevoix Elementary School gym. The 24 K-Kid participants raised at least $1,000 for the camps, equipment and research to find a cure for the disease.

I can do that.
Just Ask!

It's a pretty bold statement, considering we don't even know the question yet. Northwestern Bank is locally owned and each office is locally staffed and managed. Decisions are made right here by people with the answers, who are empowered to do what needs to be done. The person you ask is the person who'll make sure it happens.

You'll never get answers like, "That's not my department." Or, "You'll have to call this 800 number." When you ask anyone at Northwestern Bank, big things happen right away.

If your bank "can't do that," maybe it's time you found one that can.

City council looking into impact of Wal-Mart

CHAMBER

was also asked to take a stand on the Wal-Mart issue by its retail committee in February.

And the Charlevoix's City Council may soon make the same stand.

Over 20 members of the "This Is Our Town" group attended the city council meeting March 1 to request council's support in their fight to stop the retailer.

Hoffman and Charlevoix resident John Winn presented arguments as to why the store, which will be outside of the city limits, will hurt the city.

They claim it will draw on the city's infrastructure and emergency services and will run downtown retailers out of town negatively, affecting the city's tax base.

Charlevoix Mayor Gabe Campbell said, "They (Winn and Hoffman) convinced me of what I already knew. When they (Wal-Mart) come in, bad things happen."

Third ward council member Shirley Gibson made the motion for city staff to study the economic impact of this project on the city.

"If Wal-Mart comes they will be the kiss of death for our community," she said.

The motion passed with support from second ward council member Karen Campbell and first ward councilman Bob Timms. First ward councilman Bill Haggard and third ward councilman Sherm Chamberlain abstained from the vote due to a conflict of interest. Chamherlain has done survey work for the project and Haggard did work for various other Wal-Marts.

Second ward councilman Bill Bellows voted against the study.

Council members who agreed to the study and Mayor Campbell also said they would work with the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission to try and stop the project.

The mayor said council could also deny the anticipated request from Wal-Mart to close Stover Road from just behind the Flight Deck to Marion Center Road.

"That would drive them nuts," he said.

Mayor Campbell plans to contact senators and congressmen and ask for their help in stopping Wal-Mart from locating here. He said he perceives the store as a threat to Charlevoix.

"The first couple of years I don't think people will notice anything, but I think it is going to be bad news," he said.

Gibson said this study is her first step, the next thing she wants to see is the city taking a stand against the project.

"I want the city to take a stand; the chamber has taken a stand opposing Wal-Mart and now the city should. I will be making that motion," Gibson said.

Wal-Mart officials did not return repeated telephone calls seeking comment.

Wal-Mart is hoping to build a 157,400 square foot supercenter on US-31, near Marion Center Road and Stover Roads in Charlevoix Township. According to plans, there will be 40,000 square feet of grocery space and over 100,000 square feet of retail space.

In comparison, the Charlevoix High School on Marion Center Road is about 132,000 square feet.

According to a traffic study conducted for the proposed Wal-Mart supercenter, the business will create 290 new trips during the peak morning hour and 498 total new trips during the peak evening hour.

The plan suggests entrances on Marion Center Road, Stover Road and two entrances on US-31. To alleviate traffic congestion, the plan states a traffic signal should be constructed at the US-31 and main Wal-Mart drive intersection and left and right turn lanes constructed on US-31 and Marion Center Road.

Officials have said they want to open the store in 2005. A formal site plan meeting has been scheduled for April 21 before the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission.

School district owns current library building

LIBRARY

operating expenses.

At that time the Clinton Street building was owned by the school district. According to the state's school code, public school districts can not hand over property, it has to be sold for its appraised value.

So, in 1997 the school board decided to deed the property to the library for $1. It was written into the exchange that the building would be the property of the library unless it was no longer used as a library, in which case ownership would revert back to the district.

As the library's planning for its new project got underway, Charlevoix Public Library Director Valerie Meyerson did a title search of the current property and found the quitclaim deed was never filed with the Charlevoix County Clerk. This meant the library didn't have title to the building.

She contacted Sturock to clear up the problem by registering the quitclaim deed.

Sturock signed it and about two months ago found the "reverter" clause had inadvertently been left out of the new document. The library's attorney and the school district's attorney agreed this clause has to be added.

That means that if the library moves to the former middle school property off Grant Street as it plans to do, it will lose its rights to its current site.

Losing the site will bump the June 14 millage request up from .75 mill for 20 years to a maximum of .82 mill for 20 years to fund construction of the project.

The new library proposal looks to renovate and add on to the school that was built in the late 1920s. The proposed brick facility is about 24,000 square feet, with all its main functions on the first floor.

This primary floor will include small additions, totaling just under 4,000 square feet of space — one will house the program room and the other, a children's activity room.

The facility will offer adult, children's and teen collections as well as a popular reading room, quiet reading areas, a self check out, a staffed circulation desk and outdoor landscaped plazas.

The DDA, the city, the school board and many people in the community have supported this renovation plan which may now be in jeopardy. The city bought the property from the school district last winter in order to secure it for the library.

The plan is for the library to buy 10 of those 13 lots from the city for $488,460 if in the spring voters pass the bond issue, which will now likely be larger than initially anticipated. If that bond doesn't pass, the DDA has discussed having to sell the property which would likely end up in the hands of a private developer.

Sturock said the same quitclaim deed that was granted for the Clinton Street building was not offered for the old school because the board voted to sell it.

He added that the school board supports the library's initiative, but has to support the intentions of the board that made the reverter clause decision back in 1997.

The school board has not decided its final direction in this matter. Library representatives will discuss the issue at the board's next meeting scheduled to take place at 7 p.m., March 8 in the library at Charlevoix High School located off Marion Center Road.

Meyerson said the best case scenario outcome of that meeting is for the board to remove the reverter clause and for the library to negotiate sale of the building to them.

Ski tour benefits BASES

Over 130 women participated in the Charlevoix First Annual Women's Ski Tour event Feb. 29 at the Charlevoix Country Club. Temperatures were in the high 40s and the sun was shining. While skiing and snowshoeing over five miles of groomed trails the ladies stopped and rested at stations stocked with treats, coffee and water. Once they finished the course they went to Mahogany's at the club to munch on more goodies and talk. Proceeds from the event sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce went to BASES.

Charlevoix High School band receives high rating

Charlevoix High School Fine Arts once again shines!

The Charlevoix High School Band scored an overall one rating at the annual MSBOA District II Senior High Band Festival on Saturday, Feb. 28. The Rayder band performed three concert pieces for judges, parents and guests at a crowded Petoskey Middle School auditorium.

At the conclusion of their final number, the band received a standing ovation from the audience, and an overall 1 rating from the judges. The band later scored a one rating at the sight reading portion of the competition. The band is now eligible to compete in the state festival on the last weekend in April.

"Our students work very hard and deserve our community's support and praise," said Jayne Bennett, director of bands at Charlevoix High School. "These kids are dedicated to our musical program, and strive for excellence. They spend many, many hours practicing, and put in more hours preparing for, traveling to and performing at a variety of musical events on behalf of the High School and the City of Charlevoix".

Being a Rayder Band member is a year long commitment, not just a seasonal activity. The Charlevoix High School Band is composed of students who practice daily as individuals and three times weekly as a group.

The concert band gives performances at school for the students and after school for the public. This past year the students performed at the Police Memorial Ceremony. Members of the band make up the Rayder Pep Band which provides entertainment at the home basketball games.

These students also participate in the Rayder Marching Band and entertain at half time during football season, attend marching band camp in the summer and march in the Charlevoix Venetian Festival, Memorial Day and Homecoming parades.

About 27 students also make up the Rayder Jazz Band and practice daily before school starts at 7 a.m. The Jazz Band will be competing in the Jazz Band Festival later this month.

Individual band members have been honored this year as well. Flutist Michelle Fritsch and percussionist Geoff Baier both received first division ratings on their solos at the District Solo and Ensemble Festival Feb. 7, in Harbor Springs. Flutist Denise Barta performed in this year's High School Honors Band on Dec. 7, 2003.

The Charlevoix High School Band Boosters recently sponsored a successful fundraising spaghetti dinner. The boosters current goal is to raise funds to purchase new marching band uniforms. For information about the Rayder Band, its schedule of events and its fund-raising, please contact Jayne Bennett at the high school.

Sheriff George T. Lasater shows the scam mail received in one year by a Charlevoix County resident.

Watch out for mail scams

Sheriff George T. Lasater announced the United States Postal Service released the following top five fraud scams:

1) Free prize schemes
2) Foreign lotteries
3) Pyramid schemes
4) Investment frauds
5) Work-at-home schemes

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office has received multiple complaints from citizens of Charlevoix County regarding all of the top five.

Lasater said one senior citizen has received over 450 articles of mail regarding free prize scams and has sent checks (a large amount of money for a senior citizen on a fixed income) to the free prize companies to release the prize he was to receive once the check was received by the company.

The original complaint came from an alert bank employee of Bay Winds Credit Union who suggested to their customer to contact law enforcement regarding this situation. Some of the checks are made out to fictitious organizations who would make the citizen feel like the money was being sent to a legitimate charity organization.

Lasater has referred these cases to the U.S. Postal Inspectors and encourages citizens of Charlevoix County not to be taken in by this type of scam.

Wal-Mart responds to critics of project

By JEREMY MCBAIN

Wal-Mart officials are upset at a recent decision by the area chamber to side with a local anti-Wal-Mart group and are saying there is a lot of misinformation going around.

John Bisio, regional manager of community affairs for Wal-Mart, said the chamber's decision was "disheartening."

"When you look at so many other communities around Michigan where we have a store, we are a good partner. I think you have a classic case of the fear of the unknown. It doesn't help that there are forces out there, special interest, who use disinformation," he said.

Last week the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce decided to support the local group, This Is Our Town. The group is made up of area residents and business owners who are opposed to Wal-Mart's plans to build a 157,000 square foot supercenter on US-31, near Marion Center and Stover roads.

The group says the plan will significantly hurt the community, economically, socially and environmentally.

"There has historically been a lot of misinformation about our stores. I

Chamber to host St. Patrick pub crawl

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix will be celebrating the Irish this St. Patrick's Day, March 17, with a downtown pub crawl.

The event, sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, will begin at 5 p.m., where a bagpipe band from Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario will lead a procession of partiers at the Weathervane Restaurant. After about an hour, the procession will move to the Townhouse, then the Villager Pub and end at Grey Gables Inn.

While at each location, participants will get a different set of beads. The goal is to collect all of the beads. Each location will have its own specials to go along with the Irish holiday, such as green beer and Irish-themed food.

Linda Mason, chamber board member, said this is a new idea that is being created by the chamber to complement the annual St. Patrick's Festival on Beaver Island. This year, the St. Patrick's party on the island is March 20 outside and inside the Shamrock Bar.

"We don't want to discourage people from going to Beaver Island. We don't want to take away their thunder," she said. "Hopefully it will be great fun."

Mason added there are plans on making this new Charlevoix event bigger in the future.

"We are just sort of building on this at the moment," she said. "Hopefully in the future it can become another Apple Festival."

Future ideas include more history of St. Patrick, traditional Irish bands — bagpipe bands are actually a Scottish tradition — and a green-colored Pine River Channel.

Mason said they had toyed with the idea of dying the Pine River Channel green this year, like Chicago does to its river each year, but the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality nixed those plans. Therefore, she said the chamber may give out glasses with green-tinted lenses to create the effect of a green colored river.

Jacqueline Merta, chamber president, said she thinks the pub crawl is a great idea.

"It is an event that will become more fun over time," she said.

Officers receive community relations training

Members of the Charlevoix Police Department recently completed a newly developed training curriculum.

This included ways to improve their interpersonal relation's skills as a part of their duties as law enforcement officers, office staff and reserve officers.

Kathy Lame, a noted authority in community relations and conflict resolution, developed the new program, with collaboration from Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson.

"Police officers receive periodic training in firearms, precision driving and other types of required skills, but very little training or review of our people skills," according to Chief Halverson. "This training examines community perceptions of the police and how to improve them or how they can be negatively affected by our attitudes and behavior."

Lame said, "This training resulted in frank discussion by the officers of what impression they want to leave with their 'clients' and how they can get there. It was quite apparent during class that the police department employees have an interest in establishing and maintaining a professional reputation in the community."

This program built on that objective through the use of role playing, using scenarios such as traffic stops and complaint investigation responses. Feedback and suggestions were then offered that spoke to body language, communication skills and other methods of accomplishing police objectives, in a constructive manner.

Officers also reviewed cycles of anger and how to deal with it, not only in contacts they make in the community, but in themselves as well. According to Kathy Lame, "Anger needs to be recognized and defused as soon as possible, otherwise it can escalate into a situation which may cause physical harm to a citizen or an officer. Looking at ways to identify and defuse anger is a critical skill that officers must possess. An officer can impact a highly charged situation by what they say or even what they do not say."

Lame and Halverson both agreed that the six-hours of training was well received by the police department and should be a part of any police department's training efforts. Questions about the program can be directed to Chief Halverson at the Charlevoix City Police Department.

New budget shows weak general fund

Editor's note: This is the first in a series on the city budget.

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

As the city of Charlevoix dives into the 2004-2005 budget season, a weakening general fund shows the community will have to take a close look at services this year.

City council met at a budget work session March 2 to review this year's $17.5 million budget.

A top priority at that meeting was discussing the status of the general fund, the city's most important fund.

City treasurer Rick Brandi explained that the general fund budget is $3.1 million, about 18 percent of the total budget, which isn't a lot compared to the 41 percent that the electric fund makes up. But he said everything revolves around the general fund and it's the "go to" fund when there is a need.

City manager Mike Wiesner told council that this year and in the near future that "go to" fund doesn't have much space to meet needs.

"We used to have $200,000 plus a year (in the general fund) to do projects. All that discretionary money is gone. We have been using infrastructure money for projects typically funded by that discretionary money," he said.

The fund balance in the general fund projected for the end of this fiscal year is $338,297. This is 10.8 percent of the total general fund budget.

"That's the bottom," Brandi said. "This is as low as we can go for cash flow purposes."

Good accounting practices for a municipality like the city recommend between 10 and 20 percent fund balance for the general fund. To get to the just over 10 percent level Charlevoix had to transfer $117,300 from the infrastructure fund. This stabilizing effort is planned for next year too with a $61,300 transfer from the infrastructure fund.

"It's a bit of a risk. Hopefully, we won't run into any problems because we are at the low end of cash," Brandi said.

Brandi said the shifting of money from fund to fund as a crutch for the general fund isn't a long-term solution, but it buys the community time to find a solution.

"This isn't going to make it the way we've been doing it," he said.

The problem stems from revenue shortfalls related to reductions in state revenue sharing, a declining cut in proceeds from the fuel tax, limitations on home ownership taxes, a decrease in the allowable millage the city can levy, the creation of a marina fund and little new construction in the city where only about 20 acres of buildable land exists.

On the expense side of the issue the city is facing higher costs related to health care, retirement and mandated state and federal programs.

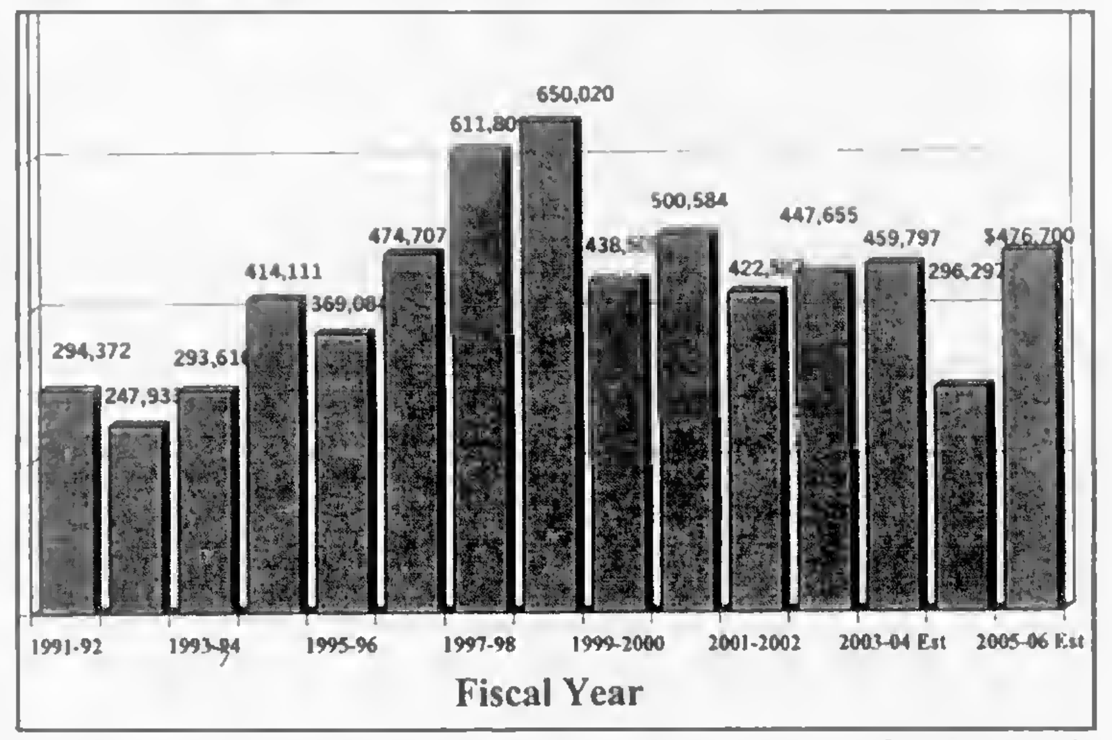
Brandi built $25,000 into the budget to allow council the possibility of hiring a consultant to work with a citizens committee to figure out how the city can make it. The group will look at the services the city provides and figure out if there are other revenue sources out there and if there are services that can be scaled back or cut and then make a recommendation to city council.

The patching approach the city is taking this year, transferring funds away from the infrastructure fund, means some projects will be delayed and the city has less money to work with.

However, the city isn't at a loss for projects this year. Over 50 percent of the budget is allocated to major capital improvements costing a total of $8.4 million.

The majority of that project budget goes to improvements at the airport costing around $3 million. Grants will cover 97 percent of the cost of the airport projects. Other improvements include the city hall renovation project, work at the golf course, electrical upgrades and Downtown Development Authority projects.

One project that has been planned for that city council will have to decide the fate of is completion of the water main loop along Chicago Avenue by the C & O Club. This project includes replacing the force main and lift station at Depot Beach and reconstructing the water and sewer system and street by Chicago Avenue and Mercer Boulevard.



Courtesy graphic

This graph shows the fund balance history of the general fund through the years.

If council puts this project off for two years the city won't have to borrow money from other funds to pay for it.

Brandi said this list of capital projects was scaled back and everything that was included in the final cut is necessary.

A public hearing to discuss the proposed budget is scheduled to take place at 7 p.m., March 15 in the Coast Guard Training Room located at 109 Bridge Park Drive in Charlevoix.

'Just a thought'

Don your green and get ready for some fun; Charlevoix is jumping into the St. Patrick's Day pot of gold.

That's right, the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce is hosting a St. Patrick's Day Pub Crawl on March 17, that will piggyback on the annual St. Patrick's Day Beaver Island Festival March 20. This event will consist of a bagpipe band leading a group of people from bar-to-bar, where they will enjoy themselves and collect Mardi Gras-type beads.

First of all, let me say that I am very excited for this event and am very happy that the chamber thought of having it. Lately the chamber has had some really good ideas, such as the Women's Ski Tour. Unlike previous pushes for convention centers and the like, these ideas utilize the businesses and environment that are already present in Charlevoix and make a fun atmosphere that can be built upon.

The chamber should be saluted for its efforts lately to increase business during the winter months in Charlevoix in creative and fun ways.

It is hoped that this new event, the St. Patrick's Day Pub Crawl will grow like the Apple Festival did. I hope so too.

But, let's chat a little about St. Patrick's Day, which is March 17. It has always been a special day for me, as I am half Irish — mix that with my beloved Scottish heritage and Spanish blood and I believe you have the "perfect" human being! Along with learning about the pride that comes with being Scottish, my family also taught me the joys of being Irish.

Every St. Patrick's Day my Irish grandmother would wear her green clothing and pinch us mercilessly if we did not. She would also tell me when I was a child that St. Patrick's Day was a day when the leprechauns would come out, and if I caught one by the ankle it would have to tell me where its pot of gold was. I spent many hours searching the house for those little buggers.

As I got older, St. Patrick's Day became a "party" day for me. I would engage in all the usual sorts of debauchery that Americans enjoy doing on this holiday and would usually end up playing my bagpipes for some pub crawl or party.

In fact, for the past four years I have played my bagpipes on Beaver Island for its annual St. Patrick's Day festivities. It was on this island, though, that I learned St. Patrick's Day is not about ingesting large amounts of green beer.

St. Patrick was a religious man who came to Ireland from Scotland and brought Christianity to the pagan Celts of that land. Under his guidance, Ireland became a Christian country, which is why he is honored by the Irish to this day.

In Ireland, St. Patrick's Day is not a day to go out and party. It is a religious day and most everybody spends their time in church remembering their patron saint.

Why the green and the shamrock? Well, the green represents the Catholic faith. So, you wear green to show your ties to the Catholic faith of Ireland. Some people on St. Patrick's Day wear orange, which is the color of the Protestant faith.

The shamrock was used by St. Patrick to teach the holy trinity. He used the three leaves on this Irish plant to represent the father, son and holy ghost.

Let's address some other beliefs of St. Patrick's Day:

- This one makes me laugh every year. The bagpipes you hear commonly played in St. Patrick's Day parades, pub crawls — or by certain small-town newspaper editors — are NOT Irish. They are called the Great Highland Bagpipes or Warpipes and are from Scotland. Furthermore, most of the music played on the Great Highland Bagpipes is Scottish.
- The kilt and the tartan are also Scottish, not Irish. Irish families DO NOT have a tartan; that is a Scottish tradition that actually may have been started in the 1800s.
- There were no snakes in Ireland for St. Patrick to drive out. The tale is believed to mean he drove all the pagans out of Ireland.
- Green beer, green rivers, heavy drinking and beads are American traditions on St. Patrick's Day. The beads are really a new one that seem to confuse St. Patrick's Day with Mardi Gras.

Now I am not telling you these little tidbits to take the joy out of your fun this holiday. Heck, I will probably join in and will probably be playing my bagpipes somewhere.

I just hope that while you raise a glass in joy, remember the real meaning behind St. Patrick's Day. Perhaps even a little toast or prayer in honor of this Irish saint's work to bring Christianity to Ireland would be sufficient.

Letters to the editor

We need Wal-Mart

Editor:

I must say, certain people in this town are truly being ignorant about the Wal-Mart issue. Frankly, I am tired of it. I just wish it would hurry and get here. To be honest, I do not have a problem giving my hard earned money elsewhere, especially if I can save money. Most people that drive to Petoskey just don't go to Wal-Mart, they do other shopping elsewhere also. So, I guess if the Wal-Mart was here, Charlevoix could also flourish in many ways, such as bringing more people from closer surrounding areas to shop here, and not just at Wal-Mart. But, then again I have heard comments such as, "It will bring 'trailer trash.'" This just proves to me how pathetic some of these people are here. Wal-Mart will force stores like Olesens and Glen's to lower their overly inflated prices. Another thing, why does the Glen's in Charlevoix cost more to shop at versus the one in East Jordan? How ridiculous is that? What are you people of "This Is Our Town" trying to prove? Are you really speaking for everyone living here? I think not. Where do some of these people here come up with ridiculous excuses such as, police will be too busy unlocking car doors and dealing with more bad checks being written and last but not least, traffic congestion.The traffic is already a huge problem here in the summer. How could it get any worse? Quit opening the bridge every half hour and having so many festivals. How about creating more parking? Wake up Charlevoix! This town is definitely not family oriented, so this is why I will be glad to give Petoskey my business.

Just because Wal-Mart doesn't benefit the select few, doesn't mean everyone else should have to pay for the stupidity of those people. If the closeminded select few don't want a Wal-Mart, how about putting a Goodwill store in which will accomodate all the poor people living here. How would you all feel about that?

Michelle Brock

Yes to Wal-Mart

Editor,

Charlevoix has changed a lot over the years. It was a quiet little town. Not much traffic and an old bridge that use to swing around. Everything keeps changing. In summer this town's traffic is the pits. And with more boats it will be worse. Because the bridge opens so often boats go out to the end of the pier if Lake Michigan looks too rough. They turn around and come back in.

So why not a Wal-Mart on the south side of town? Then we won't have to wait a half hour to an hour to get through town and deal with people with road rage.

I personally don't shop downtown. Oh! Yes all these people that have their pictures in the papers saying Wal-Mart wants their jobs. What would Wal-Mart want their jobs for? They have work of their own. Ha! Ha! Just a stupid pun, like the rest of the stuff Our Town puts out.

I would like to know who the people are that own this town. I lived here most of my life and I don't think I own this town or any other town.

I commend our law enforcement, they do a good job.

Oh! Yes I've seen where that work is going on across from the Charlevoix Country Club on the north side; they sure had to truck in a lot of fill dirt. Did they do that to fill wet land? If so, I thought that was against the law. Maybe the law has changed from a few years ago.

Wow! Talk about urban sprawl. But I guess if it's on that side it's "A-OK." At least that's the way it always was.

Wal-Mart will help

Editor:

Regarding the Charlevoix Wal-Mart controversy, I am not gifted with prophetic visions such as the disasters forseeen and revealed to us by members of the organized opposition. I only know that people in thousands of communities throughout the country are overjoyed to have a Wal-Mart superstore.

This is especially true for young low income families on macaroni and cheese budgets and senior citizens on fixed incomes.

In a study done prior to approving a Wal-Mart store in California, the Los Angeles Economic Development Corp. learned that an average family saved $589 per year by purchasing their groceries at Wal-Mart. Factor in additional savings on clothing, household goods, personal care products and electronics and the total could pay for a couple of months rent, a pile of utility bills or a lot of expensive prescription medicines. In fact, it would be equivalent to receiving about a dollar per hour pay raise.

That is a godsend to families that barely survive until their next paycheck. To them, "The view of the bay is worth half your pay," saying is sick humor.

They are not likely to shed a tear because some fudgie is offended by the sight of a — gasp — Wal-Mart.

They also know, as the song goes, they only have "Friends In Low Places." The moneyed elites, local merchants and their friends are throwing up an environmental and aesthetic smokescreen in order to bar competition that would benefit a majority of our local residents who are of modest means. Stover Creek can and will be protected. And as for the fudgies headed up here, the majestic beauty of gravel piles, pits and quarries, marine dealerships, car lots, repair shops, storage barns and others in the US-31 commercial corridor should more than prepare them for the sight of another Wal-Mart store.

Our young people need entry level jobs and a low cost of living. Wal-Mart will help provide both. In addition, the company has a reputation for being quite generous in contributing to worthy causes in their communities and would also contribute significantly to the tax base in Charlevoix Township and county.

In any event, the Wal-Mart question will be decided by the township board. And as a township resident, I am confident that they will make the correct decision. City residents opposed to the plan should have as much influence in township affairs as I had when the city imposed higher utility costs and boat launch fees on township residents.

No to Wal-Mart

Editor:

The value of any town is measured in the peoples' commitment to one another. Out of this commitment comes a sense of community based on mutual trust and respect. Mutual trust and respect act like a safety net in times of crisis. No one need panic because we know we have the support of our friends and neighbors.

We raise money together for charity. That is community. Santa Claus is not in some sterile big box parking lot. Santa Claus is in downtown Charlevoix in December. That is community. We plant 50,000 petunias together Memorial Day weekend. That is community. We give our money to merchants in Charlevoix and feel safe that money will resurface somewhere else for the good of our town. That is community. Store employees call their customers by their first name. That is community. We come together to tackle problems that affect the entire community. One of those problems is upon us.

People of Charlevoix, there is an 800 pound gorilla sitting on our collective living room couch kicking our dog around. Let us do something about it together. That is community. Get involved. Say no to Wal-Mart and yes to Charlevoix the Beautiful.

Zonta names winner of annual women's award

Amber Heath, a senior at East Jordan High School, was named the winner of this year's Charlevoix Area Zonta Young Women in Public Affairs Award.

The Zonta Young Women in Public Affairs Award competition is designed to encourage women to pursue decision-making positions in their communities in order to impact the policies that affect the lives of women locally and throughout the world.

The Zonta Young Women in Public Affairs program looks to the young women of today who will be the leaders of tomorrow.

Heath was chosen as the Charlevoix Area Zonta winner because of her involvement with her community, her focus on her career goals and her understanding of an involvement with global issues and cultures. Heath has a 4.0 grade point average and plans on attending college to pursue a degree in medicine.

Heath demonstrates her commitment to the community through her volunteer work with the Good Samaritan organization and Jordan River Clean-Up. She is also very involved in school activities, including National Honor Society, Debate, Quiz Bowl, SADD, Drama Club, Spanish Club, softball and has been a Rotary Exchange student, spending one year in Italy.

Zonta is a worldwide service organization of executives in business and the professions working together to advance the status of women. The Charlevoix Area Zonta Women in Public Affairs Award is one of the many programs for young women sponsored by Charlevoix Area Zonta.

Applications for next year's award will be available from Charlevoix Are Zonta in late fall.

Save Your Vision Week

Sunday, March 7 – Saturday, March 13, 2004

How often should you have your eyes examined? The American Optometric Association generally recommends that infants have their eyes screened for congenital eye disorders and disease at birth before leaving the hospital. Eye examinations for children are recommended at six months, three years, and before the child enters first grade. Most school-age children and teens should see their doctor of optometry every one or two years, and adults benefit from eye examinations every one to three years (as recommended by the optometrist). Annual eye examinations are always a good idea for those over age 60. If you or a loved one is overdue for an eye examination, why not schedule one soon by calling any one of the fine professionals in your area.

Charlevoix couple start fund for Eagle Village

He serves on the Board of Directors and has witnessed firsthand how Eagle Village has turned the lives of troubled children and families around and given them hope.

She is the former chairman of the Midland Area Community Foundation and is confident of the experienced leadership and trusting of the way Foundation staff handle contributions.

So last year when Dick and Mary Lou Hazleton found themselves in a position to make a financial contribution, it made sense to combine the two organizations they felt were working to make a change for the better.

And with that theory in mind, the Friends of Eagle Village Endowment Fund was created in Dec. 2003, through the Midland Area Community Foundation. The Hazletons made the lead gift of $75,000 to establish the fund.

Earnings will be used to support the mission and general purposes of Eagle Village. Likewise, the Midland Area Community Foundation will act as manager of the fund, investing and reinvesting fund money according to its policy.

The Hazletons are residents of the Charlevoix area.

In its thirty-sixth year of serving children and families, Eagle Village is located among 683 acres of Michigan forest in Hersey. Eagle Village provides residential treatment, assessment services, foster care, adoption and post-adoption services, youth employment services, accredited, onsite schooling and adventure-based education programs.

"Nobody can solve all the world's problems, but I think people look for ways to help with things they know something about. I've been on the board and been to Eagle Village lots of times now. Mary Lou's been out to the village several times. Almost every time, I hear some story about some child or family that breaks my heart, but I also see how Eagle Village has helped them," Dick said.

Mary Lou joined the Midland Area Community Foundation Board eight years ago and assumed several leadership positions before becoming chairman. Through her experiences, she saw the results of what a successful foundation can do.

Also, Mary Lou said creating the endowment fund through the community foundation was an opportunity to broaden the donor base of Eagle Village.

Foundation President and CEO Denise K. Spencer said the generosity of the Hazletons has assisted many area groups.

Eagle Village President / CEO Gary Bennett commends the Hazletons for their commitment to abused and neglected kids.

"They have an absolute passion for helping underprivileged children. Their caring hearts led them to formalize a legacy of love at the Midland Area Community Foundation and for the community in which they have labored and lived in for so many years. I have been touched by the Hazletons' compassion to create and fund this endowment, their vision to open it so anyone can contribute to it and all for the sole purpose of benefiting thousands of children for generations to come," Bennett said.

To mail in donations, please request a form from Eagle Village by calling (231) 832-2234 or the Midland Area Community Foundation (MACF) at (989) 839-9661 or simply submit a check to MACF-Eagle Village, PO Box 289, Midland, MI 48640-0289.

Crooked tree to host culinary arts classes

Crooked Tree Arts Center will have a Culinary Arts Series with Chef Vincent De Paulis.

The first two classes are scheduled from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. for Tuesday, March 23 and Thursday, March 25.

Students will explore cooking techniques, learn trade secrets, participate in hands-on learning and enjoy a five-course dinner.

"Each night will enrich your culinary arts skills," Chef De Paulis said. "We feature a different menu with a variety of seasonal ingredients."

The menu for Tuesday March 23 is Bruschetta, Minestrone Soup, Blueberry Pecan Salad with Blueberry Vinaigrette, Focchia Bread and Shrimp and Chicken Vincenzo.

The menu for Thursday, March 25 is Marinated Mussels, Sour Dough Garlic Bread, Cicci Soup, Apple Pine Nut Salad with Apple Cider Vinaigrette, Polo Panino and Vegetable du Jour.

Students are encouraged to bring a French knife, boning knife, paring knife, apron and two hand towels.

The fee for the class is $30 per student and includes dinner.

Class size is limited to 12 people. The class will meet in the Bob Forman Kitchen of the Crooked Tree Arts Center.

The arts center is located at 461 E. Mitchell Street in downtown Petoskey. For more information and to enroll, call the arts center at 347-4337.

Obituaries

Nelva A. Luedke: April 7, 1931 - March 6, 2004

Nelva A. Luedke, a long time resident of Charlevoix, sought her heavenly life Saturday, March 6, 2004, with her devoted husband of 54 years by her side.

Nelva was born April 7, 1931 to Jesse and Ebba Stallings, in New York, along with her older twin sister, Hazel Stallings Edwards.

Nell was an avid reader and good writer, sharing her creativity and good humor with those around her. She was a master level Scrabble player, and opened her home and her heart to all those she encountered in her many travels as a Coast Guard wife.

She was also known for her baking and cooking skills. Nell loved giraffes.

She is survived by her husband, Don "Lucky" Luedke, her daughters Dorinda (Kent) Miller of Virginia and Sue (Bill) Gengle of Charlevoix, Philip (Tammy) Luedke of Ohio, her grandchildren, Guy (Mei) Gengle of Grand Rapids, Julie (Mike) Dobulis of Charlevoix, Justin (Dana) Gengle of Ohio, Sage Luedke of Ohio.

In addition she is survived by great-grandchildren: Adorian Gengle, Benjamin Dobulis and twins Claire and Emily Dobulis. She is also survived by her twin sister, Hazel (Earl) Edwards, and many beloved nieces and nephews.

Her parents and brother, Clifford, preceded her in death.

Nell will be missed dearly by her friends and loved ones.

A Mass of the Resurrection will be 11 a.m., today, Wednesday, March 10, at Saint Mary's Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Thomas Neis will officiate.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Alzheimer's Association, 531 1/2 S. Union Street, Traverse City, MI 49684.

Evelyn L. Noirot: Died March 10, 2004

Evelyn L. Noirot, 62, of Charlevoix, died Thursday, March 10, at her home in Charlevoix.

A time of remembrance of Evelyn's life was on Sunday, March 7 at the Winchester Funeral Homein Charlevoix.

The Rev. Michael Dennis officiated and memorialization will take place in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix. Evelyn was horn June 10, 1941, in Charlevoix, the daughter of Albert L. "Buster" and Pauline (Zitka) Russell.

On Aug. 23, 1958, she married Alva "Sonny" Noirot in Charlevoix. Evelyn and Alva raised eight children. Her focus in life was her involvement with young people. She worked for 25 years as assistant high school librarian at Charlevoix.

She was a full-time mom to more than just her own children, attending and shuttling kids to sports practices and games, cheerleading, performing arts, and Odyssey of the Mind, just to name a few. Throughout her life she, in many ways, helped several kids get through their high school years.

Evelyn is survived by her husband, Alva "Sonny" Noirot of Charlevoix; sons, Alva L., Brian (Barb), of Charlevoix, Gilbert (Kathy) of Alpena and Tim (Melissa) of Tampa, Fla; daughters, Tami (Tom) Rost of Lenexa, Kan., Teresa (Scot) Hart of East Jordan, Bridget (Bill) Dohm, and Mindy (Joe) Poon of St. Louis, Mo.; 15 grandchildren; mother Pauline Russell of Charlevoix; sisters, Judy Russell of Charlevoix, and Sharon Russell of Houston, Tex.

Her father and a sister, Wanda Rann, preceded her in death.

Memorial contrihutions may he made to the Charlevoix County Community Foundation in Evelyn's name.

William H. Wells: Died March 2, 2004

William H. Wells, 83, of Canton died Tuesday, March 2 in Aultman Hospital after a brief illness.

Born in East Jordan, Mr. Wells was a graduate of Purdue University and retired from the Hoover Company in 1985 as vice president of manufacturing for Hoover World Wide.

He was a member of Faith United Methodist Church, Brookside Country Club and Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity.

Survivors include his wife: Jane C. Wells of the residence, two daughters: Mrs. Richard (Kim) Nicely of North Canton, Mrs. Douglas (Pamela) Mills of Canton. Son, John W. (Shelley) Wells of Rye, N.Y. Six grandchildren: Geoffrey, Suzanne, Melissa, Megan, Ian and Lily. Step-mother, Mrs. A. E. Wells of East Jordan.

A memorial service was on Thursday, March 4 in Faith United Methodist Church of North Canton with Dr. Larry F. Morrison officiating. A private entombment will take place for the family.

In lieu of flowers memorial contributions may be made to Faith United Methodist Church, 300 Ninth St. N.W., North Canton, OH 44720 or to the American Cancer Society, 925 S. Main St., North Canton, OH 44720.

The Spiker-Foster-Shriver Funeral home is in charge of arrangements.

Balch retires as Charlevoix County treasurer

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Charlevoix native and county treasurer Joan Balch walked into the county building 36 years ago ready to tackle a new professional position, never dreaming it would be her life's work.

Balch, 56, who officially retired on Monday, March 1, signed on at the treasurer's office in May of 1968 as the deputy treasurer.

She was fresh out of Charlevoix High School having graduated in 1965. The bright eyed 20-year-old looked around her new office, checking out her 40 something coworkers who had been there for five to 10 years, and said, "No way will that be me."

Now, almost four decades and two promotions later, she is retiring as the department head.

She was appointed to the treasurers' seat on March 12, 1987 after her predecessor retired. Then, in November of 1988, she faced her first election.

She was opposed by former Charlevoix County Commissioner Oral Sutliff. Balch said she knew her competition was tough and hit the pavement campaigning door-to-door countywide and making appearances in every parade she could.

When the voters headed to the polls she found her hard work had paid off with a win. Balch took 68 percent of the vote.

"I took the whole west side of the county," she said.

After that first tough election it was smooth sailing for Balch who ran unopposed in 1992, 1996 and again in 2000.

During her time in office she implemented many changes to the department including computerizing county revenues with the general ledger accounting system and the delinquent tax system. She also helped create software to manage a county-wide dog licensing program.

Her accomplishments in the office were a balancing act as she raised two boys at home with her hushand Jerry and managed to serve on numerous county committees including the plat board, the election commission and the reapportionment committee.

Outside of these commitments to the county, Balch also served as membership chair and treasurer for the local Republican committee, as a five year member of the Michigan Association of County Treasurers and with the United County Officers Association.

With this laundry list of commitments behind her Balch plans to spend time with her, family and working in her two flower gardens this summer. Her accounting expertise will continue to be put to good use as treasurer for the Street Legends Classic Car Club. She is the car show chairperson for this year's event which will take place in August.

She also plans to remain active with the local chapter of the Zonta Club.

With plenty to do ahead of her, Balch said she will still miss the many years of work she is leaving behind.

"What I'll miss most is all the friendships with coworkers and constituents across the state. I've enjoyed the challenges of the office and helping the taxpayers of Charlevoix County," Balch said.

She said she has even enjoyed the challenges of learning new tax laws.

Balch's efforts with the county will also be missed. County clerk Jane Brannon said her office work's the closest with the treasurer's office and Balch was a hard worker.

"I wish her the best. I'm envious she gets to retire," Brannon said.

Her replacement will be named by the appointing committee made up of 7th Probate Judge Frederick Mulhauser, Brannon and prosecuting attorney Mary Beth Kur. They will interview three applicants on March 5 and may appoint someone to the position at that time.

Balch is backing her current deputy treasurer, Dolly Louiselle, for the position. Louiselle has worked in the office for over seven years and Balch said she has the advantage of having hands on experience in the office's operations and also is trained in governmental accounting.

Whoever gets the job isn't guaranteed the seat for long as they will have to file in May to run for the position in the August primary. Voters will decide who will fill the seat for a four-year term in November.

Miss Michigan, Teen Michigan visit area

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

Girls who have daydreamed of waving to adoring fans as they are handed red roses and crowned with a twinkling tiara may soon find themselves in that spotlight.

The Miss Northwest Michigan USA and Miss Northwest Michigan Teen USA event is coming to Charlevoix next month. This is an official preliminary event for the Miss Michigan USA and Miss Michigan Teen USA state competitions.

The event will take place April 16 and 17 in the Charlevoix High School Auditorium.

Judges will pick the winner based on three categories — a personal interview, a swimsuit competition and an evening wear competition. A performing talent is not required.

Delegates are currently being selected to participate. To sign on you have to be a single, United States citizen between the ages of 14 and 26 living in Michigan.

Forms to complete are available at the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce located at 408 Bridge Street in downtown Charlevoix. The completed form along with a photo has to be mailed to the Northwest Michigan Pageant by this Friday, March 12. Applicants that are selected will be notified by mail.

Current Miss Michigan USA, Stacey Lee and Miss Michigan Teen USA, Yelena Crawford, were in Charlevoix Feb. 29 at the Women's Ski Tour event at the Charlevoix Country Club promoting the upcoming event.

The two friends have had a whirlwind year touring the state doing motivational and public speaking events and discovering the many faces of Michigan.

Lee, 26, of Rochester Hills, is gearing up for the Miss USA pageant to be televised live on NBC April 12 from the Kodak Theater in Los Angeles, Calif. Crawford, 17, is prepping for the Miss Teen USA event to take place this summer.

While the girls have reached the top in the state they spent plenty of time in the shoes of girls registering for the Charlevoix event and offered a few tips about what it takes to win.

"It's all in your head. You have to have the confidence, drive and determination to want the title," Crawford said.

Lee said it takes mental, physical and spiritual preparation. Mentally she said she reminds herself that she is there competing for herself, not against other women.

"I want to be my personal best," she said.

One of the challenges Crawford said she faces in preparing herself mentally is staying away from the gossip other girls get into.

Lee agreed and said, "A quote I live by is 'Everybody is not your enemy and everybody is not your friend. But everyone you come in contact with is your teacher.' You learn from negative and positive experiences."

To prepare for the national competition this spring, Lee is getting in the best physical condition for her body structure by working out and eating a balanced diet.

Crawford said the physical part of competing is the most challenging for her because she loves to eat. She has found the right fit for her is a low carbohydrate, high protein diet.

While beauty is important, both girls said the physical side of the competition isn't what will win the crown. Lee and Crawford said judges are looking for a genuine, confident contestant.

"I truly feel it's what's inside and how you convey yourself. We've all met beautiful people that act ugly and it makes them ugly," Lee said.

They said for the Northwest competition, girls have to go into the pageant expecting to win, but said not to be disappointed if the finish goes to someone else. Both Lee and Crawford competed for three years before they won the Miss Michigan and Miss Michigan Teen titles.

It takes dedication, but they said the payoffs are worth it. Their current beauty queen status comes with rewards including scholarships, cash prizes, professional connections and travel opportunities.

"I've met people from all walks of life," Lee said.

While the life of a queen takes up a lot of their time the girls have aspirations beyond their reign. Crawford, who is a senior in high school this year in Brooklyn, will attend Ferris State University in the fall to major in forensic biology. Her goal is to be a forensic psychologist dealing with criminals.

Lee received degrees from Georgia Tech and Clark Atlanta University in math and industrial engineering. She is currently employed by General Motors as their corporate staff auditor in the Detroit area.

Due to technicality, mayor makes new appointment

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Appointments made by Charlevoix Mayor Gabe Campbell were challenged, resulting in a change in the membership of the city planning commission.

At the city council meeting, Feb. 16, the mayor opted to appoint two new planning commissioners to replace Steve Bennett and John Campbell.

In appointing third ward council member Shirley Gibson to the commission, the mayor said he was following state law which requires a member of the legislative body to serve on the planning commission. Gibson served on the commission for five years in the 1990s.

The mayor made the council seat on the commission an annual appointment.

This appointment was researched by third ward councilman Sherm Chamberlain who said he wanted to make sure council follows the city code. Under the code there are four options for planning commission appointments.

City attorney Jim Young interpreted the code and found that the city has traditionally followed the option that appoints a member of the city's Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) to the commission.

At the March 1 meeting, council rescinded its motion to put Gibson on the commission and passed a new motion to appoint ZBA member June Cross.

Gibson said she wasn't disappointed to have lost the seat, but feels mayoral appointments like planning commission seats should be the mayor's decision.

"Our ordinance is very vague; my interpretation is it was meant to be vague so the mayor could choose which of the four options to use that the Michigan legislature has given us. I think this was a blatant example of a few people at city hall and on city council wanting their way," she said.

Mayor Campbell said he is comfortable with the change because Cross has over 20 years of experience.

The mayor's other planning commission appointments also were voted on again. The reappointment of Gina Whitney passed unanimously, but when it came to putting former Charlevoix County Planner John Hess in the other commission seat there was some objection.

Second ward councilman Bill Bellows and first ward councilman Bill Haggard voted against the appointment.

Mayor Campbell doesn't understand why they objected.

"(Hess) He's more qualified than anyone else in this town," he said.

Gibson also questions why Haggard and Bellows voted against Hess.

"Who are these council members voting against appointments of qualified people. What is the problem here and who is calling the shots," she said.

Hess has extensive experience with municipal planning serving as the local county planner, the assistant county planner for Marquette County and as a consultant for townships.

Hess also has had a hand in writing zoning ordinances which the mayor said will be useful as the city sets out to revise its master plan and zoning ordinance.

But Bellows said his vote had nothing to do with Hess it was related to Bennett and Campbell not being reappointed when he thought they should be.

Mayor Campbell said his decision to not reappoint them was because it is time for a change.

The new commissioners won't take their positions until April 1, when Bennett and commissioner Campbell's terms expire.

Garden Club awarded grant for historic gardens project

The Charlevoix Area Garden Club has been awarded a $2,500 grant from the Principal Financial Group Historic Gardens Project.

The funds will be used to continue the development of the Depot Heritage Garden at Charlevoix's historic railroad station. The National Garden Clubs, Inc. established the grant program under the sponsorship of the Principal Financial Group to enhance gardens at historic sites in communities across the nation.

"We are thrilled to receive this financial boost from the Principal and the National Garden Clubs. The dollars will make it possible for us to complete the work planned for the Depot Heritage Garden," said Joan Nowak, club president. "Beautiful gardens in Charlevoix bring pleasure to our residents and let visitors know that we are proud of our community and its heritage. Our gardeners grow more than flower, they help sow seeds for future enjoyment and community prosperity."

Members and volunteers from the Charlevoix Area Garden Club, the Charlevoix Evening Garden Club, the Charlevoix Historical Society and all others involved in the project are proud of the progress made in this garden.

Three garden rooms are complete and the fourth, and final, room is now being developed.

Generations of officers

Three generations posed for this photograph in recognition of three generations of Edmund K. Burke's in law enforcement. Edmund K. Burke, Sr., of Charlevoix, served the citizens of Michigan for 34 years with the Michigan State police. He is a 1949 graduate of Charlevoix High School and currently resides in Charlevoix with his wife, Darleen. He was a sergeant for 24 years at the Petoskey post and retired in 1990. His son, Edmund K. Burke, Jr., just finished a 28-year state police career. He retired in 2002 with the rank of captain and state fire marshal. He lives in Lansing with his wife, Vicki. Now the two get to watch as Edmund Jr.'s son, Edmund K. Burke, IV, carries on the family tradition as a police officer in Boulder, Colo. He joined the Boulder Police Department in 2003.

Council clarifies direction on Wal-Mart issue

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Charlevoix City Council meet in a special meeting Monday night to clarify the direction they want city staff to take regarding a proposed Wal-Mart supercenter in Charlevoix Township.

According to city manager Mike Wiesner, he and city attorney Jim Young were confused as to the direction the council wanted them to go in regards to a motion made at a recent meeting to gather information on a Wal-Mart supercenter.

Wiesner said he questions whether city staff has the expertise needed to gather some of the information, such as a economic impact of the development. However, Young said he believed the council wanted him to find ways to help the township stop the development.

"What type of information does the council expect us to gather," Wiesner asked at the meeting.

He said the city is already working on gathering information on how the development will impact local police services and traffic flows.

Council members gave Wiesner a list of items they are questioning with this development. Including how water runoff will effect Stover Creek — according to the anti-Wal-Mart group This Is Our Town, 13 million gallons of water will run off of the site per year — what are sewer hookup issues, how much it will impact local businesses, how the lights of a 24-hour Wal-Mart will impact the adjacent airport and many others.

Wiesner said Wal-Mart has discussed a sewer hook-up in the future with Wal-Mart. He added those were only preliminary discussions.

After discussing the matter, some council members decided a motion to have city staff find this much information would be costly and may be just duplicating the information that is being researched by Charlevoix Township.

Therefore, Young suggested commissions make a motion specifically stating council would like city staff to gather information on police serves to the Wal-Mart development, traffic issues, lighting impact, connection to city sewer, zoning and planning issues and environmental issues and conduct research and attend the appropriate meetings.

He explained this would give city staff the opportunity to find ways to gather the information needed through discussions with the township without costing the city too much. He said this motion could even allow the city to research ways to make Wal-Mart pay for studyies that would answer some of these questions the city has.

Council voted unanimously to accept this motion.

Wal-Mart wants to build a 157,000 square foot supercenter on US-31, near Marion Center and Stover roads. In comparison, Charlevoix High School is about 132,000 square feet.

Company officials have said they hope to have the store open in 2005.

THERE ARE GOOD REASONS WHY
PUBLIC NOTICE
APPEARS IN YOUR NEWSPAPER.

Currently, and historically, it is the responsibility of state and local government to publish public and legal notices here in Michigan's newspapers. This paper you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. And its pages hold your right to know what the government is doing in your community. In fact, it's law.

In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. That is why you have, and read, your newspaper, where public notices are published with accountable circulation and presented to you on these pages in clear black and white.

Rural development grant could be key to home

Many people who think they can not afford to buy a home are surprised at how affordable it can be.

A home loan program offered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture allows families and individuals the opportunity to buy a home with no money down and affordable monthly payments.

For more information on USDA-Rural Development home ownership programs any interested persons are invited to attend a meeting from 6:30 to 8 p.m. on March 25 at East Jordan City Police Department at 326 E. Main Street in East Jordan.

Last year 363 Michigan families purchased homes through Rural Development's direct home lending program. The program is available to low-income individuals or families in rural areas to purchase a home that will serve as their residence.

To qualify for the program an applicant's adjusted income cannot exceed 80 percent of the median income in the county. In Charlevoix County, a family of four can qualify with an adjusted annual income of up to $40,700.

The applicant must also demonstrate the ability to repay the loan.

The maximum amount an applicant can borrow in Cheboygan County is $116,500.

However, other than the maximum cost, there are few restrictions on what type of home can be purchased. For example a borrower can choose to purchase an existing home, a traditionally constructed new home or a manufactured one.

Rural Development also provides home repair loans to low income homeowners at an annual interest rate of 1 percent. The loans must be used for vital repairs such as new roofs, replacing furnaces, water and septic system repairs and making homes assessable for people with disabilities. Home repair grants may also be available for people age 62 and over.

An applicant's annual income cannot exceed 50 percent of the median income for home repair assistance.

A two-person household in Charlevoix county can have an annual income up to $20,350 to be eligible.

Students compete to make the best pancake flipper

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Charlevoix High School students work on their project for the Rube Goldberg competition. They created a device which would flip pancakes.

Juniors in the Robotics and Automation class at Charlevoix High School celebrated National Engineers Week by creating a complex device with the capability of flipping a pancake.

On Feb. 24 aspiring engineers from across the region gathered at the Rube Goldberg Device Competition at Lake Superior State University in Sault Saint Marie for a Flip Off.

The event recognized the famous engineer Rube Goldberg, who is known for complicating life's simplest tasks. Goldberg created a mechanism that used over 20 energy changes to squeeze toothpaste onto a toothbrush.

He would have been proud to see the Charlevoix group's pancake flipper that took months to brainstorm and craft using car parts and over 15 energy changes to turn the sweet breakfast treat over.

While Charlevoix's flipper looks just about as complicated as it gets, the competition was stiff. The Charlevoix team of about 10 students faced 22 teams from 13 schools.

At the event, the local group struggled to get the flipper to work, but after a handful of tries they successfully launched the cake. In the end their efforts were no match for the contraption a group of girls from Newberry built whose creativity and quality, durable construction won the acclaim of judges.

While Charlevoix didn't come away with the satisfaction of having won the event, the students said they learned teamwork, presentation skills and new approaches to abstract engineering.

Their teacher, Joe Woods, said the knowledge the students gained met his expectations for this quirky project.

In 2005 the competition will be national which means the next batch of Goldberg believers at the high school will vie for the title and may get a chance to move on to a regional competition in Milwaukee, Wis.

Wal-Mart official 'disheartened' by opposition

don't think we were aggressive enough in countering some of the those," Bisio said. "It is interesting to see some of these people out there predicting doom and gloom are the same people who came along and didn't give a second thought to moving into a community and replacing the corner shop."

In response, Bob Hoffman, president of This Is Our Town, said, "I don't think it is fear of the unknown. It is a fear of the known or what Wal-Mart does. Our petitions have over 2,500 signatures, which shows a wide-based opposition to (Wal-Mart). If there is a special interest group, it is the community of Charlevoix."

But, Bisio claims a Wal-Mart in Charlevoix could be a benefit through paying taxes and providing jobs.

"A project like this will do much to ease the taxpayers, because you are capturing much of that business that leaves," he said.

Hoffman said according to figures researched by This Is Our Town, a Wal-Mart generally costs a community more in police protection and other services than what it pays in taxes.

Bisio said the Wal-Mart planned for Charlevoix will bring about 250-300 new jobs. He added the average numbers for Wal-Mart are that 75 percent of its jobs are full time.

"There are so many communities that do just fine with a Wal-Mart," he said. "It helps fill a need in merchandising and brings in money."

Bisio said Wal-Mart will not be a competitor for many of the businesses in downtown Charlevoix, because those businesses fill a niche.

"This is a brand of retail that is unlike what we provide. We would complement what they provide," he said.

As for Kmart, Bisio said people should not assume that Wal-Mart would drive it out of business in Charlevoix and make its shopping area on M-66 a group of empty buildings. He said Wal-Mart did not consider the Kmart location for its proposed supercenter.

"Kmarts have survived with a Wal-Mart in town. In a lot of cases people shop both stores," he said. "Kmart has proved they are competitive and can survive and thrive."

Hoffman responded claiming Wal-Mart's idea of full-time jobs are 28 hours a week, while the rest of the working world considers 40 hours a week full-time. He added many of the figures that This Is Our Town have compiled shows that while a Wal-Mart may not harm downtown businesses too much, it will significantly hurt all of the other retailers in Charlevoix.

"All retailers in Charlevoix will suffer. We are not talking about just downtown retailers," he said.

He said figures show for each Wal-Mart that opens, two grocery stores close and area retailers suffer.

According to Bisio, data from the Petoskey Wal-Mart supercenter was the reason the company decided to even start thinking of Charlevoix as a location. He said point of sale data showed many people from the Charlevoix area were shopping at the Petoskey location.

While putting a store in Charlevoix would hurt its Petoskey location, Bisio said, "Our desire is to better serve our customers."

By putting a store in Charlevoix, Wal-Mart would be closer to many of its customers that shop in Petoskey, especially senior citizens, and it would ease the burden on the Petoskey store as far as volume of sales and people.

"You can get into a situation where a store becomes overshopped," he said.

The reason the company picked a supercenter, which includes a grocery area, was based on those same customer numbers.

"It's hard to ignore the food and grocery component. It is popular with customers," he said. "Customers drive the content of our stores. This store would be the appropriate size to serve Charlevoix."

Bisio also addressed the concerns some people have about this Wal-Mart contributing to sprawl in the area. He said Wal-Mart does not control what stores decide to locate around it and understands that it does create retail hubs in some communities, but the local planning commissions can control this.

"That's where your planning commission and city council and board of trustees have the opportunity to shape further growth," he said.

Overall, Bisio said he understood the concerns of Charlevoix people.

"Charlevoix is a special place. A place people like to live and visit," he said. "I would say we cannot afford not to do the right thing."

In response, Hoffman said, "I agree that Charlevoix is a very special place. But, it is not right for the community of Charlevoix. It may be right for Wal-Mart's profits."

> "Charlevoix is a special place, a place people like to live and visit. I would say we cannot afford not to do the right thing."

Islanders second in district

By FRANK SOLLE
Special to the Courier

MACKINAW CITY — After dispatching the Alanson Vikings 15-0, 15-1, the Beaver Island Islander volleyball team found themselves against a Goliath-like Harbor Springs Harbor Light Christian team in the District 123 championship match here last Saturday.

With a lineup featuring three 6-foot players, the Swordsmen proved to be too much for the Islanders as Harbor Light avenged last year's semifinal loss to the Islanders with a 15-7, 15-6 win to advance to regional play.

"We moved fairly well considering the speed of the ball," said Islander coach Connie Boyle. "We're just not used to that type of play. We don't have anyone we play all year that hits the ball at us like that."

Time and again Harbor Light's big players pounded the ball at the Islanders who scrambled to make the return. While the Islanders stayed close through the early part of each game, the power of the Swordsmen eventually wore them down.

"It's hard when the ball is slamming down at you," Boyle said, adding of the Swordsmen, "they have some pretty tall, hard-hitting girls."

The Islanders were the dominant team against the Vikings, outplaying Alanson in all aspects of the game.

Danielle Cary and Emma Adams were a force at the net, while Kerrie Gillespie and Rachel McDonough put in solid service games. Cary and Adams each had at least six strong kills in the match. Gillespie served up four straight aces in the first game, while McDonough keyed a 10-point run in the second game from the service line, including three aces.

The win over Alanson marks the second straight year the Islanders have won a semifinal match at the district tournament.

That was part of the team meeting its goals, according to Boyle. "Our first goal was to beat Alanson and we did. Our second goal was to play well and we played well."

Charlevoix Middle School wrestling starts

The Charlevoix Middle School and Elementary Wrestling program began its season at a tournament in Kalkaska on Saturday with 10 area schools competing.

First place medal winners were: Clinton Longley, Nathan Tripplehorn, Jake Novotny and Sammy Hovie.

Second place medals were awarded to: Nate Golovich, Travis Johnstone, Matt Golovich, Tony Filizetti, Thomas Rich, Jacob Roach, Austin Devries, Andrew Robarge, Sawyer Golovich and Eli Daman.

Medals for third place went to: R.J. Moore, Nick Mailloux, Brandon Darrah, Dylan Sladek and Avery Penfold.

Finishing fourth were: Max Braniecki, Zeke Daman, Chase Moore, Ryan Penfold, Steven Walden, Robbie Hovie, Casey Swadling, Eric Tripplehorn and Alex Waha.

Charlevoix will host a tournament Saturday, March 13 at the Charlevoix Middle School.

Rayders' volleyball team wins district tournament

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The Charlevoix Rayders won their volleyball district for the second consecutive year, defeating Elk Rapids in the final, 15-4, 15-2.

"It was a great team effort," coach Liz Grunch said. "We played against some very good teams but the girls weren't intimidated."

Charlevoix (32-10-2) added the district title to the accolade of Lake Michigan Conference champion which they had earned previously.

The Rayders advanced to the finals by defeating Traverse City St. Francis, 15-9, 15-5 and Suttons Bay, 6-15, 15-10, 15-11.

"The girls came in real focused and ready to play," Grunch said. "We were behind in the first game 10-0 to Suttons Bay but we fought back in that game and came back strong to win the next two."

Kari Way led the way with 29 kills and 25 digs. Andrea Ruhlmann had 28 kills.

Becca Kanine had 48 assists and was 26 for 28 serving with two aces. Sonya Plude was 22 for 24 serving with four aces.

Charlevoix plays at the regional next Saturday at Suttons Bay.

Midget hockey team's win streak continues on the ice

Boyne Area Hockey's Paul Bunyan Lanes Midget team continued their success this weekend with aggressive play on both ends of the ice and unselfish passing, resulting in two more wins.

Alpena's Burger King team came to play at the Polar Bear Arena on March 7.

Boyne took the first game 8-4. With three boys out injured and new lines, Boyne proved their versatility. Ryan Fields and Russell Williams each scored two, Eli Barsy, Dylan Clark, Stephen Cahoon, and Justin Conklin each added one.

Playmakers were earned by Conklin with four assists and Williams with three. Fields, Cahoon, Barsy and Evan Keller all gave one.

Bobby Courtright was in goal.

In the rematch Boyne ran away 5-1 by the end of the first period and kept rolling, resulting in a 8-3 win. Williams scored a natural hat trick with three straight goals, then added one more. Fields netted two and Keller one.

Fields and Conklin both earned playmakers with 3 and 4 assists, Barsy gave two, JP Fiedorek, Cahoon, Clark, Britt King and Keller all chipped in one.

Nick Ferree was tenacious in goal.

State swimmers

Two members of the Charlevoix Pool swim team Stingrays, Jonathan Boyko and Kathryn Sanchez, competed in the recent state tournament. Sanchez finished eleventh in the 26 Backstroke for 8 and under and Boyko finished twelfth in the 50 Freestyle, ninth in the 100 Freestyle and fourth in the 100 Breaststroke.

Basketball team loses last two regular season games

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The Charlevoix Rayders limp into the state tournament, both figuratively and literally, having lost last week to Kalkaska, 90-86 and Petoskey, 58-41.

The Rayders (15-5) have lost three straight games and dropped out of the Associated Press Class C top 10 this week.

Perhaps, more importantly, Charlevoixs top two scorers, Scott Friske and Jared Hunt have been hampered by injuries. Hunt played sparingly against Kalkaska and did not play at Petoskey. Friske played, but was not at 100 percent.

"We don't use injuries as an excuse," Charlevoix coach Keith Haske said. "Give them (Kalkaska and Petoskey) credit. They played very well against us. Kalkaska's coach said that was the best game they have played all season long without a doubt."

At Petoskey High School, a crowd estimated at over 2,500 watched the Northmen take an early 9-6 lead on an Anthony Wilhelm three-pointer that they would never relinquish.

The first half was tight with both teams turning the ball over more than usual in a defensive struggle. Petoskey led by as many as five, but the Rayders tied the game at 19-19 on a Cody Crain three-pointer and again at 21-21 on a Scott Friske jumper.

Petoskey scored the final three of the half for a 24-21 lead.

The third quarter was all Northmen as Wilhelm and Damon Huffman combined for 17 of Petoskey's 19 points in the period. Charlevoix only managed eight points as a team as they fell behind, 43-29.

The stunned Rayder nation watched in the fourth period as Petoskey extended the lead to as many as 19.

"They played very good defense against us," Haske said. "They switched defenses and didn't allow us to get into any kind of flow on offense."

John DiMartino led the Rayders with 11 points. Bryce Daly tallied 10.

The Charlevoix junior varsity won their season finale, defeating Petoskey, 69-61 to complete a 16-4 season. Kyle DeYoung scored 18; Matt Kautz had 17, Eddie Waldron 15, and Chad Ellis, 12.

Against Kalkaska, Friske scored 21 points and 11 rebounds in his return to action. Daly had 17 points, four assists and four steals. Ryan DeYoung scored 14 points and grabbed 12 rebounds. Ben Bergmann also had 14 points.

"I've been impressed with how we've responded (to the losses)," Haske said. "We've had two very good practices and the team has a good attitude coming into the tournament."

Charlevoix opened district play at Harbor Springs against the Rams on Tuesday, March 9, but results were not available at press time. The winner of the Charlevoix-Harbor Springs contest will play Thursday, March 11 against the Mancelona-East Jordan victor.

SCRAPBOOK

The conclusion of one man's survival

Marilyn Boss

'Days gone by'

The story of Claytons Brown's ordeal continues with how he survived the cold and his amazing struggle to traverse the ice and open water to reach shore after the savage snowstorm blew the ice flow he was on farther from shore.

He was a very determined man, and although his feet were frozen, he focused on the shore, and pulled himself across the rough ice.

The first person he saw was an old Indian woman. He later leaned that she was a member of the George Andrews family.

She was working at the woodpile in front of the nearest house. He called to her and asked if he could come in and get warm. She turned away without answering and started for the back door. Clayton didn't realize that she couldn't speak English and was going for someone who could.

He said that for the first time in those three terrible days, he cracked. He picked up a stick of stovewood and lumbered after her. He said "If you try to shut me out here in the cold, you'll stay with me."

He said he meant it, too. In that crazed instant he would have brained her without compunction. She didn't seem to hear him and she didn't look around. She opened the door and called, and her grandson a boy of about 16, came out. Clayton told him that his name was Brown and that he had been out on the ice. He didn't have to say anything more, for the family had heard the story on an old battery radio they owned.

Both of them had figured that all three of the men were dead. The boy and the woman stared at Clayton as if he had come out of the grave.

They then hurried him inside and the warmth of the fire felt wonderful to him. Clayton took his boots off and one look at his feet told him what he had feared. His feet were lifeless white lumps. Although he felt terrible about that, he actually felt fairly good and his feet didn't hurt him, nor did they later.

The Andrews family hurried to get food ready for him, consisting of meat and potatoes and raisin pudding. Of course; being so hungry, he wolfed it down, and it soon came up. The boy had left for Good Heart as soon as they got Clayton into the house, he hiked through the deep snow on a trail. A store-keep there phoned the Coast Guard at Charlevoix and told them that Clayton had walked in from the ice. They didn't believe it at first, but shortly after dark, a rescue party came. It consisted of county snow plows, a big crew of men with shovels, an ambulance and two doctors.

They gave Clayton a shot of brandy, put him on a stretcher and carried him up the bluff to the plowed highway where the ambulance was waiting. He was in the Charlevoix Hospital by midnight, under warm blankets. The next day, walking parties with sleds and an air search, combined to hunt for the bodies of Beardsley and Cunningham, the Coast Guardsman who lost his life. They couldn't, find them. The next day, the search succeeded and the bodies were brought ashore. It was just in time, for the day after finding them, the ice broke again and was blown out into the lake.

Clayton's frozen fingers healed, but he remained in the hospital for weeks while doctors tried to save his feet. It was a losing fight and gangrene developed. Both legs had to be amputated seven inches below his knees. He had several bad years before he adjusted to that loss and was fitted with artificial feet. By that time, he was ready to use them. He did learn to walk on his hands in the days before he got his artificial feet. He actually had to walk on the knuckles of this clenched fists in a sitting position with his arms down at his sides, and the stubs of his legs held out horizontally in front of him.

He said he was good at it and could swing himself across a room about as fast as a man on two feet. The doctors felt he could balance himself better if they made his prosthesis so he was four and a half inches shorter than before.

He went back to hunting and fishing. He walked many times for 15 miles in the woods on his wooden feet. He was even accepted as a heavy-equipment inspector, chiefly in refrigeration, by the Quartermaster's Corps, during World War II. He served three years in that capacity. One time, his wooden feet served him better than the real thing. He went hunting rattlesnakes in the Arizona desert. He wore leather chaps that hung below his knees, and didn't have to worry about being struck on the feet or ankles.

In the ensuing years of his life, Clayton lived in Harbor Springs with his wife, Imogene. Their three children married. He still did a lot of fishing for stream trout, bass, coho salmon, steelheads and anything that would take a lure. He broke a leg when he was 57 years old, but continued to enjoy duck and deer hunting as much as he ever did.

Clayton, in reminiscing about his adventure, said "If someone had told me how close I'd come to dying when I went out on the ice that winter morning, I would have laughed. Later, when I was lying in the skiff near two dead men, if there had been someone to predict that I'd live to get ashore, I wouldn't have believed that either. Adding up the score, I figure I don't have a thing in the world to complain about."

This had been a most intriguing story to write and I feel a much greater awe of the power and treachery of Lake Michigan. I remember fishermen telling how the big lakes could get as furious in a storm, or more so, than the oceans. Clayton Brown was a strong and determined man, and he was one who beat the odds of survival in the cold and ice.

Northwest band gets high rating

The Advanced Band students at Northwest Academy once again have received the highest rating possible at the District II Band & Orchestra Festival this past weekend in Petoskey.

Only three bands received all I ratings: Petoskey, Harbor Springs and Northwest Academy.

Gary Stutzman, director of bands, said, "These students have taken our program to a level that most bands can only dream about."

One adjudicator wrote, "This band plays with such clarity and emotion that the listener will be laughing one moment and in tears the next."

The Advanced Band represented Charlevoix and the Northern Michigan region well when they performed for the 59 annual MSBOA Music Teacher In-Service Conference in Ann Arbor on January 23. They braved one of our worst winter storms to get out of northern Michigan on the day before their performance.

At Hill Auditorium they performed music from this past weekend, brought back four graduates from 2003 and played music that was performed at the State Festival in the spring of 2003. Dr. Robert Stephenson, one of Stutzman's former instructors from Northern Michigan University, joined the band as guest conductor for one of the numbers. It is the dream of many bands to have the opportunity to perform in Hill Auditorium and Northwest Academy has been there, receiving high praise for a job very well done.

Stutzman feels that one of the reasons the Advanced Band plays so well is their dedication to, and involvement in, the District and State Solo and Ensemble Festivals each year.

After returning from Ann Arbor, the band began preparing for the District Solo and Ensemble Festival in Harbor Springs. The band has 228 members this year and they were entered in a total of 17 different events.

Several students played solos as well as ensembles. The musicians received first division ratings in fourteen of the seventeen events and have registered to perform at the State Solo and Ensemble Festival on March 27, at Manistee High School. The Solos and Ensembles going to State Festival are:

- Flute Quartet — Kristy Trudeau, Emily Hagen, Elizabeth Shepard and Kellie Young.
- Flute Duet — Trudeau and Hagen.
- Clarinet Choir — Celia McGee, Kelly Hand, Anna Kroon, Phoebe Allport, Amanda Seidel and James Slough.
- Sax Quartet — Joe Sievertson, Peter Londgren, Dan Sanchez and Liz Shepard.
- Sax Quartet — James Slough, Dan Sanchez, Alanna Leslie and Kellie Young.
- Sax Trio — Sievertson, Sanchez and Londgren.
- Brass Duet — Gina Attee and Devin Toton.
- Brass Sextet — Attee, Toton, Trisha Watkins, Trevor Londgren, Jennifer Fisher and Patrick Hand.
- Flute Solo — Hagen.
- Alto Sax Solo — Sievertson and Londgren.
- Baritone Sax Solo — Liz Shepard.
- Trumpet Solo — Attee and Toton.

The Advanced Band has now qualified for the State Band and Orchestra Festival later this spring.

Charlevoix is celebrating St. Patrick's Day this year as a tribute to the culture, food, and music of the Irish and our Beaver Island neighbors. Collect strings of Irish beads as you follow the music of the Sault Ste. Marie Pipe Band throughout town beginning at 5pm at Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant; 6pm at the Town House Bar; 7pm at the Villager Pub and 8pm at Grey Gables. Restaurants are featuring traditional Irish food and drink specials. Look for savings at merchants who are having "Saving of the Green" sales. Don't miss the dedication of the "1st Annual Pub Crawl" at 5pm at the Weathervane. Remember to wear your green!

EASTER EGG HUNT IS APRIL 10TH

The Easter Bunny is coming to Charlevoix! The 13th Annual Easter Egg Hunt is on Saturday, April 10 at 2pm in East Park downtown. Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant is hosting an Easter Bunny Luncheon from 11:00 to 1:30pm. Children may have a "free" photo taken with the Easter Bunny, compliments of Charlevoix Camera. Following the luncheon, the Easter Bunny is in East Park for the Easter Egg Hunt, which begins promptly at 2:00pm. Children's age categories are: 3 years and under, 4 - 6 years, and 7-10 years. There will be 5,000 eggs with prizes inside. The Chamber's Retail Promotions Committee sponsors this event. For more information, call the chamber office, 547-2101.

DO YOU KNOW YOUR CHAMBER?

TWO TIPS FOR CHAMBER MEMBERS:

1) Numerous inquiries are made to the Chamber Office and web site for business firms, products and services. Only chamber members are given as referrals.

2) Use the Chamber Membership Directory (printed & web site) to do business with other chamber members who, like yourself, have demonstrated that they are serious about not only their own success, but also the success of the Charlevoix area in general. The directory is the first place to look for suppliers of all types.

Wal-Mart postpones again

Meeting with township changed to April 28

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Wal-Mart has postponed its meeting with Charlevoix Township by one week.

According to planning commission chair Nancy Rajewski, the formal site plan meeting with the township planning commission originally scheduled for April 21 is being rescheduled for April 28. The meeting will be at the Charlevoix High School on Marion Center Road.

Rajewski said reasons for this change revolved around some concerns the Michigan Department of Transportation had with the Wal-Mart supercenter's site plan regarding access to the roads and some concerns the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality have over wetlands on the site.

Rajewski added the company has not submitted any official documents, such as an official site plan, and must have these required documents to the township by March 29, to meet the deadline for an April 28 meeting.

Bob Hoffman, president of the anti-Wal-Mart group This Is Our Town, said the organization does not object to the delay, but he does not think it is long enough.

He added, "At this point we are not sure whether those issues can be resolved with a one week rescheduling."

Hoffman said there are many issues with the wetlands on the site that need to be addressed and This Is Our Town would like to see a complete wetlands study of the site. This study would have to be conducted after the snow melts in the spring.

He added the group would also like to see an independent traffic study in the summer — Wal-Mart conducted its own traffic study. Hoffman said a summer study will give a more accurate depiction of what traffic will be like at the proposed site.

He added both the city of Charlevoix and the state department of transportation have expressed reservations about the traffic study conducted by Wal-Mart. The site would have entrances and exits on US-31, Marion Center Road and Stover

Another lawsuit for Norwood Township

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

A dispute in Norwood Township has sparked two lawsuits and another is just around the corner.

"The underlying problem is the township won't enforce the ordinance and they think they can get away with underhanded dealings with people," Norwood Township resident Mark Maynard, who has a stake in the lawsuits, said.

Frank and Barb Hamilton, owners of Auntie Barb's Country Kennel filed suit against the township in February to try and reverse a decision by the Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) that requires them to file for a new special use permit for their kennel operation.

The Hamiltons' attorney, Dan Barron said this is a "cut and dry" case which maintains that it is unfair for the township to require them to apply for a new special use permit after the kennel has operated for eight years under the old permit without being challenged.

"They are prevented from raising the issue of a proper permit because of the two year build out of the kennel facility and six years of operation," he said.

He said the only reason the issue came to light after years of the kennel operating with the township's knowledge was township politics.

At the root of the political upheaval are the Hamilton's neighbors, Mark and Marilyn Maynard, who have brought the permit violations to light. Mark Maynard is also a Norwood Township Board Trustee, a ZBA member and the former chairman of the township planning commission.

Marilyn said the whole thing started over screening that she and her husband say the Hamiltons are required by the zoning ordinance to have.

"All we wanted was some screening and some quiet. Now it's just so involved. It's turned out to be terrible, especially for the Hamiltons," Marilyn said.

The Hamilton property is located at 02161 US-31 in Charlevoix's Norwood Township. They were granted a special use permit to operate a kennel there on April 12, 1995 under the township's 1991 zoning ordinance. This 1991 ordinance was revised and the new ordinance went into effect on June 16, 1995.

The ZBA decided that the Hamiltons had not done work of "substantial character" to get the kennel operation up and running in the months between their permit being issued and the new ordinance going into effect. And because of that they ruled the Hamiltons do not have a vested right for use of their kennel facility.

The ZBA also ruled the scope of kennel operations has changed from what was approved in 1995.

This ruling means the Hamiltons need to get a new special use permit under the current ordinance, bringing the kennel and grounds up to today's ordinance standards.

The Hamiltons want Charlevoix County Circuit Court Judge Richard Pajtas to rule that the ZBA was wrong and they aren't required to get a new special use permit for their kennel operation.

Last week, the Maynards filed an intervention in this lawsuit claiming they have a stake in it too.

Mark Maynard said the township is going out of its way to defend the Hamiltons and he wants to make sure his rights are protected.

"The township intends to settle," he said.

Barron said the intervention isn't necessary because the interests of all township residents are well represented and protected by the township.

But Mark Maynard doesn't believe the township protects his interests. His skepticism of township operations is evidenced by the lawsuit he filed against township clerk Doris Pearl two weeks ago.

The suit claims that two Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) requests he filed in February with Pearl, who is also the township's FOIA coordinator, were not responded to in totality.

He asked for information and documents related to the Hamiltons' kennel operation. He said the information he was looking for was relevant to a lawsuit he is building against the township. This suit has not yet been filed.

If the Maynards do follow through and sue the township, this will be the third lawsuit facing it.

Pearl denied incomplete response allegations.

"I've been responding quite regularly to those (FOIA requests). There are none that I'm aware of that I've ignored," she said.

The Maynards are hoping the circuit court judge will order Pearl to produce the alleged missing documents.

Norwood Township Supervisor Wayne Boss said the lawsuits facing the township are a financial burden and the confrontational approach to dealing with issues has been difficult.

"We don't have the money to be fighting in court and this has created conflict in the township," he said. "It's just unfortunate that when this kind of thing happens people take sides and false information is given — it makes things very, very difficult."

Move over, slow down

EDITORIAL

According to some local law enforcement officers, people just don't seem to understand the law.

In several incidents, local law enforcement officers have said drivers do not abide by state law that says they must leave one lane between a patrol car and their vehicle when passing an officer who has made a traffic stop.

In many cases, the drivers speed right by the officer, in the lane closest to the officer's patrol car, thus creating a very unsafe situation. More than one officer has said a passing vehicle has come very close to hitting him or his patrol vehicle.

This situation is so unsafe, it has led to the deaths of officers around the state of Michigan, hence the creation of this law.

Basically, say you are traveling into downtown Charlevoix, south on Bridge Street, and are on the hill. Now, just as you come over the hill, you notice a Charlevoix Police Officer has a vehicle stopped on your side of the road, with the lights of his patrol car flashing.

Since there are two lanes traveling south on Bridge Street in this area, this means you must move over to allow one lane between you and the officer's patrol car. This keeps the officer and yourself safe.

Furthermore, if you are traveling south on a road with one southbound lane — such as US-31 — and you see a law enforcement patrol vehicle with someone pulled over to the side of the road, since you cannot give one lane of safety between you and the patrol car you must slow down. By speeding up, you create a very unsafe situation for the officer.

Law enforcement officers face enough dangers doing their jobs on a daily basis. Let's not add to those dangers with our unsafe and selfish driving.

It is not too hard to slow down or move over, plus it is the law.

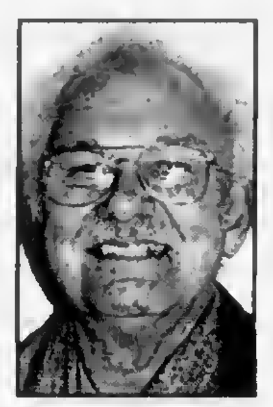
Local angler to represent state in Walleye tourneys



Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

March is not usually a good month for the dedicated fisherman.

For at least some of the month, the ice on lakes is too soft to walk on safely and too hard to push a boat through. But for one outstanding local fisherman, this March is one of considerable satisfaction and high expectations.

Brian Warner has been invited to join the Professional Walleye Trail for three Midwest tournaments this spring and summer. The Professional Walleye Trail is a Pro-Am fishing tour now in its sixteenth season. It includes the finest and most successful walleye fishermen in the nation.

Brian has been fishing tournaments for about six years, starting with local outings and moving up to state tournaments. The state tournaments are team affairs, normally with two people in each boat. Brian entered them as a solo and finished five tournaments in the top 10 with more than 100 teams in each. That brought him enough national attention to lead to photos in the October-November 2003 In-Fisherman magazine and personal recommendations that won him a place on the Professional Walleye Trail.

Only five new people out of 350 applicants are asked to join the Eastern Division of the Walleye Trail and Brian is the only one from Michigan this year.

Brian got his start in angling on tiny Harwood Lake, just off Warner Road on the south border of Charlevoix County, about the time he learned to walk, and has never stopped fishing. He probably knows Lake Charlevoix as well as anyone could. He makes his own lures — casting jigging spoons out of a mystery metal that only he knows the composition of. He would only tell me it was an alloy.

His unusual lures and his use of them have won him the nickname of Mr. Spoon Daddy among those he competes with. He also makes and uses bucktail jigs and crawler harnesses and whatever else it takes to get those five and six pound walleyes that are the key to tournament wins.

Brian claims to have learned from old timers, but I suspect that some of the old timers could learn a lot from him. A lifetime of fishing (Brian is 45) on a wide variety of waters have honed his skills to the point where he can compete with the best of the nation. His goals for the summer are to win a tournament or two and to have fun doing it.

At one point Brian turned down a full-ride sponsorship because it might have interfered with the fun.

His first tournament is April 21-23 on lakes and flowages in the Oshkosh, Wis. area. Since the Walleye Tour tournaments are Pro-Am events he will be fishing with a different amateur chosen by lottery each day. What a learning experience for them!

Let's all keep an eye on Brian this summer as he represents Charlevoix and the state of Michigan in the tournaments at Oshkosh, Wis. and later in Lake Erie near Cleveland, Ohio and finally in our own Lake Michigan's Bay de Noc, where the tournament will be filmed for the Outdoor channel.

Brian would not tell me all the best walleye spots locally, but he likes Intermediate Lake and had some fresh walleye filets from that lake in his refrigerator. We wish him not only success in the tournaments, but a continuing supply of those delicious filets.

Roger Knutson is a Charlevoix resident and columnist for the Charlevoix Courier. His columns appear every two weeks in the Charlevoix Courier. He can be reached by calling the Courier at (231) 547-6558 or by writing him at 408 Burns Street, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Editor:

I grew up in Charlevoix and still visit as often as I can. As I grow older the charm of my hometown draws me more and more.

Lately, however, there is a force at work which threatens the charm of our little town. I am of course referring to Wal-Mart. It is with tremendous interest I have been following the story and would like to weigh in with my thoughts on the topic.

First my conclusion: Wal-Mart is a terrible idea for Charlevoix. The town is just too small. That store will bleed Charlevoix dry, leaving downtown with some bars and little else.

Now for my argument: I have read the letters from those praising the low prices offered there and how low income families benefit. Wal-Mart does indeed sell for lower prices; I live near one myself and on occasion shop there.

But those low prices come at a very high cost indeed. That cost is in the form of lost jobs, jobs at the little shops downtown, replaced by low paying part-time no-benefit Wal-Mart jobs. Does anyone really think Wal-Mart will not market the same items sold in the quaint little Bridge Street shops, undercutting their prices and driving them out of business?

Every summer, money from all over the Midwest comes to Charlevoix and for the most part stays in Charlevoix as the shop owners spend the money they earn, further benefiting the local economy. With the summer visitors shopping at Wal-Mart, the money goes to Arkansas and Charlevoix is left with low-paying no-benefit part-time jobs.

After you read this letter, go take a look at Bridge Street; what will you see? It's March, so many of the seasonal stores are still closed. We all know these stores, their owners and employees depend on the three summer months to survive. Now imagine Bridge Street looking like it does today, but in July. That is where Charlevoix is headed if Wal-Mart opens there. Many of our treasured long-time businesses will be gone, and in turn no one will open new businesses for fear of competing with Wal-Mart — face it, to do so would be just plain stupid.

Downtown will be a ghost town. And with those little shops goes the small town charm which brings people here summer after summer — the summer visitors upon whose money Charlevoix relies will visit more pleasant surroundings for their vacations.

The other argument used in favor of Wal-Mart is the effect of less summer traffic downtown. That exact argument reinforces my point; the downtown businesses will be gone. People downtown spend money downtown and like it or not, Charlevoix needs those people and their money. A Wal-Mart south of town means less traffic downtown and that in turn means less money for Charlevoix and, in the end, more money for Arkansas. Is that really what you want?

Wal-Mart not the problem

Editor

The new money comes to Charlevoix enjoying the small town atmosphere and beautiful views, and who is the first to transgress those attributes?

The very same. Cases in point: Winn, Berlage, Heise. And now the city fathers are about to destroy the last vestiges of views of Round Lake by building boat slips into the lake. Wal-Mart ruining our small town? Give me a break! Towns and nations are destroyed from within not from without.

Library questions

Editor:

The proposed ballot of initiative for financing the new library at the former Charlevoix Middle School seems to be unfair.

The taxpayers can only vote yes or no on one very large and expensive library plan.

I think a majority of the taxpayers are in favor of a new library as well as utilizing part of the structure of the old middle school.

Before the bond issue ballot is prepared the following questions should be answered for the benefit of the taxpayers:

1) A reasonable cost to construct a building would be $220 per square foot. Why is the proposed plan costing $290 per square foot when utilizing 20,000 square feet of existing structures?

2) With library use declining, primarily due to the Internet and its increased access and use in private homes, why does Charlevoix need a library three times the size of the present library of 6,700 square feet?

3) Given the fact that there are now both public and private meeting rooms of comparable sizes in the area, why do we need another meeting room?

4) Will the children's garden and activity area addition require full-time adult supervision?

5) Is it prudent to utilize the old gymnasium knowing the school system has announced that they need another gymnasium in the future?

6) What will be the heating, cooling, power and maintenance costs of this large building complex?

7) What would be the actual cost of the $6 million bond with the interest included?

A more reasonable option for this project may be to construct an aesthetically matching addition to the north of the old middle school and not use the gymnasium. Combining the first floor of the old middle school (9,000 square feet) and building a 5,000 square foot addition would make the library 14,000 square feet.

Located in the addition would be the covered drive-up entrance, bathrooms, librarian's station or office, air conditioning equipment and the Internet/computer area. This option, a total of 14,000 square feet, when applying the higher cost of $290 per square foot would total $4,060,000 minus $1,000,000 of donation for a bond request of $3,060,000.

I believe the taxpayers of Charlevoix should be given the choice on the ballot for the bond.

Do they want a library twice the size or three times the size of the existing library?

Library answers

Editor:

This letter is written in response to Mr. George Schultz's letter, which was also pubished in another area newspaper.

Thank you for your concern about the Charlevoix Library Project.

I would like to invite you to attend a presentation that library volunteers offer at 10 a.m. every Wednesday in the library to help answer any further questions.

1) Our costs are approximately $216 per square foot, when looking at the overall construction project. By preserving the old middle school building we will create about 24,000 square feet of usable library space, which will extend the projected life of the library to well past 2050.

2) Library use is certainly NOT declining. Just in the past two years Charlevoix Public Library has seen a 12 percent increase in circulation. Computer usage has jumped 13 percent in just the last year. Technology has actually generated a larger need for our information and technology expertise to help guide patrons through the wealth of sites found on the Internet.

3) The library currently hosts a multitude of programs. Our Friends group sponsored at least six events during the year. Last summer the Jim Annis art show had over 500 attendees. The library's youth department provides weekly children's programs and the summer reading club attracts over 80 children. Our meeting room was used 90 times last year for different community organizations.

4) The children's garden will be accessible through the children's area of the library. The garden will not be supervised by library staff, but by parents. A children's librarian will staff the children's library.

5) The gym space will hold the adult collection. The school board decided to sell the facility, including the gym. It is my understanding that the school will take care of its own gym needs, not the library.

6) The library is currently undertaking a study on the most cost effective heating system for the facility so as to not hinder the operation of the library in the years to come.

7) The library's financial adviser is working on comparing overall costs of selling 20-year bonds versus 15-year bonds to fund the project. The library board is working toward an equitable and affordable way to finance the project.

The option of only using one half of the building for the library was investigated thoroughly at the public input sessions. There are many problems using that recommendation: 1) Who would own and maintain the other half of the building? No one ever came forward with dollars to take care of that problem. It is not the library's mission to maintain the expenses of a vacant room or a gym. 2) 14,000 square feet would not come close to accommodating our needs today, let alone in 20 or 50 years. Is it not wise to make plans for the future now when it would be less expensive to renovate the structure today?

In the years of planning and discussing this project, the library board sought to involve the public in every decision. The community has the opportunity to save a magnificent building, to expand library services, and keep the library downtown. If you have further questions, I urge you to contact your board representative or myself at 547-2651.

Books distributed

Members of boys and girls sports teams and the National Honor Society at Charlevoix High School recently visited Charlevoix Elementary School. They helped students in Kindergarten through second grades with a book distribution funded through the elementary school PTO.
High school students read books to the class and assisted children in choosing a book to keep. The high school students spent time reading to children in small groups and participating in classroom activities. Dominique Havens coordinated the event.

Timothy Bruce receives several industry awards

Timothy Bruce, president of Northern Michigan Benefits and Insurance Services, has qualified for several insurance industry awards.

Bruce qualified for the prestigious Million Dollar Round Table Award for the ninth consecutive year. This is one of the highest awards presented in the Life Insurance industry.

He also qualified for the Leading Producers Round Table for the tenth consecutive year. This is one of the highest industry awards for Health Insurance producers. Both awards are based on high volume of insurance sales and service and rarely do agents qualify for both awards.

Bruce has also recently been awarded his Chartered Life Underwriter designation for the American College. To obtain the CLU designation, candidates must complete a 10 course curriculum and meet high ethical and experience requirements. He will be presented his diploma in Tampa, Fla. in October.

Northern Michigan Benefits and Insurance Services are located in Charlevoix and can be reached by phone at 547-3423.

American farmers are the most productive in the world. While Americans spend 9 percent of our personal income for food, Japanese spend 17 percent, Italians spend 26 percent and Chinese citizens 53 percent. Imagine spending more than half of your income for food! In Charlevoix County, there are over 250 farmers producing a wide variety of products from milk, and honey to beef, pork and garden vegetables.

Farms may be as large as 200 acres. Many Charlevoix County farmers specialize in unique crops which only require a small amount of land. New agricultural venues for the 21st century include hydroponic and commercial fish farms, mushrooms, ginseng, ornamental trees and flowers.

For more information about agriculture in Charlevoix in the 21st century, call the county Farm Bureau offices at 547-2043.

Community foundation makes grant to Friends of the Jordan

Charlevoix County Community Foundation's Project Manager, Maureen Radke, recently presented a grant award of $5,310 to the board of directors of Friends of the Jordan River Watershed.

These funds will assist the ongoing renovations at the historic Jordan River Watershed Center.

Slated to open to the public this summer, Friends of the Jordan are busy transforming East Jordan's oldest commercial building and grounds into an environmental education - interpretive complex.

Formerly known as the "Vance Building" or the "Trading Post," Friends of the Jordan relocated this building in 1999 to its present site overlooking the mouth of the Jordan River adjacent to Sportsman's Park in East Jordan.

When complete, the Watershed Center will feature educational programs and environmental information about the Jordan River Watershed. In addition, ecological displays, demonstrations and workshops, theme gardens of native plants and trees, trails and wildlife viewing platforms are planned. Friends of the Jordan thanks the Community Foundation, its board and trustees for their strong continued support for this unique project. According to president John Richter, "We are truly blessed to have such a rich natural heritage. With the help of many individuals and organizations this community has rescued a relic from the past and transformed it to shepherd a new path for future environmental awareness."

Property taxes can be confusing for many

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Sometimes it seems that the state property tax code would make more sense written in a foreign language.

As with every year during March and April, Charlevoix residents — along with residents throughout the state of Michigan — are receiving their updated property tax assessments. To many, this paper filled with numbers is extremely confusing.

But Charlevoix County Equalization Director Tom Wolf hopes he can help you sort it out.

According to Wolf, residents throughout the county who own property will be receiving a property tax assessment form in the mail. While there are several numbers on the form, the numbers that matter are highlighted in pink. This shows the taxable value on your home.

Michigan state property taxes are based on Proposal A, which was voted in as a law about 10 years ago. Under this proposal, property taxes are capped, with the exception of rises for inflation, based on the selling price of the home at the time of proposal A. However, if you just bought a new home, your property tax amount was then changed to the amount you bought your home for.

What this means is if a person has owned a home in Charlevoix County that is taxed for about a value of $50,000 a year since the inception of proposal A, they would still be paying taxes based on that $50,000 number — with the exception of adjustments for inflation — even if their home is actually worth $200,000 now.

However, say a home next door sells for $200,000. Because ownership of that home changed hands, the new taxable value would be based on the $200,000 selling price. But, the taxable value will not change until it is sold again, with the exception of inflation.

For example, Wolf said the assessment on a home generally is 50 percent of the market value. In the case of this $200,000 home, that would mean the assessment would be $100,000. Because the property was a transfer of ownership, the new taxable value would be the same as the assessment or $100,000.

Now, all of this calls into question how a home is assessed, or priced. Each home in a township is given an assessment based on the value of the home given by the township assessor.

In Marion Township, the assessor is Wilson Boss, who is also the township supervisor.

Boss said he determines his assessments based on various features of the property, such as the square footage of the home, the location and the quality of construction.

"Floor joists, thickness of walls, ceramic tile, cathedral ceilings...it all has an effect," he said.

All of these variables are used to come up with a market price for the home if it were to sell. Usually, this process is done upon the sale of a home or upon its construction.

To become a home assessor, Boss said a person must take classes and then pass a test for a license. Plus, an assessor must have six hours of additional classes each year to have their license renewed.

While this seems like there is a lot of skill involved in the job, Boss admitted, "It is not an exact science."

Because of this home owners have the right to appeal an assessment at the Township Board of Review. And if they don't like the decision made by the Board of Review, they have the right to go to the Charlevoix County Tax Tribunal. Board of Review meetings are in early March.

You must have appealed to the board of review, either in person or in writing, before going to the tribunal. The tribunal usually meets in the summer. A specific date is not known at this time.

For more information on the state property tax code, see the Michigan Department of Treasury's Web site at www.michigan.gov.

Obituaries

Helen H. Phillips: April 17, 1916 - March 13, 2004

Helen H. Phillips, 87, of Charlevoix, died Saturday, March 13, 2004, at Boulder Park Terrace Nursing Home in Charlevoix.

A Mass of the Resurrection will be 11 a.m., Wednesday, March 17, at Saint Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Thomas Neis will officiate and interment will take place in the summer at Saint Mary's Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Helen was born April 17, 1916, on Beaver Island, the daughter of Peter and Vivian (Roddy) Gallagher. She graduated from Charlevoix High School and then received an associate's degree from Catholic Junior College (now Aquinas College), in Grand Rapids.

On Sept. 28, 1940, she married Ivan Phillips in Charlevoix, where they made their home. Helen worked as a secretary her entire life, mostly for government agencies in the Charlevoix area. She retired from Charlevoix Area Hospital as assistant administrator.

Helen was a member of Saint Mary's Church, and was active in its choir and the Rosary Altar Society. She was also a member or the VFW Post 1153 Auxiliary in Charlevoix, and a life long Notre Dame fan. Helen will be remembered by her family as being a wonderful mother.

She is survived by her children, Peter A. of Charlevoix, Ann Hanson of Comstock Park, and Richard A. of Lathrup Village; grandchildren, Owen, Amber, and Ethan Phillips; Elizabeth (Joseph) Fulsher, Mark Hanson and Kevin (Robin) Hanson; great-grandchildren, Jacob and Brodin Fulsher; Kenneth and Nicholas Hanson; brother, Danford "Chic" (Edna) Gallagher of Charlevoix; sister-in-law, Barbara Gallagher of Charlevoix. Her husband Ivan preceded her in death on March 9, 1975.

She is also preceded in death by her bother James.

Memorial contributions may be made to Saint Mary's Rosary Altar Society or to the Charlevoix Food Pantry.

Final spring musical coming up

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

What: Annual Spring Musical
When: 7 p.m., March 24
Where: Charlevoix Middle School gym

The end of an era has come — after over 30 years Marina LaBlance and her pint sized prodigies will perform the annual spring musical for the last time.

The Thirty-second Annual Spring Musical will take place at 7 p.m., March 24 in the Charlevoix Middle School gym located at 108 East Garfield Avenue in Charlevoix.

"It's been a 32 year tradition. It's been a community event. It brings all the children from first though fourth grades together with parents and friends," LaBlance, the founder of the school musical and the elementary school music teacher, said.

She explained that this will be the last hurrah for the event because the rolling bleachers in the event venue, the Charlevoix Middle School gym, are being removed to make way for more physical education space. And the change has made it impossible for the performance to continue at its current level.

"We've learned enough to know we would have to make big sacrifices to get it to work in the high school gym. So we are working really hard on making this a good, strong show," LaBlance said.

She is expecting the usual huge crowd, which tips the scales at over 1,000 people attending. Because it is her grand finale, the group of 343 students who have been practicing for months, are returning to the thematic roots of the first musical with this show called "Sing a Song."

The students will perform 10 upbeat, high energy songs and four dance routines during the 1.5 hour show. The song selections are a mix of everything from rock to country.

"There is something for everyone," LaBlance said.

The grand finale will be a farewell to what LaBlance said is a community tradition and to what many have come to know as a spring right of passage.

The show stopper will be a hard good-bye for LaBlance.

"I have a passion for what I do and I believe it is important. This night is for the children, every child is equal the night of the musical — they are all shining stars," she said.

Lake levels may be part of a 30 year cycle

By B. JON GOHS
Special to the Courier

Freighters resort to lighter loads, fish who spawn near shore lose habitat and possibly the worst side effect of Lake Michigan's low water levels is increased dredging.

"Low lake levels" have become buzzwords among many concerned with Lake Michigan's welfare. With so many wondering when Lake Michigan will return to its normal level some find themselves asking not when, but how?

Thomas O'Bryan, civil engineer with the Army corps of engineers in Grand Haven said, "It's extremely hard to forecast when Lake Michigan's levels will come back."

O'Bryan said, "Air temperature and precipitation may be the largest two factors controlling lake levels."

Some may be surprised to hear Lake Superior is a close third in controlling factors for Lake Michigan. Rivers and streams from Superior feed Lake Michigan much of its water. Thus a good year for Lake Superior is a good year for Lake Michigan.

Some may worry about Lake Michigan's continued well-being, but according to O'Bryan, "While Lake Michigan is about 4 feet below its all time recorded high, we are only about a foot below the long term average.

"This summer Lake Michigan should be up about 8/10 of a foot from last year if temperatures and precipitation remain normal. Snow accumulation, spring rain and tributaries entering the Great Lakes basin will work together to raise lake levels."

Optimistic projections of Lake Michigan's growth do little to ease the headaches which accompany low water levels.

According to Micheal Randall, senior deckhand at the Beaver Island Boat Company, Lake Michigan's current lowered level has caused a few issues for their ferry the Beaver Islander.

"We had to extend the ramp on the Beaver Islander side of the dock," Randall said. The ramp had to be lowered to match the lowered stance of the Beaver Islander.

Randall added, "The angle from the ramp to the boat is so steep now it makes loading and unloading cars and trailers difficult. When you have a 3,500 pound pack of shingles rolling down a steep grade on a fork truck, things can be tricky."

Another result of lower water levels presents itself during a swell, Randall said. "Swells usually happen in the spring. A swell is a separated long distance wave which collects in the bay and then rushes back out causing the already extremely low water levels to drop even farther."

Although Randall admits the swells haven't been too much of a problem as of late, they are always something for mariners to watch out for.

Commercial boaters aren't the only ones closely monitoring Lake Michigan's water levels.

Ben Keffer, of the Coast Guard cutter Acacia, said the Army Core of Engineers figures Lake Michigan to be down about 5 feet by averaging the depth from normal levels.

Keffer said, "The lower lake level has caused us to use more caution when transiting already shallow channels."

Narrow channels such as the Pine River can make for a nerve wrenching transition from lake to lake especially during low lake levels.

"We only have a couple feet of clearance between the bottom of the boat and the channel bed," Keffer said.

Another possible concern for the crew of the Coast Guard cutter Acacia is marking new shallow spots in the waters of Lake Michigan for boaters.

Keffer said, "The only other thing that we've noticed is some of our buoys had to be moved farther away from land due to the shoals, or shallow areas, mostly around the coast. The buoys we use mark shallow areas telling ships where to go and where not to go."

Keffer added, the water levels haven't been dropping so drastically as to create an immediate concern.

"Despite the lowered lake levels there haven't been any major constraints to Acacia's operational mobility," he said.

Bruce Smith, meteorologist with the local office of the national weather service said, "In the Charlevoix area, Lake Michigan has received 1.18 inches of precipitation for the month, 4.75 for the year of 2004.

According to Smith, "Lake Michigan's water levels continue to be below normal."

There are two main factors which control lake levels. One is annual precipitation and the other is air temperature.

Smith said, "Higher temperatures promote greater evaporation. Warmer winters leave decreased ice and when Lake Michigan isn't frozen it tends to lose water."

Low water levels are a concern for mariners of both large and small vessels.

Smith said, "The main problem in the navigation of commercial ships is in shallow channels. Property owners have trouble getting from the water to their docks."

Lake Michigan's levels may be low, but all hope is not lost. With the news surrounding Lake Michigan's decrease in size, some may be surprised to learn this is nothing new.

Smith said, "We have low lake levels comparable to the 1930s and the mid-1960s. There is some sort of approximate 30 year cycle to the fluctuation of lake levels. While we're not sure exactly what the correlation is, but there is definitely a pattern."

Lake Michigan's water level records date back showing 1964 to be the lowest year on record.

Council votes to pay attorney bill for planning commission

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Settlement of a dispute between Mayor Gabe Campbell and five planning commissioners is in the works and city council has agreed to foot the bill for the commissioners' legal expenses in an effort to sweep up the mess.

At Monday night's city council meeting, council voted 4-2 in favor of paying a $5,450.31 bill to Warner, Norcross and Judd, the Grand Rapids law firm representing the commissioners. Council members Shirley Gibson and Karen Campbell voted against it.

Third ward councilman Sherm Chamberlain, who voted in favor of paying the bill, said, "We needed to resolve it. If it went to court I could see more money being spent and I wasn't convinced the mayor was in the strongest position. I don't think the commissioners met the standards for removal."

The mayor announced his plan to remove commissioners John Campbell, Dennis Kusina, Francis "Brownie" Flanders, Steve Bennett and Richard Hodgson from their commission seats on Dec. 15. The decision stemmed from the commission's Dec. 8 meeting when those five members made the controversial decision to set a public hearing to listen to a request from Diane Gillette and Ruth Bellisimo, owners of Sunnybank Retirement Community, for a permit that if approved would open the door for their proposed assisted living facility.

The facility would be located on a two-acre parcel on Charlevoix's north side, off Petoskey Avenue, in the R-2 single family residential district.

This decision went against city council's Nov. 17 majority vote not to set a public hearing to discuss a zoning amendment to allow this type of facility as a special use in the R-1 and R-2 districts.

Chamberlain said it was that November decision not to set the hearing that sparked the whole problem and he blames the mayor who cast the tie breaking vote to deny the hearing.

"The mayor made a campaign promise to promote open government. And he violated that promise when he elected not to have a public hearing," Chamberlain said.

Mayor Campbell charged the commissioners with neglect of duty and inefficiency claiming they failed to adequately review and study the special use permit application filed by Gillette and Bellisimo before they set the hearing. He also claims that in scheduling the public hearing the commission didn't review pertinent legal issues and left the city vulnerable to a lawsuit.

The fees council agreed to pay were legal expenses the commissioners have incurred since early January in fighting these allegations.

Mayor Campbell didn't agree with council's decision.

"I would never agree to pay them. He (the attorney) came up with the same solution I gave them for nothing — rescind the motion and I'll drop the charges," he said.

The mayor has agreed to cancel dismissal hearings if the commission rescinds its motion to set that hearing.

According to commissioner Campbell the commissioners plan to rescind the motion. A planning commission meeting has not been set.

However, if the motion is not rescinded, Mayor Campbell said he plans to move forward with the dismissal.

Commissioner Campbell said they also plan to consider recommending the same zoning ordinance amendment to city council to have that public hearing set that they denied back in November.

Chamberlain said he would support setting that hearing.

"The process should have gone through. It wouldn't hurt to go back to square one on this," he said.

But he said it could be kind of a moot point now because Gillette and Bellisimo have filed a lawsuit against the city claiming the zoning ordinance excludes assisted living in the city.

Big Rock whistleblowers suit may go to trial

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

A former carpenter at Big Rock Point has filed a whisleblowers lawsuit against Consumer's Energy, which owns the plant currently being decommissioned.

Warren Hall, the carpenter from Gaylord, said he was fired from the job after bringing safety concerns to management at the restoration project. A recent attempt at coming to a settlement was rejected by Hall and Consumer's Energy, meaning the suit will probably go to trial.

In court documents, Hall claims he was one of the most qualified and experienced carpenters at the plant and has obtained various amounts of training and certification. With this experience he noticed countless safety issues and concerns at the plant, which he brought to the attention of management — both Consumer's Energy and the contractor overseeing him, PMC Constructors and Technical Services LLC.

But, these notices did not endear Hall to management and he was rarely put in charge of a job after filing these reports, the paperwork states. Hall adds management made derogatory comments about him.

He was laid off from his job on Nov. 14, 2002. He notes that carpenters with less experience than him were kept on the job.

One of the safety concerns Hall said he noticed was when some "contaminated" flooring from a radioactive spill at the plant was taken to the Water's Landfill without being checked out.

According to Jan Strasma, of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, the incident in question revolved around a situation that happened about 27 years ago when a test tube with powdered uranium was dropped and broke. He said the spill was immediately cleaned up by plant officials.

During the dismantling of the plant, the flooring where the spill took place was inadvertently shipped to the Water's Landfill and buried. However, investigations showed there were no higher radiation levels in the building where the spill took place or where the flooring was.

Another safety concern Hall claims happened when a crew was working in an enclosed room inside Big Rock and were exposed to asbestos particles. Hall states these particles looked like "snow" falling inside the room.

He added the workers did not have respirators or other protective clothing.

Hall is seeking over $25,000 in lost wages and damages.

Tim Petrosky, Big Rock spokesperson, said he could not comment on the lawsuit because of pending litigation.

"Consumer's Energy believes the case is without merit, and we look forward to vigorously defending ourselves if the case goes to trial," he said.

Many islanders enjoy the winter life

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Beaver Island is no different from any other northern Michigan area in the winter, according to its year-round residents.

While the population of the island drops from thousands to about 400 individuals in the winter, many islanders still enjoy the same activities that mainlanders enjoy and some say they prefer the winter to the summer.

Bill Cashman, director of the Beaver Island Historical Society and owner of the island newspaper Beaver Beacon, said, "I personally love the winters. In the summer I lose track of my own projects because everybody on Beaver Island responds to the demands of the moment....all those things that I would like to do that I would regard as something that justifies my existence and gives me satisfaction are things that I have to put off until the winter."

Cashman has been a resident of Beaver Island for about 30 years.

He added with a laugh, "When that first snow comes I know that is going to keep people away that are going to bother me, so I really love the winter."

Cashman said he is not really an outdoor sportsman, so he spends his time working on projects like the Beacon and his internet editing service.

Robert Cole, co-director of the historical society, said while the winters are long on the island — as they are in northern Michigan — there are many activities to take part in.

He said there are bridge tournaments, many people like to snowmobile, ice fishing is popular and island winter school sports, such as volleyball or basketball, are becoming very popular. Plus, for those with a taste for the arts, he said groups have been using grants for the past two years to take "field trips" to the mainland to enjoy plays or art galleries.

Dave Parker, island resident, said when he is not working, he enjoys the social life on the island. Once the winter hits, islanders become a sort of large family, which is something he said he enjoys.

"People are more laid-back and open. Everybody knows everybody, we are all friends," he said. "Everybody is more than happy to help out when it is needed. Everybody is family, regardless of whether or not they are related or not."

Eric Hodgson, owner of the Shamrock Bar on the island, added, "I think the ones you are not getting along with are getting along this time of year. It is a lot of small town USA type of stuff.

Hodgson said when islanders are not working in the winter — he said there is a fair amount of construction taking place — they enjoy many different activities. Many people tend to come to the bar in the evening to socialize, play pool or darts and get something to eat.

"It is just a reason to get together," he said.

As for shopping, while it is a little more difficult for islanders to just hop in a car and head to the nearest mall, many have figured out how to make do.

Cashman said, "We too can hop in a car after we hop on an airplane. There are people that once a week or once every three weeks that have to go shopping or go to a Chinese restaurant. There are stores in Charlevoix that will take something down to the airplane; there are also businesses which will do shopping for islanders on the mainland."

A lone snowmobiler rides down an empty street on Beaver Island recently. But, while the summer residents are gone, year-round islanders still find many ways to have fun.

Cole added there are two island grocery stores and a hardware store that has many items islanders may need and there is always the option of internet shopping, which has become very popular among many islanders.

In fact, it is the internet which some residents believe will lead to a bright future for the island. People like Cashman believe by having better internet connections on the island, it will attract more year-round people.

"Our internet capability is slowly but steadily increasing. Much of what would allow more people living on Beaver Island in the winter is connected to internet access. This would allow people who telecommute the opportunity to live on the island year-round," he said. "The picture that we have is people coming up here and working on their office away from their office."

Cashman added, "I don't know if it's real or just my dream of how things could go."

Cousineau appointed interim treasurer

Marilyn A. Cousineau was appointed the new Charlevoix County Treasurer.

Cousineau will serve out the remainder of the term of former treasurer, Joan Balch who retired effective March 1.

The appointment was made by a committee comprised of Charlevoix County Clerk Jane E. Brannon, Prosecutor Mary Beth Kur and Probate Judge Frederick R. Mulhauser.

Cousineau took the oath of office March 10, 2004. Her current term will expire on Dec. 31, 2004 and Cousineau said she intends to be a candidate for the position she now holds in the coming November 2004 election.

"Marilyn Cousineau comes to this position highly qualified because she has experience in both the banking and investment industry and has also served as an elected official for over twenty years. We all look forward to working with her," said Kur.

Charlevoix County Clerk Jane Brannon added, "With her experience in budgeting, working with an elected Board and in dealing with the public, I believe Marilyn will be an asset to Charlevoix County."

Cousineau will soon leave her current employment at Edward Jones Investments where she works as a Branch Office Administrator. Cousineau has also served as the Boyne Falls Village Clerk for nearly 15 years.

She was first elected to that position in 1988. In addition to her experience as an elected official, Cousineau has also worked in the banking industry as a loan officer and as a branch manager for 22 years.

Mikulski retires from area health department

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Charlevoix resident Dean Mikulski, 61, moved to town in May of 1966 to protect Charlevoix's natural resources and now, after almost 38 years of service, he has retired.

"I wanted to start at the top with something good to work with and protect it. Charlevoix was a dream come true — it still is," he said.

Mikulski was 24 years old when he accepted the assistant environmental health services job with the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency. He transferred to Charlevoix from Oakland County where he said working to save the environment was like trying to crawl out of a hole.

In this area, the damage hadn't been done, development was sparse, there were no marinas on Lake Charlevoix, no condominium developments, subdivisions or fast food restaurants.

But growth was just around the corner and few rules were in place to give Mikulski the ammo he needed to fend off environmental assaults.

"There weren't requirements for much of anything," he said. "It was kind of a free for all."

He was named environmental health director in 1968. Right around that same time regulations went into effect including sanitary codes for well permits and septic systems. He has seen this bare bones system blossom and now communities have zoning regulations and measures to protect wetlands and dunes.

These regulations which are enforced in part by Mikulski's department came just in the nick of time as growth in the health agency's coverage area started to boom.

"This is one of the fastest growing communities in the state. As far as the local health department goes issuing permits for new construction, we are in the top six in the state, not far behind Oakland County," he said.

His department has issued about 10,000 permits in Charlevoix County for installation or replacement of septic systems since he started, 75 percent of which were for new construction.

Part of the huge responsibility Mikulski's 14 person staff currently has includes overseeing 600 licensed eating and drinking establishments, regulating water supplies, inspecting 140 public swimming pools and evaluating schools and daycare facilities for safety, cleanliness and air quality.

"We do a little bit of everything, it's a huge responsibility," Mikulski said.

Mikulski has watched as open land has been converted to housing developments and dairy farms, forests and open space have been replaced by golf courses and subdivisions.

While the quiet utopia he signed on to protect in the 1960s has grown exponentially with the residential population doubling, he said the environmental practices today are better.

Back then, industrial hubs located on the waterfront dumped whatever into it.

"People didn't know what they were doing," he said.

He said water quality is better now that old industrial discharge practices have stopped.

"Our water is very good even with all the development we've had," he said.

Looking back Mikulski said he has seen a lot of things improve.

"I never realized how many accomplishments we've had. Making the water safer to drink, addressing solid waste issues, repairing and replacing sewage systems, making schools safer, resolving indoor air problems," Mikulski said. "I think the people that work here have done a good job with all the pressure making it a great place to live and come to."

He added that the greatest environmental challenge facing Charlevoix County as he leaves is the same as when he arrived, protecting the resources that exist.

"The challenge we face is the continued eroding away of what people are coming here for — open space, the countryside and clean water. Wal-Mart, Kmart and strip malls are a symptom of what has been going on here for 38 years. They wouldn't be here if the people weren't here," he said.

With continued growth Mikulski stressed that communities need to start looking to shared water and septic systems.

But these communities will have to take this next step with another face at the helm. Mikulski's official retirement was March 1 and these challenges now face the next generation of environmental wizards bent on protecting the area's resources.

While interim director Scott Kendzierski takes over, Mikulski plans to use his down time to fish Lake Charlevoix's clean water.

"There's still plenty of room out there, even on the weekends," he said. "If I get tired of fishing, I'll see how things go."

Council considering giving land to local skate park group

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

A skateboard park is one step closer to locating in Charlevoix thanks to the political savvy of a group of teens and the support of city council.

Over 40 elementary through high school age students packed the city council meeting March 15. They set up a Power Point presentation and wore a picture of a skateboard pinned to their shirts.

They were there to make their case as to why a skate park would be a valuable asset in Charlevoix and to ask for the city's support.

The number one point that was made was a park's ability to provide a safe place for kids to pursue their passion. Because skateboarding is not allowed on city streets or sidewalks, the kids often search out unauthorized, unsafe places to ride.

The problem was brought to light in the fall of 2003 when Zeke Daman, 13, of Charlevoix, wrote letters to area newspapers upset that there is no place in town for him to ride his skateboard.

Zeke's letter sparked interest from a huge group of in-line skaters and skateboarders prompting the start of a planning effort to bring the Charlevoix Community Skate Park to town.

So far, the skate park effort has been supported by Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce president Jacqueline Merta, Charlevoix City Police Chief Dennis Halverson, Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools Dr. John Sturock, Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater and area business owners and churches.

The project will cost about $200,000 and they are hoping to start construction as early as this summer. The students and parent volunteers are willing to raise money to pay to build it but a major hold up is the location. Vickie Daman, a parent coordinator for the group, estimated the project requires about an acre of land.

Patsy Ramsey, also a parent coordinator for the group, told council, "What we are saying is take us to the dance and we'll pay our own way. We just need a date."

This is where the city has stepped in.

Council voted unanimously Monday night to include the skate park in the Mount McSauba feasibility study and to look at other locations in the city where this type of facility could fit.

"I think it would be a shame to turn them down. I would hate to see them lose grants and donations," Mayor Gabe Campbell said.

While council supports their efforts, it was clear that this facility will have to support itself; council stressed they are not willing to subsidize the effort.

Daman said the proposed facility will be supervised and admission will be charged to help pay the supervisor's wage and for insurance and maintenance costs.

City manager Mike Wiesner was skeptical that the facility would be able to operate without city funds and reminded council that the budget is tight and there isn't much property available in the city.

The outdoor Traverse City skate park located in the Grand Traverse County Civic Center sustains itself.

With council's support behind them the group is jumping head first into its capital campaign with hopes of raising about $200,000. To kick off the campaign, the students have organized a Sk8-a-thon to take place from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. March 22 at the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church located off M-66.

Their goal is to bring in about $16,000.

Packets to participate are available at Charlevoix Middle School located at 108 East Garfield Avenue in Charlevoix.

The group is also one of eight being considered for a grant from American Eagle Outfitters which could bring in $22,000. They will hear the decision on that application in April.

For information on the Charlevoix group's drive to bring a skate park to town or to donate, visit www.planner.eskal8.org or call Vickie at 547-8063.

Island snow

Above, after a recent snowstorm on Beaver Island, this plow was seen cleaning up the street by the ferry Emerald Isle's winter home.

I can do that!
I can do that!
I can do that!

I can do that.
Just Ask!

It's a pretty bold statement, considering we don't even know the question yet. Northwestern Bank is locally owned and each office is locally staffed and managed. Decisions are made right here by people with the answers, who are empowered to do what needs to be done. The person you ask is the person who'll make sure it happens.

You'll never get answers like, "That's not my department." Or, "You'll have to call this 800 number." When you ask anyone at Northwestern Bank, big things happen right away.

If your bank "can't do that," maybe it's time you found one that can.

Public Notice?

Without it in your newspaper, you're left guessing what the government's doing in your community.

Public notice is the people's right to know the issues that affect them directly, and people know the place to find public and legal notices is in the newspaper. What you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. Public notices have been posted here since the days of colonial America. In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. Why guess? That is why you have, and read, your newspaper... where your right to know is already being served.

Ramsey considering run for Bradstreet's seat

RAMSEY

of my life," he said as part of his reasoning for considering the run. "My philosophy is, 'Don't make a decision until you have to.'"

Ramsey said thoughts of running for the seat began to swirl in his mind when Charlevoix resident Susan Flanders decided against running about a month ago. He would be running as a Republican for a seat currently held by Representative Ken Bradstreet, who is term-limited from running again.

Ramsey said he is currently touring the area talking to people to learn what the issues are and what he can do for people.

"I am still investigating. I am in the data gathering phase," he said.

One of the issues Ramsey has learned about in his research is a docking situation in Boyne City.

"That is something I can get passionate about," he said.

Other issues deal with the recreational needs of the area. Ramsey said he enjoys every season that northern Michigan has to offer.

"We have this great asset and a whole recreation industry that is here and based on that asset...what can I contribute and make a difference on?" he said.

Ramsey added, "I have a pretty good track record of getting things done."

He said his investigation has been pretty encouraging. Most people think it would be great if he decided to run, Ramsey said.

Ramsey added he recognizes that sometimes the political system can be a "little vicious." But, he believes he has dealt with some vicious issues in the part and thinks he can handle anything that is thrown at him.

Ramsey is the father of the late JonBenet Ramsey. JonBenet's murdered body was found in the basement of their Colorado home on Dec. 26, 1996. No charges have been filed in that case. However, tabloid media made wild speculations that resulted with the Ramseys filing a few lawsuits against them for some of those claims.

Ramsey said this time in his life was the "worst of the worse."

He added, "Relative to the whole tragedy of the loss of our daughter, the legitimate media has figured out what is right and wrong. That shouldn't prevent me from doing something."

Ramsey said he does not believe the tabloid media will get involved in this possible campaign, but if they do, he said he will deal with it.

Local Charlevoix Republican Party Leader John Haggard said he was excited over Ramsey possibly running for the 105th District seat.

"If he decides to do it, I'll support him 100 percent. I think he is an excellent businessperson and a good person in the community," he said. "He would be a heck of an asset with his business background to represent this area in Lansing."

Ramsey has been a small businessman most of his life. Until 1998, he was involved in a computer company and is now consulting other businesses. His wife, Patsy, has also started a local company with two other women in web design and development.

Ramsey said he and his wife moved to Charlevoix full-time last summer after a lot of talk. He said he was concerned about moving his 17-year-old son, Burke, to a new school. But, he learned Burke wanted to go to Charlevoix High School.

Ramsey's first experience with Charlevoix came when he was 20 years old and was driving through Charlevoix. Originally from Lansing, Ramsey loved the area and kept it in his mind when his family sold their cottage in Mecosta in 1986.

He and Patsy started coming to Charlevoix around 1986.

Besides his late daughter JonBenet and son Burke, the Ramsey's have two other children, Melinda and John.

They also have another daughter, Beth, who was killed in an automobile accident in the early 1990s.

Be safe when walking roads

Sheriff George T. Lasater said several motorists in Charlevoix County have contacted the Sheriff's Office with concerns where they almost hit a pedestrian on the roadways who were jogging, walking or exercising their dogs.

Due to the large amount of snow it has required these pedestrians to walk further in the roadway than usual.

The sheriff requests in the evening pedestrians wear reflective clothing or carry a flashlight or flashing light of some type.

Road.

According to a letter from Charlevoix City Manager Mike Weisner to Wal-Mart project manager Allen Oertel, he said the city would not be in support of the supercenter's main entrance or exit on US-31 and putting a traffic signal in that area.

"The construction of your main entrance/exit in such a close proximity to the Marion Center intersection, as well as your mention of signaling this location, is in conflict with our long-term traffic plans for this area of the city," Weisner wrote.

Weisner also wrote that the city is against a connection to Stover Road from the supercenter, specifically due to its impact on vehicles turning into and out of the site from Marion Center Road.

"The curves adversely affect sight distance and the proximity to US-31 is close enough to result in northbound traffic on Marion Center Road staking past this intersection," he wrote.

Wal-Mart would like to build a 157,000 square foot supercenter on US-31 near Marion Center and Stover Roads. Officials have said they would like to have the business open in 2005.

Women's Resource Center to host parenting class on April 14

A parenting workshop, based on the best-selling book, How to Talk So Kids Will Listen & Listen So Kids Will Talk, is from 6:30 to 8 p.m., Wednesday, April 14, at the Women's Resource Center in Petoskey.

Parents will learn proven skills, such as how to set limits while maintaining goodwill, cope with their child's negative feelings, express anger without hurting, engage their child's willing cooperation and help their child become caring and responsible. Parents will also learn how to resolve conflicts peacefully and create a family atmosphere of love and respect.

The six-session workshop is sponsored by the Women's Resource Center and will be led by Betsy White, MSW. The cost of the workshop is $80 per person or $85 per couple, materials are included. Funding sources are available for current customers of FIA programs.

Please contact Charlevoix-Emmet Family Independence Agency or the Women's Resource Center for an application. The dates of the sessions are from 6:30 to 8 p.m., Wednesday, April 14, 21, 28 and May 5, 12, 19. Certificates of Completion will be awarded at the conclusion of the program. Advance registration and payment is requested. Space is limited.

"Parents are on the firing line seven days a week. Yet few of them have had any training for this demanding job. No wonder even the most well-intentioned parents often find themselves feeling frustrated, bewildered, guilty or alone," said Adele Faber and Elaine Mazlish, award-winning authors of the book and program. "The How To Talk So Kids Will Listen workshop gives parents a chance to learn practical new skills and exchange ideas and experiences with each other."

Hundreds of thousands of parents and professionals have benefited from the How To Talk So Kids Will Listen workshop. In studies in Wisconsin, Colorado and North Dakota, researchers found that attending parents developed skills that significantly and lastingly improved the quality of their family life.

They also found these new-found skills worked equally well with children of all ages.

To register, please call the Women's Resource Center at (231) 347-0067.

Rayders take district crown

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

Rumors of the Charlevoix Rayder's demise were extremely exaggerated. The patient is alive and doing well, thank you.

After closing the regular season with three consecutive losses, Charlevoix got back into more familiar territory last week, winning their sixth consecutive district championship under coach Keith Haske, defeating Harbor Springs, 75-65, East Jordan, 91-53 and Elk Rapids, 71-53.

"I was real pleased to see us come out of that funk or whatever we were in," Haske said. "We really came out in the second half against Harbor."

The toughest test came first against the host Rams. After a back and forth first quarter, Harbor Springs led throughout the second. Charlevoix trailed by as many as 13 at 40-27 before the Rayder's Cody Crain hit a three-pointer just before the halftime buzzer.

In the second half, the Rayders, who had not used their trademark press through most of the first half, changed defenses and pres-

Volleyball team falls in regional tournament

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The Charlevoix Rayders closed out a great volleyball season with a tough loss in the regionals against Marion, falling 15-7, 15-11.

"It was disappointing to end the season that way," coach Liz Grunch said. "We've had a successful season but we had an off day in a big game. You can't make that many unforced errors at this level of play."

The Rayders led 9-0 in the second game before Marion scored 10 straight points to take the lead for good.

Becca Kanine led the team as she has all season with 16 assists and had two aces serving. Kari Way had seven kills. Theresa Martin had seven digs and four kills.

Andrea Ruhlmann contributed five kills and three blocks. Shayna Drost added seven digs.

Charlevoix finished the season 32-11-12 and champions of both its district and the Lake Michigan Conference.

sured the Rams fullcourt. The change in defense seemed to increase the Charlevoix intensity and rattle their hosts.

After trading baskets to start the half, the Rayders reeled off 10 straight points in a three minute span, capped by five straight points by senior all-stater Scott Friske. The spurt tied the game at 42-42 with 4:07 left in the period.

Another Crain three-point shot a minute later gave Charlevoix the lead to stay at 45-44. Crain followed the long range jumper with a steal and drive for a hoop to give the Rayders some breathing room. Charlevoix scored the final six points of the quarter for a 53-46 advantage.

An 8-0 blitz in the fourth quarter included three straight steals and layups for the Rayders, two by senior Bryce Daly to blow the game wide open at 63-48. Harbor never seriously threatened again.

Our intensity rose in that second half, Haske commented. Friske and Daly played really well down the stretch and that's what you need your big players to do in the tournament.

Friske, looking recovered from his nagging ankle injury, led Charlevoix with 17 points and 10 rebounds. Crain finished with 16 points and six assists. Daly tallied 14 points and six steals.

Ben Bergmann and John DiMartino scored 10 and eight respectively. Junior starting guard Jared Hunt injured an ankle in the second quarter and did not return to action.

The Rayders next defeated East Jordan in a laugher, 91-53. Charlevoix outscored the Red Devils in every quarter, including a 31-16 fourth quarter bulge.

Friske led the team with 18 points, 12 rebounds, three assists and two blocks. DiMartino scored 17 points, a career-high.

"John DiMartino really stepped up for us all week long," Haske said. "It was really a key with Jared Hunt not playing as much."

Daly had an exceptional game with 16 points, nine steals and three assists. Bergmann scored 12 while Crain had eight and five assists.

In the anti-climactic final against Elk Rapids, Charlevoix took away any mystery by besting the Elks, 24-8 in the first quarter. They led 44-22 at the half and coasted to victory.

Friske scored 25 and grabbed 10 rebounds. Hunt, looking fit following his injury woes, scored 13. Daly added nine. Ryan DeYoung tallied seven.

Charlevoix (18-5) played against Mio Tuesday, March 16 at Petoskey High School. Results were unavailable at press time. The Rayders defeated Mio in the first round of the regionals last year.

Asked about the team's historic success in the tournament, Haske answered, "There's no magic or anything. First of all, we have great kids. They come in with the expectation that they're going to win. Our tradition is a big part of that.

"A lot of teams are winding down and ready for the season to end. Our guys like being together, they're having fun and they want to keep playing."

The winner of the Charlevoix-Mio contest will play the winner of McBain-Traverse City St. Francis at Petoskey on Friday, March 19 at 7:00 p.m.

LEGAL NOTICE 210

MORTGAGE SALE

THIS FIRM IS A DEBT COLLECTOR ATTEMPTING TO COLLECT A DEBT. ANY INFORMATION OBTAINED WILL BE USED FOR THAT PURPOSE.

Notice is hereby given that Default has occurred in a Mortgage given by Robert R. Graves and Linda T. Graves, husband and wife, mortgagors, to Independent Mortgage Co. Central MI, mortgagee. The Mortgage is dated October 3, 2000, and was recorded on October 6, 2000, in Liber 398 on pages 393 through 399 of the Charlevoix County records. The balance owing on the Mortgage as of the date of this Notice is $9,437.09, including interest at 9% per year variable. The Mortgage contains a power sale clause and no proceedings have been instituted to recover any part of the debt owing.

The Mortgage will be foreclosed by selling the property described below at a public auction to the highest bidder. The sale will be held on Friday, March 26, 2004, at 11:00 a.m. local time at the main entrance to the Charlevoix County Court Facility, 301 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720, that being the place of holding Circuit Court for Charlevoix County, Michigan. The property will be sold to pay the amount then due on the Mortgage, including interest, legal costs, attorney fees and any taxes or insurance which may be paid by the mortgagee before the sale.

The property to be sold is located in the Township of Peaine, County of Charlevoix, Michigan and is described as:

The East 1/2 of the West 1/2 of the Southeast 1/4, Section 4, Town 38 North, Range 10 West.

The redemption period will expire twelve (12) months from the date of sale.

EX PARTE ORDER GRANTING ALTERNATIVE SERVICE

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that Plaintiffs are allowed to serve the Summons and Complaint for Breach of Contract, Fraud and Misrepresentation in the above captioned matter upon Defendant, William D. Fitzpatrick d/b/a Northern Timber & Land Management, pursuant to MCR 2.106(D).

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Defendant, William D. Fitzpatrick d/b/a Northern Timber & Land Management, must file an answer or take any action otherwise declared by law on or prior to the expiration of twenty-eight (28) days after the publication/posting of this order. Such answer should be filed with the 86th District Court in Antrim County, State of Michigan, with an additional copy served upon the Plaintiffs.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Defendant William D. Fitzpatrick d/b/a Northern Timber & Land Management, shall also be served by first class mail at the address listed as follows: P.O. Box 306, 202 East State Street, Mancelona, Michigan 49659.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that failure to answer this Complaint or take other action allowed by law may result in the entry of a default and default judgment granting Plaintiff the relief requested in the Complaint, which may include costs and attorney fees.

NOTICE: You are being sued for (1) Breach of Contract, and (2) Fraud and Misrepresentation, with regard to a contract between you and Plaintiffs, Donald R. Alspaugh and Carol L. Alspaugh, by the terms of which, you agreed to pay Plaintiffs fifty (50) percent of all amounts received by you for trees cut and logged off Plaintiffs' property. The above mentioned contract relates to Plaintiffs' property located at 9617 Cemetery Road, Alden, Michigan 49612 and was entered into on or about August 8, 2003.

The Blissfest Music Organization presents Charlevoix's very own Up-North Big Band in a "Swing into Spring!" March 20, "Saturday Night Swing Dance" with the live 18 piece UpNorth Big Band at the North Central Michigan College Student Center.

Join them for the jump, jive, wail, or just for the pure entertainment of the evening. Free Jitterbug lessons, compliments of the U.S. Amateur Ballroom Dancer's Association, Local Chapter 248, will be offered from 6:45 to 7:30 p.m. Big Band downbeat is at 7:30 p.m. Cost is $8 per person at the door at 1313 Howard Street, Lot 5 in Petoskey.

Spring concert

The Little Traverse Choral Society, under the direction of Brad Moffatt, will present its annual spring concert featuring the Gospel Mass by Robert Ray, at 8 p.m., on Saturday, March 20, at the St. Francis Catholic Shrine, Indian River, and at 4 p.m., on Sunday, March 21.

The Sunday concert at Indian River will be a special concert, co-featuring the Great Lake chamber Orchestra, under the direction of Dr. Robert Pattengale, as the Shrine celebrates the fiftieth anniversary of the dedication of its outdoor crucifix.

Both concerts are free with donations requested at the door.

Skate-a-Thon

A Skate-a-Thon is scheduled from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m., Monday, March 22, at the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church on M-66. This event is the first fund-raising effort by local students to obtain funds for the future Charlevoix Community Skatepark. Volunteer and donations needed. Please call Vicki Daman at 547-8063 for further information.

Library information

The Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library are hosting two evening coffees for the purpose of informing citizens about the proposed new library plan. The public is invited to come to the library at 109 Clinton Street at 5:15 p.m., Monday, March 22, or at 7 p.m., on Monday, March 29.

Call 547-22651 for more information.

Music grants

The Northern Michigan Chorale is announcing the availability of vocal music grants for summer music study. These grants are for anyone of high school age or older in Emmet and Charlevoix counties.

Letters of application are due by Friday, April 2 and should include name, address and telephone number. Also, specify the planned use for the grant, such as vocal lessons or music camp assistance. High school applicants should provide a letter of recommendation from their music instructor.

Auditions will take place on Monday, April 26. Applicants will be notified of time and place. Successful applicants will be invited to perform in the Northern Michigan Chorale fall or spring concerts.

Send letter of application to the Northern Michigan Chorale, P.O. Box 51, Petoskey, MI 49770.

Scholarships

Michigan Association of Retired School Personnel (MARSP) is again offering two $500 scholarships to any accredited trade or vocation education school or program. Students need to obtain information from their High School Counselor and apply by April 15.

The recipients will be selected by the MARSP Scholarship Committee by May 1. This Committee includes a representative from each of the four Charlevoix County High Schools. Students will be informed by May 15.

The Early Family Memorial Scholarship will contribute additional funds.

Trophy case

Charlevoix High School is in the process of finishing their new trophy display cases in the commons area outside the gymnasium. The trophy area is near completion, and now the school is asking for community assistance to complete the next phase.

A Hall of Fame for all-state athletes is being constructed along the North/South hallway, opposite the gymnasium. All athletes, who achieved all-state status in their sports at Charlevoix High School, are asked to send a 2-inch-by-3-inch senior picture along with the year(s) all-state status was accomplished, the sport(s) and a correct spelling of their name. Additionally, if an athlete was a state champion, please send a 5-inch-by-7-inch picture. Only one picture is needed even if all-state status was achieved in more than one sport. Please include a contact person and phone number if there is a question about the information sent.

Reunion

Charlevoix High School's Class of 1964 will host its fortieth reunion at 7:30 p.m. until midnight, Saturday, Aug. 14, at the Charlevoix Yacht Club. The cost is $20 per person. Reservations should be directed to Leslie (Lyons) Cunningham at 06530 Brown Rd., Charlevoix, MI 49720, or phone 547-2089, by June 1.

Anyone able to provide contact information for class members can call or e-mail Ms. Cunningham at lcunning@freeway.net.

SCRAPBOOK

The worst fire that has occurred in Charlevoix since the County Bank building burned on the 8th of February last year, called out the department at three-thirty o'clock last Sunday morning. The buildings involved were the Odd Fellow building and the See building, lying between the Charlevoix Hardware Co. and Park Avenue on Bridge Street. The second floors of both buildings were completely gutted and the walls of the lower floor damaged by water and heat.

The fire was first discovered by Mrs. Glen See, who, with her husband and brother-in-law, Chester See, occupied the front apartment next to the lodge hall on the second floor. She was alarmed by peculiar cracking noises and awoke her husband, who was inclined to believe that the noises she heard were caused by the contraction of the building in the low temperature. A moment later, they both distinctly heard a series of sharp explosions that shook the building, seeming to come from the direction of the basement, and the smell of smoke became distinct. Mr. See opened the door into the hall and found it filled with smoke. He immediately aroused the family of John H. Bugbee who had the front apartment on the corner and everybody turned to and carried out what furniture and clothing they could before the smoke and flames drove them out. The heaviest loss was suffered by Mrs. Pearl, who was not at home but at the hospital at the time the fire occurred, although much of her furniture was saved. The property loss for the three apartments will probably total about $500.00, although the Sees and Bugbee's managed to save the greater part of their belongings.

Downstairs, in the stores occupied by J. B. Redpath, H. B. Jacobs and F. J. Fessenden, the principal damage was done by water and smoke. The buildings are of brick veneer construction and the fire seemed to keep within the particans and walls, only breaking into flame when a hole was chopped though floor or roof to get at it with the fire hose to better advantage. The fire was very stubborn and the firemen's work was complicated by the cold air which caused the water from the nozzles to freeze on their clothes, incasing them in ice. Meanwhile, the work of salvaging the stocks of wearing apparel, groceries, drugs and stationery from the stores below was being pursued with feverish haste.

Mr. Fessenden, who was aroused by telephone shortly after the alarm was turned in, was soon on the job and managed to remove the more perishable portion of his stock to a place of safety in the L. P. Adams cigar store and pool room across the street. A good deal of water drained in through the ceiling above and what damage this has done to the fine polished veneer cases that line the walls and other fixtures remains to be seen. They do not appear to be badly injured, but the veneer may peal off as they dry out, as often happens in such cases. The fact that no windows were broken in the lower floor and that the ceiling was intact and that it was possible to keep steam on during the night greatly lessened the damage that might have otherwise resulted in all three of the stores. Mr. Fessenden estimates his loss at $15,000 which, as far as can be ascertained at this writing, is fully covered by insurance. His stock was moved on Monday to the store recently vacated by Wood Brothers in the Masonic building, which he has leased for a term of one year.

H.B. Jacobs has removed his stock of groceries temporarily to his former location at 114 Bridge Street - the Paddock building. His loss was around $5,000.00 partially covered by insurance. He had a considerable quantity of goods stored in the basement, which was filled to a depth of four or five inches with water during the fire. These are probably a total loss. Most of the stock on his shelves was saved.

J. B. Redpath saved his entire stock without damage, as far as can be estimated at this time. The loss in cases, fixtures, etc. fully covered by insurance, cannot as yet be determined. His business is temporarily located on the mezzanine floor of the Charlevoix Hardware building, next door to his former location. His plans for the future are not definitely formed as yet.

The Charlevoix Hardware building, which adjoins the Odd Fellow building on the south, suffered no damage whatever, although a little smoke drifted into the store and some water got into the basement, which however did not do any harm.

The various lodges who had their regalia and equipment stored in the lockers of the hall on the second floor managed to save quite a good portion of the stuff without damage. The Odd Fellows had about $5,000.00 of insurance on the building and Charles E. See and Lou S. See owners of the corner building, carried $5,000.00 on their property.

Where the fire started and what was the cause of it has been the subject of a good deal of speculation without any very definite conclusion being reached. It was first thought that the explosions heard by Mr. and Mrs. See came from the heating plant in the basement but an examination proved this theory to be erroneous. The fire chief is making a careful inspection of the building in an endeavor to learn the true cause of the fire.

School Asks To Annex

The Charlevoix Board of Education Monday agreed to accept 24 elementary students from the Murray School in Hayes Township, if the annexation is approved by the State and Murray District voters.

The Murray Board of Education asked the Charlevoix board to accept the annexation. Murray board president is Andrew Anderson. Dorothy Zipp is secretary of the board.

The District has an equalized valuation of $223,500. It levies 13.375 mills in operating taxes and no debt retirement tax. Charlevoix levies 11.375 in operating taxes and 3.25 in debt retirement tax.

Before the annexation is authorized Murray voters must approve it and agree to accept their share of the Charlevoix district's bonded indebtedness. It must also be approved by the State Department of Public Instruction.

The Charlevoix Board of Education also decided to build a new public library with two-thirds Federal assistance. The board will determine what type of building is needed and get definite cost estimates before anything else is done.

Wastewater treatments going into Lake Michigan are the subject of a criminal and civil investigation.

Documents on treatment may have been falsified

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

A criminal investigation currently underway by the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality (MDEQ) is exploring alleged falsified reports given to them by staff at the city of Charlevoix's wastewater treatment plant.

"Essentially, the alleged falsification was for violations that may have occurred that they (staff at the wastewater treatment plant) did not report," Richard Shoemaker, the senior environmental quality analyst with the surface water quality division of the MDEQ said.

Since January, Vince Woods, a detective with the MDEQ's office of criminal investigation, has been looking into this issue and now the investigation, which focuses on activity by more than one employee at the plant, is almost complete.

A discharge permit the plant has with the state requires plant staff to test treated wastewater five times a week before it is discharged. In those tests they are required to record concentrations of phosphorous, solids, chlorine and other pollutants. Those reports are then passed along to the MDEQ every month.

The fight between Mayor Gabe Campbell and five city planning commissioners is water under the bridge.

On March 17 the commissioners met in special session to rescind a controversial motion they made which sparked an attempt by the mayor to unseat them. The mayor is now looking into what it takes to erase his dismissal plans.

Francis "Brownie" Flanders, one of the commissioners targeted for dismissal, said he is glad this chapter is coming to a close and is looking forward to rolling up his sleeves and getting back to work.

"I'm going to try to put this behind me and be positive and look ahead. It was an unfortu-

How to get your group's event news into the Charlevoix Courier

If you have a news item you think would be perfect for the Charlevoix Courier, feel free to call 547-6558, e-mail charlevoixcourier@charlevoixcourier.com or visit the Courier office located at 112 Mason Street in downtown Charlevoix.

News items include events sponsored by non-profit organizations. Please inform us of your event at least two weeks in advance.

Our coverage area is the city of Charlevoix and its immediately surrounding areas, including Beaver Island.

Because of space limitations in the newspaper, we generally try to avoid publishing "check-handing" pictures or "ribbon-cutting" pictures. However, we will work with your organization to get a picture that reflects the event and is visually interesting to our readers.

Due to time constraints on the staff, we cannot attend every event we are notified of. If you have a picture of your event, we will gladly consider it for publication. But, please, contact us before your event.

It should be noted, each story and picture is dealt with on its individual merits. Any policies outlined above may be suspended by the editor or general manager of the Charlevoix Courier if necessary.

Wal-Mart will have big impact on area business

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

While it is debatable whether Wal-Mart supercenter in Charlevoix Township will have a negative or positive impact on businesses, experts say it will definitely have an effect on the market.

"Whenever Wal-Mart enters a community or area, it will have a significant impact on everybody," said Jeanne Norcross, of the corporate communicant division at Glen's Markets. Glen's Markets has a store in Charlevoix on M-66.

"The question is whether it is short term or long term," she said. "After the initial trial of Wal-Mart, we believe our customers will continue to appreciate what we offer."

According to John Bisio, a Wal-Mart spokesperson, if a Wal-Mart supercenter is built in Charlevoix Township, the company expects it to make $35 to 40 million in retail sales each year.

However, according to a 1997 survey of retail dollars, about $202 million is spent in the entire county each year. This means the Wal-Mart supercenter expects to make about 19 percent of the retail dollars spent in Charlevoix, according to the 1997 numbers.

There are no current retail numbers for Charlevoix County.

But, the question is, how much of what Wal-Mart expects to sell in Charlevoix will come from exiting retail dollars that are spent and how much of it will be new retail dollars spent?

Al Norman, of the anti-big box store group Sprawlbusters who has fought Wal-Mart for years, said the mega-retailer will make a majority, maybe around 60 to 80 percent, of its retail dollars from the current retail money spent in the area. He said Wal-Mart does not really bring in new business and has a very negative impact on communities.

Brenda Sternquist, an economist with Michigan State University who has studied Wal-Mart's impact in 12 states disagreed. She said Wal-Mart will help bring back some of the retail dollars that are leaving the community through "leakage."

"People will drive to the community. It is good for the community to have a Wal-Mart," she said.

But Tom Mueller, also an economist who has testified before congress on the Wal-Mart issue, rebuts Sternquist's argument.

"There can't be any leakage if there are Wal-Marts all over," he said. "Leakage by one community is replaced by another community's leakage."

He added, "Her study seems to have a logical flaw. She is not taking into effect multiple Wal-Marts."

But, this back and forth still leads to the question of what kind of impact will Wal-Mart have on Charlevoix's overall economy? And this question is of much debate between economists.

Noted Wal-Mart researcher and former economics instructor at Iowa State University Ken Stone said Wal-Mart generally does cause a community who has the business located in it to see an increase in overall retail spending. But, many smaller businesses in that community are hurt and communities outside of the Wal-Mart community will see a significant loss in business.

This means, if Wal-Mart brings in shoppers from around the area, according to Stone, cities like East Jordan, Central Lake and Ellsworth will be impacted negatively. Furthermore, Stone said, any business in the city or area with the Wal-Mart that sells anything that Wal-Mart sells, will experience a big loss in business.

Two businesses that will be hurt are grocery stores and hardware stores.

"There is some anecdotal information that suggests some grocery stores will be down 25 percent from the first day Wal-Mart opens," he said. "The norm is to lose one grocery store (to Wal-Mart)."

Stone added, "They (Wal-Mart) are really after the grocery business."

To go after its competitors, Wal-Mart likes to do what is called a "saturation strategy," Stone said. This is where the company puts its stores so close together it puts the competition out of business, even though two or more Wal-Marts will compete with each other.

As for jobs and other benefits, Stone said Wal-Mart has a "zero sum gain." According to an article in the monthly journal of the Main Street National Trust, Stone explains this further as Wal-Mart will not cause a loss or gain on any jobs or tax base in the community.

On the bright side, Stone said any business that does not sell what Wal-Mart sells — such as gas stations or restaurants — will see an increase in business in the city where the Wal-Mart is located.

Stone's sentiments were also echoed in part by Sternquist, who was a little more positive about the effects of a Wal-mart on our local economy.

She said, "It helps retailers in a community to have a Wal-Mart as long as they are not selling what Wal-Mart sells."

Sternquist suggests stores that do sell similar items as Wal-Mart need to find ways to be different, such as selling more upscale items, such as expensive wine.

But Mueller disagrees again.

"Wal-Mart has gotten into higher priced items. As they broaden the goods they carry, it makes other businesses less competitive," he said. "To say people are going to spend more because Wal-Mart doesn't have something is wrong."

For example, he said video stores and photographic developers used to do very well if they were located next to a Wal-Mart in the past. However, when Wal-Mart branched out into selling videos and developing film, those stores were pretty much put out of business.

Wal-Mart wants to build a 157,000 square foot supercenter in Charlevoix Township on US-31, near Marion Center and Stover roads. The company will be before the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission on April 28 for a formal site plan hearing.

The meeting will be at the Charlevoix High School on Marion Center Road.

Company officials have said they want to have the store open in 2005.

Goodbye to a beloved tradition

EDITORIAL

As it is with everything in life, all things must come to an end.

After over 30 years of entertaining the people of Charlevoix, the students of Charlevoix Elementary School and their beloved music teacher Marina LaBlanc will have their last spring musical at 7 p.m., March 24 in the Charlevoix Middle School gym.

The annual tradition of spring is coming to a close because the school will be removing the seats in the gym to make way for more athletic equipment that can benefit the middle school students. According to LaBlanc, this will make it impossible for the spring musical to continue after this year, due to the lack of seating.

While it has been suggested that LaBlanc can move the program over to the large Charlevoix High School gym, she has said this also will not suit her and the student's needs. LaBlanc said by having the program in the Charlevoix High School gym, she would have to make "big sacrifices to get it to work."

We wish LaBlanc would reconsider this decision to end this wonderful tradition. Please consider making the program fit in the Charlevoix High School.

But, this decision is up to LaBlanc. And if she says it ultimately will not work, then that is what the case is.

Therefore, we encourage the community to attend this final performance of the Charlevoix Elementary School Spring Musical.

This is a tradition that has been a part of Charlevoix for the past 30 years. One can honestly say students who are performing now are the children of students who have performed it in the past — which is a pure sign of its importance.

The 343 elementary school students will be performing 10 songs and four dance routines during the one-and-a-half hour show. The songs will be a mix of everything from rock to country.

In the grand finale, there will be a farewell to this community tradition. Let's all help make this a send off the spring musical deserves.

Annual spring vacation makes writer appreciate our tourists

Julie Witthoeft

Staff writer

Right now the main topic of conversation in town is when will the flakes stop falling and temperatures start to reflect the fact that spring did officially arrive March 20.

We are all craving summer. I can't wait for the hectic event schedule, beach bound weekends and long walks outside.

The warm beach bum weather and fun filled calendar of events doesn't just speak to the souls of locals, it also beckons new faces that flock to town to bask in Charlevoix's beauty for a weekend or for the season.

A recent vacation I took was an eye opener as to how important it is for a tourist town like ours to give these people a warm welcome.

While spending a week on a tiny northern Florida island this month I had a brief encounter with a woman running the checkout at a small, side street market.

My question was one she has responded to a zillion times, "Where is the nearest pharmacy?"

Her response wasn't quick, she knew I wouldn't like it. I was standing there in need of some infant Motrin for my teething tot. But instead of rolling her eyes exasperated by my fickle little female and blatant out-of-towner status she smiled, gave my babe a playful poke in the belly and in a thick southern accent directed me to the nearest town, 20 minutes away.

The resort island reminds me a lot of Charlevoix in the summer.

There, summer is the it time — the cool breezes offer southerners from surrounding waterless states a quick destination to beat the heat. And during the quieter winter, people from places like Michigan flock to soak in the sunshine, indulge in oysters that are fresh off the boat and get away from the hustle and bustle of their lives.

In the four years we have been going there I have watched as premier beach front property is snatched up by second home owners and investors looking to rent to vacationers. Property values have skyrocketed and the glue to the whole thing is big bucks tourism.

Instead of being resentful of tourists who have taken over what was once the locals' little piece of paradise they at least seem to embrace them.

As we left the store en route to the pharmacy my thoughts turned to Charlevoix.

The warm welcome I got at that market and at other island hot spots, like the smoothie hut and the video store reminded me that even when the tourist season starts to wear my patience thin and I want to deliver bunk directions to the post office, which moved from its former location across from our office eons ago, I need to smile.

A smile and friendly response will make a visitor's vacation memories that much better.

I'm sure when fall is just a couple of weeks away I'll have had it with the crowds of summer and be ready to have Charlevoix return to its quiet, small town status. But in the meantime, I plan to usher in our peak tourist season with a plan to help our visitors when I can — after all they are the reason many of our businesses are here and those businesses are the reason I have a job.

Skate park advice

Editor:

I read with great excitement that Charlevoix residents are looking into building a skate park for the community. I am the recreation manager for Park City, Utah, and have witnessed the positive effect skate parks can have on a community.

Park City built a 20,000-square-foot concrete park that opened in July 2001. The park has been such a success that we are adding on an additional 10,000 square feet this summer.

For what it is worth here are some of my thoughts on skate parks:

- The city should take the lead on this project; a city sponsored free park is the best alternative. Charlevoix should look at the skate park in the same manner as a playground or ball field. It should be another recreational amenity for the community to enjoy. How about a skate park at the base of Mount McSauba?
- Childhood obesity is a national epidemic and communities need to be proactive in fighting this battle. Kids today don't get enough exercise due to many changes that have occurred in society over the last 20 years. Skateboarding is one of the few sports that can be done without a team and thus it is a great way for kids to get out and get exercise.
- One of the biggest surprises has been the positive economic impact the park has had for the community. Opening the park has allowed local sporting good stores to get into the skateboard business. We have had two additional skateboard/snowboard stores that opened because of the skate park. Local restaurants and shops have also benefited along with the lodging community. I have heard several visitors to Park City mention that they came to Park City because of the skate park. It is a great option for that teenage child.

- If the park is outside put a fence around it. This gives the city control over the facility. When our park was first built we had a couple of minor instances of graffiti. We closed the park down for three days and removed the "tag" immediately. We have had no "tagging" for the past two years, as the skaters are great at policing the facility.
- Build a cement park and hire a qualified designer such as Site Design Group. We originally built a temporary park for $50,000 with ramps in a parking lot. This worked well for a season but the ramps quickly needed repair. A cement park is the preferred surface and has minimal maintenance. I have visited many skate parks around the country and have seen many poorly designed and constructed facilities that go unused. If you are going to build it, do it right.
- To generate revenue, Park City's Recreation Department teaches instructional clinics in the summer. Last summer we put over 250 kids through skateboard clinics while only 30 attended baseball camp. We also offer adult clinics because the parents see what fun the kids are having and want to enjoy the park!

The skate park has been a positive addition to our community and I believe Charlevoix would have the same experience. I hope the city leaders of Charlevoix have enough vision to support the effort to build a skate park for the residents of Charlevoix.

If I can help in anyway with the development of the Charlevoix Skate Park, I can be reached at ken@parkcity.org. I look forward to skating the park when it is finished.

Thank you

Editor:

On behalf of Charlevoix Public Schools, I wish to publicly thank the many merchants and individuals who have contributed to our schools in so very many vital ways.

This community and its small businesses have generously donated time, material, money, and talents to encourage, equip and support our students. Healthy partnerships between community and schools are thriving because store owners, local companies, and employees have offered goods, services, and knowledgeable expertise to classes, special events and advisory boards. Businesses have welcomed our students, from Kindergarten through seniors, into their stores on field trips, jobsite visits, job-shadowing and through employment.

A number of kind people have provided extra assistance in training students with special needs. Charlevoix businesses have created a neighborhood of caring as a bedrock value that sustains our town.

It would be wonderful to list everyone by name, but the database has 276 names on it – what an awesome reflection of small-town generosity!

We hope everyone joins us in appreciation and support for local small businesses. We look forward to Charlevoix students having the privilege of continuing to learn from this heritage of civic-minded community members.

CharEm United Way would like to thank the many individuals and businesses that have so generously given of their hard-earned money to help support our local agencies by contributing to United Way.

All of the money collected, $173,000 so far this campaign, stays right here in Emmet and Charlevoix counties for the benefit of those who need our extra help. We only send about $1,550 per year to United Way of America to use their trademark and benefit from their advice and programs. The rest of your donations are at work right here at home.

The following are just some of the agencies you help support through your United Way contributions: the Bergmann Center, Boyne City Nursery School, Camp McSauba, Charlevoix Alano Club, Hospice of Northwest Michigan, the Charlevoix Senior Center and BASES.

Most of our local non-profit agencies who receive governmental grant money in addition to local United Way money are having their government grant money cut back. This means that private donations, like those allocated to them by United Way; are more important than ever.

Thank you again for all you have given. If you can find it in your heart to help just a little more, please do. Our address is P.O. Box 22, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

No Wal-Mart

Editor:

Charlevoix has been a part of my heart since I was a little girl.

My best stress reliever is to mentally sit on the bank of the channel. The idea of Wal-Mart in Charlevoix is abhorrent to me, but I also understand that residents may not want to "sacrifice" shopping year-round for the nostalgia of summer people.

However, the danger is in the unintended consequences to our private businesses and our infrastructure. In addition, perhaps readers will be interested in the figures from Georgia.

Wal-Mart employees are the single most users of the state run child health insurance program. Employees who make $7-$8 an hour can not generally afford insurance. Twenty-five percent of the Wal-Mart employees used PeachCare for Kids, compared with 5 percent of the next highest employer.

Basically, this wealthy employer is shifting the cost of employee health care to the taxpayers. Just say no Charlevoix.

Yes to Wal-Mart

Editor:

I am a native of Charlevoix — now a senior citizen — and I am getting awfully tired of seeing headlines that read "Charlevoix against Wal-Mart." I have many friends, relatives and acquaintances that would love to see Wal-Mart come to Charlevoix. "This is Our Town" group sees only negatives, yet we see lots of positives.

Unfortunately, you have already made up your minds to speak for all of us and I resent that. As for the town council, unless you can take a vote from all your constituents, I don't think you should take sides on the issue. You were elected to represent all the people in your ward and not be pressured by others.

As for the 2,500 people who signed your petitions — Come on now. I looked over 3 or 4 pages and I would bet over half of the signatures were from all over the state and even some from out of state. You call that a fair petition? This is a Charlevoix issue, not the whole state or country.

How many full time jobs are there in the retail industry in Charlevoix? Almost all the stores hire a minimum for full time and the rest part time. The Kmart company is in so much trouble financially, with or without Wal-Mart, how long do you expect them to be here? What then? Also, there is nowhere in this town to buy sewing material, yarns, arts and craft supplies and numerous other small items too numerous to mention.

As a young local, I can remember swimming in Round Lake, shuffleboards in the park, the A&P store, Kroger store, small neighborhood grocery stores, a school with a skating rink in the winter and basketball courts in the summer and a sliding hill called Dodgers Hill that was manned by city workers for safety. All these lost with growth, yet did it make Charlevoix a bad place? I think not — just a community expanding with the times. So to those of you who would welcome Wal-Mart, let's hear from you. Your e-mails and letters to the paper are not overlooked.

Training day

Water-related accidents are a serious public safety concern. In North America, drowning is the second leading cause of accidental death for those under the age of 44, and is the third leading cause of accidental death for all ages. Much has been accomplished to reduce the number of aquatic deaths; but a large amount of work still remains. Proper training in modern water safety and rescue techniques is a requirement for departments responsible for these rescues. The City of Charlevoix Fire Department combined efforts with the US Coast Guard Station Charlevoix last week for such training. Health agency helps fund anti-smoking ad

A secondhand smoke television advertising campaign is underway with grants to the Tobacco Reduction Coalition of the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, Otsego County Community Foundation and the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation.

"We're delighted with the support we've received from these three community foundations, helping us to publicize the dangers of secondhand smoke," said Molly Cotant, who coordinates the Tobacco Reduction Coalition for the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, the health department that serves Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego Counties. "Over the last two years, the foundations have donated over $50,000 for tobacco reduction efforts including television advertising campaigns, school-based education, student smoking cessation classes, and peer support programs."

The "Drive" ad was chosen by Petoskey and Charlevoix area youth among several with a secondhand smoke message from the U.S. Centers for Disease Control (CDC) and Prevention. Over 1,000 spots will appear during programming on ESPN, ESPN 2, MTV, Spike and during "Fear Factor" on NBC, through mid-May.

"The kids loved this spot," said Cotant. "It is a funny ad. It conveys the dangers of secondhand smoke without being preachy."

In the ad, a woman veers off the road as her passenger yells for her to watch out for a tree and screams, "What are you doing?" The driver responds, "You're endangering my life. Just returning the favor."

Secondhand smoke is a complex mixture of more than 4,000 chemical compounds, including 43 known cancer-causing agents. Secondhand smoke is dangerous to everyone. According to the Michigan Department of Community Health, secondhand smoke kills about 25 nonsmokers every year in the four-county district of the health department.

It is especially dangerous for children. Secondhand tobacco smoke contributes to 150,000 to 300,000 respiratory infections in babies every year. Children who breathe air polluted by tobacco smoke are more likely to develop childhood asthma, throat and ear infections and up to 80 percent more wheezing and coughing than normal.

Also, there is an increased risk of Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS) in homes with smokers. To reduce risks of secondhand smoke, parents should protect their children from tobacco smoke at all times, including day care settings.

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is the local health department that serves Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego Counties. Its staff is dedicated to improving health and safety in the communities it serves. For more information on secondhand smoke, call Cotant at (231) 547-7659 or the Michigan Department of Community Health Clearinghouse at (800) 537-5666.

Eight week class could help you kick the smoking habit

Are you ready to kick the cigarette habit?

Charlevoix Area Hospital's Freedom from Smoking program can give you the tools, techniques and motivation to quit for good.

Offered in cooperation with the American Lung Association, Freedom from Smoking is a lively, interactive, step-by-step program with a proven track record. A new, eight-week series of classes will begin Thursday, April 15, 2004 at the hospital.

There's a $25 fee to cover course materials.

Each week participants will learn how to break the nicotine habit; get practical tips for handling stress, maintaining weight, and making changes in daily routines; and receive plenty of encouragement and support as they adjust to their post-smoking life.

Space in the classes is limited.

To register, please call Charlevoix Area Hospital's Freedom from Smoking coordinator, Michelle Potter, at (231) 547-8672.

HOW TO KILL A BUSINESS
... in ten easy steps
1. Don't Advertise
Just pretend everybody knows what you have to offer.
2. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself you just don't have time to spend thinking about promoting your business.
3. Don't Advertise
Just assume everybody knows what you sell.
4. Don't Advertise
Convince yourself that you've been in business so long customers will automatically come to you.
5. Don't Advertise
Forget that there are new potential customers who would do business with you if they were reminded.
6. Don't Advertise
Forget that you have competition trying to attract your customers away from you.
7. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself it costs too much to advertise and that you don't get enough out of it.
8. Don't Advertise
Overlook the fact that advertising is an investment in selling ... not an expense.
9. Don't Advertise
Be sure not to provide an adequate advertising budget for your business.
10. Don't Advertise
Forget that you have to keep reminding your established customers that you appreciate their business.

Don't forget about God when you go on vacation

Beacons of Blessing

By FR. JIM GUNN
Christ Episcopal Church

The last week or so we have been more and more sun and less and less snow!

I am actually able to see some of the grass in my back yard. That is a sight that I have not had for more days than I care to remember. I am also coming to realize once again that the back of my house has a deck and not just a snow bank.

As this process of more light and less snow starts to happen, then I believe that people's thoughts start to turn toward summer. Some of you may think that I meant to write "spring" in that last sentence. However, it seems to me that when the year is constructed in Northern Michigan, somebody forgot to include spring as a season. Once in a while we get a day or two that bears a resemblance to spring just so we notice its absence. But, generally speaking we move pretty directly from winter to summer.

Seriously, I do believe that the arrival of more moderate weather does turn people's thoughts toward summer. That is the time of the most active life as far as our community is concerned. It is the time when the summer residents return for their stay among us — whether short or long. It is the time when visitors and tourists really turn their paths toward Charlevoix. With the arrival of more people comes the arrival of more activities — everything from family picnics to Venetian week. To be honest there are a number of businesses and services that would not be able to survive without that influx of people and activities.

Charlevoix depends on its appeal as a destination for warm weather living.

However, I really did not set out to remark on Charlevoix's reputation as a resort mecca. There is something that has bothered me about the coming of summer. It is not so much the increase or people and activities, but what it is that seems to be crowded out by the change in focus. To be very frank, I know there are people who come here to Charlevoix as summer residents or visitors who are active in their church at home. However, their vacation time seems to include taking time off from God. Many do not worship or take time for fellowship with other believers. Unfortunately, some of the same attitudes seem to afflict people who are year-round residents as well. Many do not turn from Sunday worship, but they leave little time for anything else having to do with their spiritual life.

The good news is that God does not take a vacation from us. His eye is on us, whether we are year-round residents, summer residents, family visitors or tourists. His eye is on us whether we attend church every Sunday, just on special occasions or even not at all. His eye is on us even when we turn our eyes from Him to other things. It is my prayer that this summer everyone's eyes and hearts would be open to see the hand of God in the beauty of our surroundings and in the lives of all the people around us.

Blood drive

Charlevoix High School hosted an American Red Cross blood drive March 18 in the band room. Over 60 students donated that day. Brian Christiansen, a senior, took the opportunity to donate for the first time. He said he thought it would be a good way to give back to society.

Free Throw contest

Keegan LaBlance of Charlevoix received a second place victory in the Knights of Columbus free-throw contest, which took place in Mt. Pleasant over the weekend. Keegan was in the State finals along with six other 10-year-old boys, from different areas around the state. Each had to shoot 25 free throws from a 12 foot free-throw line, in which Keegan made 21 of 25. The winner had 23 of 25. He says he can't wait till next year, when he hopes to win it all.

State may levy hefty fine on Cemex cement plant

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

A well system designed to clean up an oil spill at Cemex in Charlevoix failed and now the company faces big fines from the state.

According to Brian Monroe, chief of enforcement and cost recovery with the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality's (MDEQ) Remediation and Redevelopment Division, there was a "significant" fuel oil release at Cemex, near the plant, that was discovered in June of 1991.

According to Cemex environmental manager Cortney Schmidt, a line leading from a large fuel tank ruptured leading to the spill.

Since then the Gaylord office of the MDEQ has been working closely with the local cement manufacturer to clean the site up.

In August of 2001 a fuel oil release work plan was established to lay the ground work for clean up. Then in August of 2002 that plan was incorporated into a consent decree entered into by Cemex and the state obligating the company to do the work.

The clean up effort includes operating a groundwater recovery system including wells that will capture and treat the contaminated water until it meets the state standard. The treated water is used in plant operations or is discharged to on-site detention ponds. This effort keeps the water from migrating off site.

In a June 2003 report Cemex filed with the MDEQ it was noted that two of the three purge wells included in that system had failed around January of 2003 which meant there was a period of about six months when the pumps didn't operate. The failure was due to a water discharge line that ran from the two wells which froze and separated.

Three of these wells are required to operate by the decree.

Janice Adams, a geologist with the MDEQ who works at the Cemex site, said Cemex knew about the problem right away but it took a long time to repair and the company didn't notify the MDEQ until six months after the fact.

New plant manager Bud McCormick said he was not on staff at that time to explain the late notification of the problem. But he said it was fixed in July.

McCormick contends that other wells were operated at that time and that they operate a larger area by the quarry system that keeps the water from migrating off site. He described the area where the water is located as a closed system and said when it's not being pumped and treated it just sits there.

Monroe said the MDEQ agrees this larger area does exist and contains "at least some of the water on site." And Adams said at the time of the failure other monitoring wells were taking samples and a mobile treatment unit was being used.

But Adams also said the water was not being cleaned during that period of time.

When asked whether the contaminated groundwater migrated off site as a result of the six month lapse in the clean up program, Monroe said he isn't prepared to answer.

Adams on the other hand said the department has no reason to believe the groundwater migrated into surface water. And if it did, she said the contaminated area is far away from surrounding residential areas and the groundwater flows out toward Lake Michigan.

"They are trying to keep the plume on their property and it appears to be working," she said.

Because the problem is a direct violation of the consent decree between the company and the state, high dollar monetary penalties have been assigned. For the first 15 days the cost is $1,000 per day. Then for days 16 through 30 Cemex is charged $1,500 a day. Beyond 30 days Cemex is charged $3,000 a day.

The company officially racked up a $864,000 fine. But the MDEQ agreed to resolve the issue with Cemex paying $300,000. Monroe said numerous factors were considered in reducing the penalty including the seriousness and duration of the violation and previous compliance. According to Adams this is the first violation of the decree.

Payment was due in this matter on March 1. Cemex has not yet paid the fine, instead they are fighting the assessment penalties. Cemex representatives will meet with the MDEQ soon to argue their case. Interest on the balance will accrue until it is paid.

"We want to negotiate with the state," Schmidt said.

If Cemex loses this fight they will owe the $300,000 plus interest equal to 12 percent a year.

The money collected in this matter will go into the department's environmental response fund which is used to clean up sites throughout the state.

In the fuel release work plan Cemex estimated the cleanup being complete by 2014.

Schmidt said Cemex contracts with an outside firm to monitor the fuel spill clean up effort and that this company is "diligently working on it."

"As far as I'm concerned the safety of the workers is the most important thing and right behind that is our commitment to the environment," McCormick said.

Hankins starts new auction service in area

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix Police Officer and resident Scott Hankins is working on a plan for his future.

Hankins, who is looking at retirement from the police force in 11 years, is using some fast talking skills and the auction world in his new business Hankins Auction Service.

"The auction company will allow me to work at something I enjoy doing (after retirement)," he said.

Plus, he said the business allows his whole family to take part. Currently, in addition to being a police officer, Hankins has a horse shoeing business on the side, but this is something his family really can't help with. But, with the auction service, Hankins' wife, Dawn, and kids, Allison and Zachary, take part and help him run it.

Hankins Auction Service is a full service auction company that started this month. Auctions include: real estate, autos, farm, liquidation's, antiques, livestock, charities and fund-raising.

Just this month, Hankins did his first professional auction for the American Cancer Society's Walk for Life fund-raising party.

"It was a lot of fun," he said.

Hankins recently graduated from the World Wide College of Auctioneering in Mason City, Iowa.

The program is taught by 22 professional instructors who show the in-and-outs of the various auctions and vocal training. Plus, by completing the course, Hankins is not only now a professional auctioneer, he is also given the title "Colonel Hankins," as is the custom in the auction world.

Hankins said he was turned on to the auction business after going to several horse auctions over the past 10 years.

"I enjoy the auction atmosphere," he said. "It is fast paced and it is entertaining. I enjoy listening to a good auctioneer."

If you would like more information about Hankins Auction Service, contact Scott Hankins at 547-0509 or e-mail shankins@freeway.net.

Charlevoix police officer Scott Hankins has started a new side business called Hankins Auction Service. It is a full service auction provider. Hankins recently graduated from the World Wide College of Auctioneering in Mason City, Iowa. There, he received training in auctions and how to call them. He also was given the title of "Colonel" as is the custom in the auction world.

Library adds graphic novels to its collection

The Charlevoix Public Library now has a special graphic novel collection.

A graphic novel is defined as a stand-alone story in comics form, published as a book. This is a great new service provided by the library.

"Kids like many different genres; graphic novels are a fun way for kids to read," said Library Director Val Meyerson.

The library has close to thirty new titles added to its collection, with hopes of adding more in the near future.

"We thought we purchased a good amount to start the collection, but they are very popular. Over half the collection is checked out," Meyerson said.

Some series included in the collection include: Bone, Batman, Star Wars, X-Men, Nausicaa and Ranma, as well as other single title stories. Many thanks go out to Linda Adams who worked on the selection of the novels for her Collection Development class.

For further information on the Library's Graphic Novel collection, contact Mrs. Meyerson at 547-2651.

CPR classes to be offered

There will be a free CPR class April 17, given by Charlevoix Area Hospital and the American Heart Association.

CPR for Family and Friends is a modular course that teaches lay rescuers skills in CPR and relief of foreign body airway obstruction (FBAO) in the responsive victim.

The course presents information about the American Heart Association (AHA) adult Chain of Survival and signs of heart attack, cardiac arrest, stroke and choking in adults. The course also presents information on the AHA pediatric Chain of Survival, signs of choking in infants and children, prevention of the most common fatal pediatric injuries, and reduction in the risk of sudden infant death syndrome.

Pre-registration is required.

Classes are taught by certified instructors and are through Charlevoix Area Hospital, which is an American Heart Association community-training center.

For more information and to register, please contact Connie Roland at 547-8570. Early registration is recommended due to limited class size.

CPR Classes are also offered to private organizations upon special request.

Citizens don't want township to settle

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The lawsuit facing Eveline Township is inching toward settlement but some residents want to throw the brakes on and take it to trial.

Township supervisor Dan Skreczkoski has called a special meeting to take place at 7 p.m., March 30 at the township hall to discuss the township's options.

"Nothing has been finalized at this point," Skreczkoski said.

The case lodged against the township in September of 2003 by Dawson and his son Mark "Barney" Way alleging the township acted on an exclusionary zoning ordinance has not gone to trial yet as the two sides have tried to reach an agreement

While the township is working to stay out of court and reach a resolution, a group of 15 residents filed an intervention in this case on March 19 to try and halt settlement discussion.

"We want to encourage the township to continue to fight and not to settle," Sue Kiteley, one of the residents who filed the intervention, said.

She explained that she and the rest of the group that intervened support the township's denial of the Ways' rezoning request which spurred the lawsuit.

In March of 2003, the board turned down the Ways request to have their property rezoned from agricultural to R-4, a residential zone that accommodates mobile homes.

The request applied to two pieces of property spanning over 150 acres, located adjacent to one another, with frontage on M-66 and Brock and Ferry roads.

The Ways claim that the development planned for the property would include about 200 manufactured homes and would provide needed affordable housing.

The township's master plan supports this and states that there exists, "a lack of low cost housing or rental homes and apartments in the township."

In spite of the apparent need, the board acted on recommendations made by the planning commissions for both Charlevoix County and Eveline Township that it deny the request.

The township planning commission came to a unanimous decision, saying the rezone could bring on higher density development than is supported by the master plan. If fully developed, the Way property in the R-4 district could accommodate a 1,200 unit manufactured home community.

The county planning commission also recommended against the rezone for that reason. The change would allow eight units per acre which is higher density than the 3-6 units per acre the master plan encourages in that area.

However, county planner Larry Sullivan issued a six page letter as to why he feels it would be appropriate to rezone 77 acres that make up the north half of the property, but not the 78 acre south half.

He believes the property on the north would better support a number of homes because of its close proximity to M-66 and that by developing the property there, the township would be limiting sprawl.

The Ways claim the board's decision to deny the request for rezoning the whole piece constitutes exclusionary zoning which violates the Township Rural Zoning Act, the Mobile Home Commission Act and their constitutional rights.

If a settlement is not reached and case goes to trial, the Ways will ask Charlevoix County 33rd Circuit Court Judge Richard Pajtas to decree the township's zoning ordinance invalid and illegal and to allow them to develop that property as a manufactured home community.

If they lose the township's decision stands and Pajtas has been asked to award the township its costs and attorney fees.

Both sides have submitted exhibit and witness lists for trial. If the case is not settled before the final pretrial/settlement conference on April 12, a trial date will be set at the conference.

While Kiteley and her intervention group want to see the township stick to its guns, Skreczkoski said he plans to explain at the upcoming special meeting that it isn't that simple.

"It isn't like it's going to go away. Now we can talk about some of it so the people will have an idea of some of the problems we are dealing with," he said.

Stephen Winter, attorney for the Ways, declined to comment about the settlement and recent intervention.

Council passes new city budget

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

City council passed the 2004-2005 budget after tweaking some projects and plans and giving the green light to two major technological advances.

"We are all satisfied as much as we can be. We're not wasting taxpayers' money," third ward council member Shirley Gibson said of the budget.

Council met in special session twice last week to discuss the details of the budget poring over everything from new wells at the golf course and major infrastructure improvements to the development of a fiber optic network and a graphic information mapping system (GIS).

With the city facing a darker than usual economic situation, council decided to scale back on projects that were included in the $17.5 million budget.

They opted to hold off until 2006-2007 on completing the water main loop along Chicago Avenue by the C & O Club. This project includes replacing the force main and lift station at Depot Beach and reconstructing the water and sewer system and street by Chicago Avenue and Mercer Boulevard.

The decision to delay that $683,200 project for two years means the city won't have to borrow money from the electric and perpetual care funds to pay for it. Had the project gone forward the electric fund would have taken a major hit leaving it with a fund balance of $179,386.

"I can't see pressing the limits," third ward councilman Sherm Chamberlain said.

Council also agreed to explore options that would cut the cost of efficiently watering the municipal golf course.

Some city projects put on the back burner in budget

BUDGET

Tom Heid, director of golf and grounds at the course, told council the current well is failing and if a solution isn't reached there could be turf damage, which would require expensive renovation and could result in short and long-term revenue losses.

The budget initially included $247,000 for a new 12 inch well.

This plan caught some flack from first ward councilman Bob Timms who thinks the city should repair the current well.

According to engineers with Gosling and Czubak of Traverse City, fixing the current well would cost about $14,000 and may meet the course's irrigation needs, but the long-term maintenance will be great and the system will eventually be phased out.

Council ultimately decided to research their options and consideration is being given to putting in smaller wells.

Heid said multiple wells are a viable option and Gosling and Czubak. is reviewing those options and will make their recommendation in the near future.

While big ticket projects were on the chopping block, Gibson asked for an expense to be added. She noticed that in the budget city clerk Liz Gooch's salary is set at $20,000. However, a recent compensation commission decision set her salary at $34,000. City treasurer Rick Brandi said that after March 24 when this salary issue is set in stone, that will be adjusted.

Timms and second ward councilman Bill Bellows both agreed that another salary mistake was made in regards to city staff. Both said severance packages that were included in the budget for city police chief Dennis Halverson and Brandi should be taken out and considered as a separate item by council. Those will be reviewed at a later date.

While life for some city employees is looking up with the clerk's salary doubling this year and severance packages being considered, one item in the budget that still needs to be addressed affects local pilots.

The budget proposed to increase hangar rental fees at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport. The proposed increases in monthly rates were from $125 to $150 for six hangars from $130 to $160 for three of the hangars and from $135 to $170 for a single hangar. This would bring in an additional $2,820 a year.

City manager Mike Wiesner said these increases reflect the market rate as compared with similar airports.

Charlevoix resident and pilot Don Seelye questioned this rationale.

"Why base it on the market value — it's our airport. We shouldn't be funding other projects in the city off hangar rent," he said.

Wiesner told council that over the years the city has sunk hundreds of thousands of dollars into the airport and questioned whether taxpayers should subsidize the operation when hangars are being rented at less than their market value.

This hangar fee issue has been tabled while city staff looks into occupancy rates and other factors related to the proposed increase.

Two projects council agreed to leave in the budget that total just over half a million dollars are a graphic imaging system (GIS) and a fiber optic network for the city and schools. Both will increase the efficiency of city operations.

The $147,500 GIS project will map the entire city providing in depth property information to be used by the zoning, planning and electric departments. While The fiber optic network will connect all city offices and may also connect buildings owned by Charlevoix Public Schools.

The network will cost $428,300. The schools are expected to contribute $120,036 to the project.

Hospital to offer CPR class

There will be a free CPR class April 17, given by Charlevoix Area Hospital and the American Heart Association.

The course presents information about the American Heart Association (AHA) adult Chain of Survival and signs of heart attack, cardiac arrest, stroke and choking in adults. The course also presents information on the AHA pediatric Chain of Survival, signs of choking in infants and children, prevention of the most common fatal pediatric injuries, and reduction in the risk of sudden infant death syndrome. Pre-registration is required. Classes are taught by certified instructors and are through Charlevoix Area Hospital, which is an American Heart Association community-training center. For more information and to register, please contact Connie Roland at 547-8570. Early registration is recommended due to limited class size.

American Legion seeking names of military personnel

The Charlevoix American Legion is asking for help from the greater Charlevoix community in several different efforts.

They are actively seeking names of military personnel currently deployed to Iraq/Afghanistan. These names will be incorporated into a living memorial at the Legion Hall.

They want marching units for the Memorial Day Parade, on May 31. Any group with a marching unit-band, drill team, or honor guard, is welcome to contact us for further information. Mounted units and military vehicles are welcome.

They are also looking for the oldest and youngest veterans from the Charlevoix Area to host the Memorial Parade.

Please contact Joseph Seidel, Commander of the American Legion Post 226 at 547-9203.

Middle school wrestlers compete

Wrestlers from the Charlevoix Elementary and Middle schools traveled to Rogers City Saturday for a Round Robin tournament.

At the tournament 19 schools and over 500 wrestlers competed.

The following wrestlers for Charlevoix took first place in the all day event: Sammy Hovie, Austin Devries, Lynzie Gotshall, Chase Moore, Eli Daman, RJ Moore, Clinton Longley, Corey Gotshall and Nate Golovich.

Second place winners were: Jake Novotny, Andrew Robarge, Matt Golovich, Nathan Tripplehorn and Cliff Jones.

Third place finishers were: Casey Swadling, Steven Walden, Jacob Roach, Tony Filizetti, Nick Mailloux, Zeke Daman, Nick Wimmer and Tony Cepeda. Fourth place was awarded to Kody Gould, Alex Waha, Joe Left, Ryan Penfold, Kaleb Godwin and Avery Penfold.

Charlevoix hosted a meet with Kalkaska, March 22. Results from the meet were not available by press time. They will close the season March 27 in Petoskey.

Skating for a park

Over 40 kids of all ages attended a Sk8-a-thon March 22 at the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church off M-66. They raised over $6,000 for the Charlevoix Community Skate Park, a project they are working to make a reality. Taylor Witthoeft and Burke Ramsey each raised over $1,000 at the event. A second Sk8-a-thon is being planned for June. (Right) Shawn Couture, shows that in-line skates are just as trick worthy as skateboards at the Sk8-a-thon Monday night.

Public Notice?

Without it in your newspaper, you're left guessing what the government's doing in your community.

Public notice is the people's right to know the issues that affect them directly, and people know the place to find public and legal notices is in the newspaper. What you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. Public notices have been posted here since the days of colonial America. In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. Why guess? That is why you have, and read, your newspaper... where your right to know is already being served.

Cheering on the team

The crowd goes wild near the end of the Charlevoix/Traverse City St. Francis game Friday for the regional title. Charlevoix won the title and headed to the quarterfinals on Tuesday.

Boyne Area Midget hockey team hosts northern tourney

Boyne Area Hockey hosted the UP North Invitational Tournament March 12, 13, and 14 in Sault Ste. Marie, with five age divisions from Mites (8 and under) to Midgets (18 and under).

Boyne Area Hockey's Paul Bunyan Lanes Midgets showed unrelenting defense, solid goaltending, excellent passing, and total team hockey, earning them their division championship with three straight shutouts.

Boyne went 17 goals for and none against over the weekend.

"The boys, over the course of the season, have all improved their individual skills significantly, and learned to play as a team, a cohesive unit," said head coach Al Aown.

Their first draw was Gladwin, and they took the game 8-0.

Justin Conklin, Dylan Clark, Russell Williams, and Cody Webster scored. Darren Looze and Troy Searbrough each netted two.

Looze and Webster earned playmakers with three assists; Ryan Fields, Josh Aown, and Searbrough gave two apiece and Stephen Cahoon chipped in one.

Bobby Courtright and Nick Ferree shared the netminding duties.

MVP was Cody Webster.

In their second game, with Escanaba, Boyne scored two shorthanded goals to start, then cruised to a 5-0 win.

Webster scored with assists from Looze and Eli Barsy, and again from Conklin and Fields. Scarbrough netted the next one from a Williams pass.

Looze capped off the scoring with one goal assisted by Cahoon, and the other alone.

Looze was the MVP.

Courtright was between the pipes.

Boyne played Marquette in the championship game.

In the first period, Looze powered in a shorthanded goal, and Barsy took a well timed pass from Scarbrough to score.

In the second period, Fields slid in a goal from a Williams pass, and Scarbrough netted one with passes from linemates Looze and Webster. Boyne went to pure defensive mode, and ended with a 4-0 win and the championship trophy. Bobby Courtright was the goalie and the MVP.

Rayders are the regional champs

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

Put another notch in the belt of coach Keith Haske and his Charlevoix Rayders.

Charlevoix earned its fifth regional title in the last six years and another possible trip to the Breslin Center for the state semifinals and finals.

The Rayders took a hard-fought victory over Traverse City St. Francis, 72-65 in the regional finals in Petoskey before a capacity crowd of nearly 3,000. In the first round of the regionals, Charlevoix ousted Mio, 69-50.

"We saw pretty much what we expected out of both teams," Haske said. "Mio shot a lot from the outside and slowed the tempo down. Usually teams like that who rely on the three-point shot so much tend to tire at the end of games.

"And I thought the St. Francis game was just a great game. We didn't play great, but I thought we played pretty well. Our defense was solid throughout."

St. Francis ended the season with a 22-2 record, its only two losses suffered at the hands of the Rayders.

The Gladiators led 17-10 after the first quarter as Charlevoixs 6-6 all-state senior Scott Friske picked up two fouls in the first 1:11 of play.

The tide turned somewhat early in the second quarter when St. Francis own standout, Josh Jorkasky picked up his second foul and went to the bench just a minute into the period.

With Jorkasky on the bench, the Rayders chipped away at the lead and took their first lead at 21-20 on two John DiMartino free throws with 5:14 left in the half. Following a Gladiator bucket, Charlevoix went on a 10-0 run keyed by two Bryce Daly drives and a Cody Crain three-point shot.

The Rayders led 33-24 at the half and extended their lead to as many as 14 in the third quarter at 48-34. Jared Hunt scored six for Charlevoix in the stanza.

An ankle-breaking crossover dribble and drive by Daly for two left his defender on the ground to start the fourth quarter and gave the Rayders a 50-35 advantage, their largest. Just when it appeared to be over, however, Jorkasky took over for St. Francis, scoring 17 in the final period.

The Glads slowly worked their way back into the game and a three-point field goal closed the margin to three, at 63-60 with 2:27 left. Minutes later Jorkasky had a three-point attempt that would have tied the game, but for one of the few times in the game, he missed.

"Jorkasky was a one-man wrecking crew out there," Haske said. "We tried a number of things on him, including a special defense we put together but nothing seemed to work."

Friske nailed seven out of eight free throws down the stretch to ice the win for Charlevoix.

"I was real pleased with Scott," Haske said. "He did a great job with those free throws. He looked very confident stepping up to the line."

Daly finished with 17 points and four assists. Friske had 15 points. Hunt contributed 13 points.

Ben Bergmann scored 10 and had six rebounds. Crain pulled down eight rebounds.

Against Mio, the Rayders took an 8-6 lead two minutes into the game and never trailed again. Charlevoix led 14-9 at the end of the first quarter, 32-17 at the half and 52-34 after three periods.

Friske scored 18 points to lead all scorers. Daly tallied 16 points and five assists. Hunt had ten points. Kyle Kramer and Bergmann each had eight.

The Rayders (20-5) played Tuesday, March 23 in the state quarterfinals against Rudyard (21-2). Results were unavailable at press time. The winner of the Charlevoix-Rudyard matchup will play the winner of the Olivet (23-2)-Kent City (23-2) game at 1 p.m. on Thursday, March 25 at the Breslin Center on the campus of Michigan State University.

Olivet is ranked sixth by the Associated Press and defeated top-ranked Flint Beecher in their regional final last Friday. Kent City is rated ninth.

The winner of the semifinal will advance to the state finals in Class C at noon on Saturday, March 27 at the Breslin Center.

Other teams who may be in the finals include Saginaw Buena Vista (18-5), ranked number three in the state, Albion (22-3), ranked seventh, Detroit Benedictine (14-10) and Buchanan (14-11).

Buchanan suffered a fate similar to Charlevoix earlier this season in that they forfeited nine games for use of an ineligible player.

The state finals will be shown on television on Fox Sports Net Detroit and broadcast on the radio by WMKT-AM 1270 if Charlevoix is playing.

Mayor, planning commission compromise

FIGHT

nate thing and I'm glad it's settled," he said.

The mayor announced his plan to remove Flanders and his fellow commissioners John Campbell, Dennis Kusina, Steve Bennett and Richard Hodgson from their commission seats on Dec. 15. The decision stemmed from the commission's Dec. 8 meeting when those five members made the controversial decision to set a public hearing to listen to a request from Diane Gillette and Ruth Bellisimo, owners of Sunnybank Retirement Community, for a permit that if approved would open the door for their proposed assisted living facility.

The facility would be located on a two-acre parcel on Charlevoix's north side, off Petoskey Avenue, in the R-2 single family residential district.

This decision went against city council's Nov. 17 majority vote not to set a public hearing to discuss a zoning amendment to allow this type of facility as a special use in the R-1 and R-2 districts.

Mayor Campbell charged the commissioners with neglect of duty and inefficiency claiming they failed to adequately review and study the special use permit application filed by Gillette and Bellisimo before they set the hearing. He also claims that in scheduling the public hearing the commission didn't review pertinent legal issues and left the city vulnerable to a lawsuit.

To fight the charges, the commissioners hired the Grand Rapids law firm Warner, Norcross and Judd, to represent them. Two weeks ago city council voted 4-2 in favor of paying the $5,450.31 bill to that firm for charges the commissioners incurred in defending their position.

Commissioner John Dobulis, who has defended his fellow commissioners, said he thinks the final outcome was fair.

"After a long discussion I think it was done right. It should have been done differently right from the start," he said.

Dobulis feels both sides compromised, council agreeing to pay the legal fees and the commissioners rescinding the motion. He said the two meeting in the middle had to be done to "put it away."

While the dismissal issue is dead in the water, the assisted living struggle isn't.

In a previous interview Commissioner Campbell said he and his fellow commissioners are considering recommending the same zoning ordinance amendment to city council to have that public hearing set that they denied back in November.

Becky Doan, a Charlevoix resident who lives in close proximity to where Sunnybank wants to locate said she plans to continue to closely follow the issue and would not be in favor of revisiting that zoning amendment.

While city officials continue to bat around where assisted living belongs, they are preparing to face Gillette and Bellisimo in court. They filed a lawsuit against the city claiming there is no place in the zoning ordinance where assisted living is allowed, which constitutes exclusionary zoning.

MDEQ conducting criminal, civil investigation

CITY

curs when specific pollutant limitations outlined in the permit are exceeded. The investigation is looking into reports from the past three years that may have been doctored to hide those violations.

This means that treated wastewater that did not meet the permit's pollutant concentration requirements may have been discharged to Lake Michigan via a pipe running from the plant. The plant is located next to Lake Michigan Beach, a public swim area off Park Avenue.

Sam Creswell, the superintendent for both the water and wastewater treatment plants at the time the alleged falsification occurred, said he doesn't know whether the records were botched.

"I'll have to wait and see what they (the MDEQ) come up with," he said.

Woods is conducting both a criminal investigation and a civil investigation into this matter.

The criminal investigation is about two weeks from being completed. Woods will then pass that information along to the state attorney general's office. Shoemaker said after that it's up to the attorney general's office to pursue the issue through the courts. He said it could take months before charges are filed or it goes to court. If convicted for falsifying reports to the state, Shoemaker said the individuals being investigated could face jail time and fines.

He would not say specifically who was being investigated.

The civil matter which is facing the city of Charlevoix, who is liable for what is discharged from the plant, will be dealt with in about three weeks when the enforcement staff at the MDEQ makes its determination. Shoemaker said the likely outcome is a fine and a corrective action program.

City manager Mike Wiesner said any fine that is handed down will be paid for out of the city's sewer fund.

On March 17 Wiesner said he was considering suspending Creswell, the plant superintendent of almost 30 years. Wiesner would not comment as to the grounds for the proposed suspension because it is a personnel issue.

Instead of that suspension becoming effective, Creswell opted to retire effective March 17. He gave his retirement notice to Wiesner's office on March 22.

According to Creswell, the retirement was not related to the investigation. He said he recently turned 60 and it was time to leave the "high stress job."

"It's (the timing) just kind of a bad coincidence," he said.

Jim Caldwell, a long time employee at the plant, is currently in charge.

Creswell was also superintendent of the water plant. Wiesner said there is no relationship between the discharged wastewater and the water plant.

"The DEQ had no specific concerns at the water plant," he said.

The city plans to hire a consultant to evaluate the operation and make recommendations related to the environmental department's concerns.

LEGAL NOTICE 210

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE

WHEREAS, default has been made in the terms and conditions of a certain mortgage made by Marlene A. McGinn a single woman, Mortgagor, to Benchmark Mortgage Corporation a Michigan corporation, Mortgagee, dated the 8th day of April, A.D., 1999, and recorded in the Office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix and State of Michigan, on the 19th day of April, A.D., 1999, and recorded in the Office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix the 19th day of April, A.D., 1999, in Liber 361 on Pages 696-702.

WHEREAS, the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage as of the date of this notice is the sum of Fifty-six thousand three hundred seventeen and 47/100 dollars ($56,317.47), for principal and interest and,

WHEREAS, no suit or proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, and default having been made whereby the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative.

NOW THEREFORE, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute of the State of Michigan in such case made and provided, NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on Friday the 7th day of May, 2004, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, local time, said mortgage will be foreclosed at a sale at public auction to the highest bidder at the east door of the main lobby of the County Building in the City of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix and State of Michigan (that being the place of holding Circuit Court in said County), of the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the amount due, as aforesaid, on said mortgage with the interest thereon at seven and one quarter percent (7.25%) per annum and all legal costs, charges and expenses, including the attorney fee allowed by law, and also any sums which may be paid by the undersigned, necessary to protect its interest in the premises.

The premises described in said mortgage are as follows: Property situated in the City of Boyne City, County of Charlevoix State of Michigan, to wit:

LOT #161, BLOCK X NICHOLL'S AND MORGAN'S SECOND ADDITION to South Boyne (now City of Boyne City), according to the recorded plat thereof.

Commonly known as: 428 Main St., Boyne City, MI 49712

Parcel No. 15-051-358-161-00

The redemption period shall be 6 months from the date of such sale, unless determined abandoned in accordance with 1948CL 600.3241A in which case the redemption period shall be 30 days from the date of such sale.

Dated: March 24, 2004.

CHARLEVOIX BRIEFS

Area events

Breakfast meeting

There will be a breakfast meeting at Flapjacks Resturant at 7 a.m., on Friday, March 26. The meeting is for interested men from the churches of the Charlevoix area. The purpose of this meeting is to make plans to bring together an ecumenical group of men for food and fellowship on a regular basis. Please come on Friday and express your opinion on time, place and program.

Buddhism meeting

There is a SGI-USA (Nichiren Buddhism) meeting scheduled for at 11 a.m., March 28 in Charlevoix. For more details please call Jeanne at 547-5593 or Donna at 536-7023. You may also wish to visit the web site sgi-usa.org.

Prevent injuries

Northern Michigan Sports Medicine Center will present a talk on The Prevention of Injuries In Youth Soccer at 7 p.m., Tuesday, March 30, at the Charlevoix High School room C101.

Coaches, parents and athletes are encouraged to attend. For more information contact Joelle Beaudoin at 347-9300.

Vocal grants

The Northern Michigan Chorale is announcing the availability of vocal music grants for summer music study. These grants are for anyone of high school age or older in Emmet and Charlevoix counties.

Letters of application are due by Friday, April 2 and should include name, address and telephone number. Also, specify the planned use for the grant, such as vocal lessons or music camp assistance. High school applicants should provide a letter of recommendation from their music instructor.

Auditions will take place on Monday, April 26. Applicants will be notified of time and place. Successful applicants will be invited to perform in the Northern Michigan Chorale fall or spring concerts.

Send letter of application to the Northern Michigan Chorale, P.O. Box 51, Petoskey, MI 49770.

Guest speaker

The Rev. Bob Klingenberg will be the special guest speaker at the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church at the 10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. services, on Palm Sunday, April 4, located at 05291 M-66 North. A nursery is provided. All are welcome.

Democrats invite voters

The Charlevoix County Democrats invite interested voters to an evening of conversation and planning at 6:30 p.m., on Thursday, April 8, in the downstairs training room at the Charlevoix County Sheriff Department.

The Democrats are also co-sponsoring a forum on the impact of the "No Child Left Behind Act." This forum will be at 7 p.m., Monday, April 29 at the Charlevoix Middle School.

Scholarships

Michigan Association of Retired School Personnel (MARSP) is again offering two $500 scholarships to any accredited trade or vocation education school or program.

Students need to obtain information from their high school counselor and apply by April 15.

The recipients will be selected by the MARSP Scholarship Committee by May 1. This Committee includes a representative from each of the four Charlevoix County High Schools. Students will be informed by May 15.

The Early Family Memorial Scholarship will contribute additional funds.

Reunion

Charlevoix High School's Class of 1964 will host its fortieth reunion at 7:30 p.m. until midnight, Saturday, Aug. 14, at the Charlevoix Yacht Club. The cost is $20 per person. Reservations should be directed to Leslie (Lyons) Cunningham at 06530 Brown Rd., Charlevoix, MI 49720, or phone 547-2145, or Betty (Reynolds) Martin at 12347 Waller Road, Charlevoix, MI 49720, or phone 547-2089, by June 1. Anyone able to provide contact information for class members can call or e-mail Ms. Cunningham at lcunning@freeway.net.

Trophy case

Charlevoix High School is in the process of finishing its new trophy display cases in the commons area outside the gymnasium. The trophy area is near completion, and now the school is asking for community assistance to complete the next phase.

A Hall of Fame for all-state athletes is being constructed along the North/South hallway, opposite the gymnasium. All athletes, who achieved all-state status in their sports at Charlevoix High School, are asked to send a 2-inch-by-3-inch senior picture along with the year(s) all-state status was accomplished, the sport(s) and a correct spelling of their name. Additionally, if an athlete was a state champion, please send a 5-inch-by-7-inch picture. Only one picture is needed even if all-state status was achieved in more than one sport. Please include a contact person and phone number if there is a question about the information sent.

A race for city council seats is on

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

The November election in the city of Charlevoix is shaping up to be a political shoot-out.

Even though the election is over six months away, planning for it has already started. There will definitely be competition for the mayor's seat and two of three open council seats. Two council candidates are still on the fence as to whether they'll run.

Second ward council member Karen Campbell, first ward councilman Bill Haggard and Mayor Gabe Campbell all plan to run for reelection. Third ward councilman Sherm Chamberlain isn't sure he'll run. Of those four council members none are guaranteed an uncontested return.

According to city clerk Liz Gooch a handful of nominating petitions have already been picked up at city hall.

Last week former councilman and deputy mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson said he is one of the people who grabbed one and he plans to run against Mayor Campbell.

Carlson, 37, resigned from council in September of 2003 after serving for four years. At that time he moved

The Michigan Department of Environmental Quality is investigating the dying of the Pine River Channel green on St. Patrick's Day.

St. Patrick's Day dye prank prompts state investigation

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

A St. Patrick's Day party prank may cost the prankster(s) big bucks.

On March 17, St. Patrick's Day, someone dyed the Pine River Channel green in spite of repeatedly being told by the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality (MDEQ) that it wasn't allowed.

"It was unfortunate that someone felt it was necessary to do this when we made it clear to the Chamber of Commerce that it wasn't allowed. This will not happen again and hopefully they got that message." Richard Shoemaker, the senior environmental quality analyst with the surface water quality division of the MDEQ, said.

Shoemaker is now heading up an investigation to see who is responsible for the violation. The Charlevoix City Police Department is assisting in this investigation.

"They (the MDEQ) are not very pleased and they shouldn't be," city police chief Dennis Halverson said.

Chamber president Jacqueline Merta has denied involvement by the chamber in this incident.

While the chamber has denied its involvement, the environmental group isn't giving up.

"This is not a good thing. We don't know what went in there (the channel)," Shoemaker said.

On St. Patrick's Day the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce hosted its first annual pub crawl and at some point between when the band of revelers moved from the

Dental Clinics North has new plan for customers

Starting April 1, 2004, members of the new "Northern Dental Plan" will receive a free initial visit with a participating dentist, including x-rays and exam, and reduced rates for all subsequent treatment.

The Northern Dental Plan is accepted by dentists at 10 Dental Clinics North locations and other participating dental offices across a 26-county region of northern Michigan. A two-year membership to the Northern Dental Plan is $50 per family member.

"We designed the Northern Dental Plan to help people who don't have dental benefits, but it is not dental insurance," said Thomas Veryser, DDS, Dental Director for Dental Clinics North, which is sponsoring the plan. "We're hoping lots of recent graduates, retired people, and people who are working without dental insurance will take advantage of it. I've talked with so many folks who are able to pay something for dental services, but they feel most fees are out of the question for them financially. After an initial, free visit, Northern Dental Plan's rates are about 30 percent less than what clients without insurance typically are asked to pay for dental care."

He added, "During the initial appointment, the Northern Dental Plan dentist will develop a treatment and payment plan together with the client that meets his or her needs."

The Northern Dental Plan application is easy and quick to complete. Applications are available by calling Dental Clinics North at (877) 321-7070 or on the Internet at www.nwhealth.org.

To be eligible for the Northern Dental Plan, applicants cannot have dental insurance and their annual income needs to fall within guidelines. These guidelines are: for a family of one — $18,620; family of two — $24,980; family of three — $31,340; family of four — $37,700. Any household with a family member eligible for Food Stamps or enrolled in WIC or Medicaid is automatically eligible.

For additional information about the Northern Dental Plan, telephone (231) 547-0295 or (877) 321-7070.

Gooch resigns as city clerk

Move on heels of big raise in pay

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

Charlevoix City Clerk Liz Gooch has resigned after a long fight to be compensated for hours she works.

Gooch, 37, gave her resignation to city manager Mike Wiesner March 23 effective April 16.

She was appointed to the clerk's position in September of 2000 to fill the vacancy left when former clerk, Joanne Patrick, resigned to take a job at the Charlevoix County Clerk's office.

Now Gooch is following Patrick's path to the county building accepting a job with the Charlevoix County Equalization Department.

This came as a surprise to third ward city council member Shirley Gibson who was the driving force behind a two month long effort to bring the clerk's position from part-time to full-time status. Gooch said she applied for the position when the debate over how she should be compensated was going on, but didn't interview until about two weeks ago.

The final outcome of that debate was an increase in salary for the clerk from about $16,500 to $34,000 a year. No full-time designation was made, but Gooch said there is plenty of work for the clerk to do at city hall to earn that salary.

But the increase in pay wasn't enough to keep Gooch who said the health benefits the county offered her were the crucial factor in her decision.

However, she added that the fight for more pay was not done in vain as whoever replaces her will be fairly compensated.

"I don't think the job can be done in 20 hours by anyone," she said.

Gibson said she is sad to see Gooch go because of the good work she did, but is still satisfied with the outcome of the clerk debate.

"It (Liz's resignation) doesn't change one thing. It wasn't about Liz. It was about the position that has been eroded for years," she said.

Life at the county building will take Gooch out of the political ring which Gooch said she'll miss in part. She enjoyed the close interaction she has had with city council but is also ready for a break.

"It was a good learning experience to see how city government works," she said.

But she said she'll enjoy the job security that comes with her non-elected position with the county equalization department. As clerk she faced the possibility of losing her job every two years. While she was never contested at the two elections she ran in, Gooch anticipates the races heating up with the increased salary.

Gooch's replacement will be appointed by city council. Anyone that is appointed will have to run for the seat in November of 2005.

Kids making dreams come true

EDITORIAL

Many times you hear adults complaining about kids today.

They are too lazy, too selfish, too materialistic, don't spend enough time with their studies and just plain rude at times. Although, the same was probably said about every generation through the times.

However, there is a group of kids going against these stereotypes. They are working hard, doing something to benefit other kids in the area, studying up on laws and design and are very committed and polite with adults. Plus, they are very talented on skateboards.

This group of kids, sparked by 13-year-old Zeke Daman's letter -to-the-editor of this newspaper, are working together to bring a skateboarding park to the Charlevoix area. They see this as a way for area youth to have a place where they can hang out, practice their tricks and not bother anyone else.

Working together, these students have created a model design of a skateboarding park they would like to see built in the Charlevoix area and they have figured out how much it is going to take to make that dream a reality. The park would have mini quarter pipes, stairs and a ramp — all skateboarding terms for types of structures needed for tricks.

And the cost of this project is estimated at over $200,000.

Now, instead of just sitting on their hands, wishing it would come true, these students are ativly working to raise money for the project.

They have applied for a $10,000 grant from the retail store American Eagle Outfitters and raised over $6,000 at a recent skate-a-thon that drew in over 40 skaters. But, this is just the beginning, the group is planning more fund-raisers in its quest to build a skateboarding park in Charlevoix.

Any group of students who takes the initiative to bring something they want in Charlevoix to the area should be saluted. They saw a need and decided they would be the ones to fill it.

With kids like this in Charlevoix, our future looks good.

Dieting lessons taught by our ancient ancestors

Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

It is no longer a secret that as a group we Americans are carrying a few extra pounds.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention are referring to an epidemic of obesity in the United States. Medical groups all over the country are concerned. People are attempting to sue the makers of fast food for somehow causing us to become too fat. There seems to be no easy solutions.

I have a few suggestions.

When confronted with what are basically biological questions, I am inclined to look for biological answers. We have not always been too fat. What has changed? If we were to pick up an average human being from anywhere from 50,000 years ago to 100,000 years ago, give them a good haircut and dress them in modern fashions from the Gap, they would turn few if any heads as they walked down Bridge Street. We have not changed much in that time. Our physiology has changed not at all. A few things would be different. They might be somewhat shorter and they most certainly would not be carrying any excess weight.

These long ago people did not have the advantage of the Pritikin Diet, the Atkins Diet or any of the other guides to controlling weight that are available to us. They did not worry about limiting their carbs or their protein intake. They did not count calories and they were unconcerned about fat or fiber intake. Yet they managed nicely what seems an unattainable goal for Americans. They did not have a fast food franchise just down the block, and that may be part of the secret of their success at maintaining weight.

Our long ago ancestors ate only food that they had dug from the ground, harvested from plants or run down and killed. They certainly must have had more exercise than we do. Was that their secret? Only in part. They generally didn't have much more food than they needed to stay alive. They probably ate as much as they could whenever they had the opportunity. Exercise and limited food intake sounds like a plan.

At the present time as soon as we have accumulated a few extra pounds we have the choice of a low fat diet or one with only certain kinds of fat. We can utilize a low carbohydrate diet or a high carbohydrate diet. We can try out a low protein diet or a high protein diet, depending on just what is the most recent fad for solving our weight problem. It's enough to confuse us into heading to the nearest fast food emporium to soothe our troubled mind and pad our troubled hips.

Is there a simpler way based in our ancient biological heritage? I believe there is. What we need is a low fat, low carbohydrate, low protein diet. People in our modern world who have such a diet live longer than those who do not. What we really need is less food or less easy access to food. Maybe no parking places at the fast food outlet and the nearest parking at least six blocks away, and no wheeled transportation allowed. No Super-sizes might help, but the mile long walk or run would help more. Last fall a friend and I walked from Bayshore to Bay Harbor and then had a hearty pancake breakfast. Four miles probably almost equals a hearty pancake breakfast.

The best overall simple diet advice I ever received or gave was to eat as many different kinds of plants and animals as we can and to eat them as close to alive as possible. Yes Virginia, an apple or an orange or a carrot is alive.

The only book about dieting I have seen that seemed to offer that simplicity was one titled "Life is hard, Food is easy." Foreign policy is complicated, quantum physics is complicated, eating is not or shouldn't be. Our 50,000 years ago ancestors could figure it out.

One additional piece of advice about feeling good while dieting. Carbohydrate consumption, whether now or 50,000 years ago, makes us feel good about our food and ourselves. After a big meal of pasta we feel relaxed and comfortable. High carbohydrate intake releases a chemical called serotonin in our brain that causes us to feel at ease with the world, our food and ourselves. Three or four ounces of pasta will do that.

Enjoy.

All of the money collected, $173,000 so far this campaign, stays right here in Emmet and Charlevoix counties for the benefit of those who need our extra help. We only send about $1,550.00 per year to United Way of America to use their trademark and benefit from their advice and programs. The rest of your donations are at work right here at home.

The following are just some of the agencies you help support through your United Way contributions: the Bergmann Center, Boyne City Nursery School, Camp McSauba, Charlevoix Alano Club, Hospice of Northwest Michigan, the Charlevoix Senior Center and B.A.S.E.S.

Most of our local non-profit agencies who receive governmental grant money in addition to local United Way money are having their government grant money cut back. This means that private donations, like those allocated to them by United Way, are more important than ever.

Annoyed by mailing

Editor:

I write this in regards to the anti-Wal-Mart group that has formed in Charlevoix. I should start by saying that I am all for a Wal-Mart in Charlevoix and the many great things it can do for the residents of Charlevoix.

My problem starts with the anti-Wal-Mart group. I am not, by any means, trying to take away this group's freedom of speech to voice their opinions and beliefs about the bad things that a Wal-Mart in Charlevoix will cause.

I am, however, annoyed and irritated with the fact that they seem to have the right to solicit through the mail. I, as well as many other Charlevoix residents, received a leaflet last week in the mail from this group. First problem is that I do not want them mailing me with information and basically preaching to my about something that I don't see eye-to-eye with them on. Second, and most irritating, is the fact that they are also asking for donations to help support their legal expenses to help fight Wal-Mart developing here in Charlevoix.

Personally, I see that as being very unprofessional of them to go about asking for donations in this manner end filling our mail boxes with junk mail. I believe that they should have, and still can, set up a public meeting on the subject and let the followers who have the same beliefs as them, come to them.

I guess, all in all, we each are entitled to our own opinion and I do not wish this group to preach their opinions on me. I believe there are other ways they can go about gathering support and donations rather than annoying all of us Charlevoix residents who do, indeed, want to have a Wal-Mart developed here in our home town.

Property tax

Editor:

I read your article about property taxes being confusing only to become more confused than I already was. Like you I was under the misconception that property taxes are based on roughly half of the sale value of a home, for homes that have sold during the past year. Not in Charlevoix! Only if the sale results in higher taxes are they based on the sale price. If the house is in had shape and sells for less than its potential market value, the normal basis is chucked out the window with an arbitrary and capricious process takes its place with a rubber stamp "FAIRLY ASSESSED."

Let me explain: I recently purchased a home in Charlevoix for less than its potential value because it needed new wiring, plumbing, flooring and a roof. Instead of taxing me on half the sales price of the house, I received a 43 percent increase in taxable value. The result is a taxable value of over 84 percent of the sale price of the home. I appealed to the board of review and showed them comparable listings and the sales price of my home, and they seemingly agreed that I had a valid concern. Two weeks later I received a rejection notice and the two word explanation was "FAIRLY ASSESSED." It seems they believe I should be taxed on the potential value of the home. If that is the case, our state economic problems are solved, because every home has the potential to be worth millions and we can tax anyone anything we want. Such as: That couch you bought for half off: Tax it a full value. That used car: No discounts there, full blue book!! That diamond ring for 60% off: Tax it at full price.

I have already received the forms from Lansing to appeal to the tax tribunal and will file them this week. But Charlevoix could save time and trouble by just handing them out at the board of review instead of convening a panel that ignores the evidence presented them.

Wal-Mart will hurt

Editor:

There are many of us who feel the same way as This is Our Town.

I moved to the Thumb of Michigan 20 years ago. I shop in our little town of Bad Axe. When we went into a store we knew the people who worked there and waited on us. That all changed when Wal-Mart moved in. One after another of the little stores had to close. It was a busy main street, but no more. It is not the same lovely little town.

May many more people join in the endeavors to stop Wal-Mart in Charlevoix. I feel the community will lose more than they will gain if Wal-Mart comes. I have seen it happen.

Wal-Mart costly

Editor:

Please ask yourself what Charlevoix will lose if Wal-Mart comes to town.

It will cause tremendous harm to the environment; after each rainfall Stover Creek will be affected by the runoff from the immense parking area, where soil existed and provided natures best filtration process.

Its revenues will return to Arkansas, not Charlevoix.

Wal-Mart's policy of unreasonable eligibility criteria and prohibitive costs for Wal-Mart sponsored health plans will place a burden on our local health providers, emergency medical care and possibly, food stamps.

If revenues are not up to expectations, it will ahandon the store and move on. Just look at Gaylord. Wal-Mart ahandoned its first Wal-Mart to build an even bigger Super Wal-Mart, 4 miles away. Countless Wal-Marts are abandoned yearly.

Is low price at any cost something Charlevoix wants to endorse?

Wal-Mart is a company that ignores its workers and Wal-Mart will ignore Charlevoix's best interests.

Please say no to Wal-Mart and yes to Charlevoix.

Wal-Mart will help

Editor:

I am a third generation Charlevoix native. I think you do a good job with the paper. I have never written to a paper before, but some of our business leaders and professional people I have seen do things that don't seem right.

One business person and one doctor who are both so called sports boosters like to park in the handicap parking at ball games. And one is a leader of keep Wal-Mart out. I am retired and think Wal-Mart would help. I would have my secretary write this and it would be better.

P.S. The City of Charlevoix should stay out of Charlevoix Township's business and try to take care of their own.

Spring musical ends its decades-long run

Marina LaBlance's 32nd Annual Charlevoix Elementary School Spring Musical that took place March 24 was attended by over 1,000 people. The show's theme "Sing, Sing A Song," was the same as the first musical LaBlance directed in recognition of this being her last show. Below LaBlance bids the crowd adieu.

Obituaries

Marion J. Ochs: May 21, 1920 - March 23, 2004

Marion J. Ochs, 83, of Holland, and formerly of Charlevoix, died Tuesday, March 23, 2004, at her home in Holland.

A Funeral was Friday, March 26, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. Mary Willis officiated and burial was in Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Marion was born May 21, 1920, the daughter of Harry G. and Theressa (Lee) Griffin. She completed a two year course at Ypsilanti Normal School, (now Eastern Michigan University), then taught in country schools for three years before joining the Navy.

She was a US Navy WAVE during World War II and served from 1943 to 1946 at both the Great Lakes Naval Center and in Hawaii, being discharged with the rank of Storekeeper First Class. Upon her return home, she obtained a business degree from the University of Michigan, and was employed by Detroit Edison and the Ford Motor Company.

She began teaching again at Garden City High School, then went on to obtain her master's degree in education from the University of Michigan. She retired from Schoolcraft Community College in 1980.

Marion married James William Ochs in Flint on Nov. 11, 1950. They made their home in Livonia and moved to Charlevoix in 1982, wintering on Singer Island, Fla. In 1998, they moved to Holland.

They loved to travel together. Mr. Ochs survives and resides at their senior home in Holland.

She is also survived by her brother Jack, (Joanne) Griffin of Linden, and her sisters, Helen (James) Byce of Flint and Brooksville, Fla., and Ruth (Sherman) Nord of Aberdeen, Wash.

She was preceded in death by her sister Grace Dickenson and brother Richard.

Memorial contributions may be made to Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Shirley E. Dvoracek: Nov. 30, 1930 - March 28, 2004

Shirley E. Dvoracek, 73, of Charlevoix, died Sunday, March 28, 2004, at Boulder Park Terrace Nursing Home in Charlevoix. Memorial service will be 6 p.m., Thursday, April 1, 2004, at Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Reverend James D. Green of the Bible Baptist Church in Charlevoix will officiate.

Shirley was born November 30, 1930, in Vanderbilt, the daughter of Elmer and Bertha (Bowerman) Kleeman. Shirley played guitar, and enjoyed making crafts, and oil painting. She crocheted, and loved to cook, read books, and antique shopping. She loved her Labrador Retrievers, but Shirley loved her family most of all.

Shirley is survived by her daughters, Kay Howard of Boyne Falls, Kathy VanZant of Petoskey, and Mary Ferguson of Charlevoix. Grandchildren are Christopher Ferguson of Charlevoix, Charles Bohn of Charlevoix, Heather Falting of Boyne City, Jennifer Wilkinson of Georgia, Ryan Falting of Charlevoix, David Falting of Missouri, Betsy Dunkel of Petoskey, Christopher Castelein of Florida and Carrie Castelein of Petoskey. Shirley also has thirteen great grandchildren.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Charlevoix County Humane Society.

Bradley B. Newton: April 22, 1971 - March 27, 2004

Bradley Benton Newton, 32, of Charlevoix, died unexpectedly March 27, 2004, in East Jordan. Funeral will be 11:00 am, Wednesday, March 30, 2004, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Reverend Neil Turner of the Community Church of God will officiate, and interment will take place in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Brad was born April 22, 1971, in Charlevoix, the son of Thomas Benton and Carol M (Dowling) Newton. He was a loving father, son and brother and will be greatly missed.

Brad was always willing to help others, he was good hearted and hard working. Whenever anyone needed something he was always there whether it was working on a vehicle which was his passion or helping wherever needed.

Bradley is survived by his sons, Dylan and Austin Newton of East Jordan; mother, Carol M. Newton of Charlevoix; sisters, Beth (Richard) Belovsky of Huntsville, Texas, Brenda (Ted) Poelking of Orlando, Fla., Mary Newton, and Patty (Don) Wells Jr. of Charlevoix; brothers, Robert Newton of Miami Beach, Fla., and Mike (Stacy) Newton of Palm Bay, Fla.

Brad was proceeded in death by his father, brother Tommy and maternal and paternal grandparents.

Chamber to move into old Mason Street post office

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce has secured a new home.

"I'm very pleased that we have the support of the city council and the DDA in finding a new home for the chamber," chamber president Jacqueline Merta said.

At a joint meeting of Charlevoix's Downtown Development Authority (DDA) and City Council Monday night, March 29, council voted to lease the chamber the city owned former post office off Mason Street for $1 a year for 10 years. After that agreement expires the two plan to discuss a five year renewal of the lease.

Third ward city councilman Sherm Chamberlain thought it was important to have a negotiating period instead of going with the chamber's recommendation of an automatic renewal because he didn't want to tie the city's hands.

Under the agreement being drawn up by city attorney Jim Young the chamber will be responsible for all maintenance and utilities related to the building with the city covering insurance which will cost $445 a year.

The chamber's budget is tight and chamber board members are concerned about the maintenance issue but have agreed to set up an escrow account earmarked for maintenance they will contribute $2,500 a year to.

Board member Ron Agnello said, "We've been (operated) basically at a break point at best. We would like to cap our responsibilities to a certain degree."

Maintenance and utility costs are a new expense for the chamber. Under the current arrangement the group pays the city $100 a month to rent its Bridge Street location, above the harbormaster's office, where it has been since 1944 and the city covers utilities and maintenance.

Merta said she is comfortable with the agreement reached Monday night.

The chamber request came now because in the not so distant future, the chamber will be homeless. During the East Park and marina renovation planning process community members made it clear that there was no place in the park for buildings like the chamber office, not directly related to supporting the park and marina.

And with those renovations likely starting in the fall of 2005 the chamber's time to plan for relocation is now.

The DDA bought the post office in 1986 for $70,000. An insurance appraisal done in 1998 found the building's value to be $208,927. This figure does not include the $40,000 in renovations the city did to the building in 2003 to prep it for use as a temporary city hall while renovations are being done next-door.

The city is planning to move into its new digs in July. Merta is hoping to move into the chamber's new home shortly thereafter.
